What is Education?
Gas War Coming.
The Evils of Liquor.
Marvelous New York.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

EDUCATORS between the closing and opening of schools discuss "What is education? What should it do? How can we form the young?" etc.

EDUCATORS should start with the meaning of the word "educate," and stick to that. It means "to lead out," to bring out of the youthful mind and capacity that which is in it. It does not mean to force the opinions of teachers on that youthful mind.

DEALING with raw materials, science and industry "educate" those materials by bringing out the best that is in them.

They seek for hardness in steel, for resiliency and wear in rubber. They don't try to make rubber of steel, or steel of the rubber. But that is exactly the process applied to many young minds.

And for that reason, in reading the biographies of many successful men, you find that their first proof of real ability was ability to evade the process of education.

And their greatest good fortune was an irregular education, or none.

A GREAT gasoline price war seems probable. Small retailers on the Pacific Coast are crying for government help, accusing big oil men of "unfair price cutting."

Recently, the big men were accusing little men of ruining the industry, and wasting the nation's oil supply.

AT THIS moment, the world has too much oil, too much gasoline, and, in consequence, reckless waste.

Presently will come a shortage. Those that now read, in some places, the sign "Gasoline 10 cents, plus 2 cents tax," may read "Gasoline 50c, plus 2 cents tax."

It would seem almost a case to justify government regulation, only that, probably, would be "Bolshevism."

TWENTY FIVE thousand pupils in 274 Bible schools are to be taught "the evils of liquor" and the desirability of leaving whisky alone, quite apart from Prohibition.

Every boy and girl in this "dry land" needs that teaching. It should begin in the graveyards, made prosperous by bootlegging, continue in hospital wards, and wind up at the "social function," where Americans, of all ages, make fools of themselves and show that they despise the law.

A BIG CITY is New York, amazing in growth. Losing hundreds of thousands of population, migrating to outlying suburbs, New York City, in the last ten years has gained in population 1,335,315, more than 23 per cent.

OF THE FIVE boroughs in New York, four have more than a million population each. Queens, one of the boroughs, is probably the fastest growing big scale community in the world, and within a few years, with all respect to Chicago, may be "America's second city."

A GERMAN scientist startles Berlin with a long range loudspeaker that carries a great orchestra to be heard for 25 miles in all directions. A Chicago band could play in the loop, and be heard with painful distinctness on the North, South, and West sides, and 25 miles out into Lake Michigan.

THINK, then, as the old Puritans used to say, when describing hell, how it will be hereafter.

Think of Gabriel's horn that will be heard 25,000 miles in all directions, around the world, bringing the dead from their graves, and reassembling the disintegrated elements into which they will have been dissolved. That will be a real loud speaker.

PROHIBITION enforcement announces that its energies are concentrated on eastern states, which, apparently, need them. On the Hudson, just above New York City, enforcement officers seized a large yacht with $250,000 worth of rum. One man shot in a gun battle probably will die.

ON NEW YORK'S Park Avenue, which is getting more and more expensive, police raided an "exclusive" gambling institution with liquid refreshments, of course, as part of the attraction.

The "guests in evening attire," said to have lost, individually, as much as $250,000 in a night, were not molested by the police. Apparently we are not all poor yet.

FINAL FIGURES show that Dwight W. Morrow, in New Jersey, carried every county, and, himself a "wet," beat his nearest competitor, Mr. Fort, a dry, almost 4 to 1.

That Mr. Morrow spent on his campaign less than $50,000 is a remarkable fact in these days of extravagant office-seeking.

Mr. Grundy and Mrs. McCormick, for instance, spent several hundred thousand dollars each, and legitimately, no suggestion of corruption.

CARDINAL VANNUTELLI, dean of the Sacred College, died yesterday at the age of ninety-three.

His death is a great loss to the Pope's government. He had served the Papacy in many important offices for seventy years and had visited nearly all parts of the world as the Pope's representative.

ALLDERDICE ADMITS TAG 'FIXING'

Affirms Clark's Charge That Councilmen, Politicians Render Auto Laws Useless

Public Safety Director James M. Clark today charged ward chairmen and city councilmen with fixing auto parking tags.

Clark's charge was no sooner made public than Councilman Robert J. Allderdice admitted that he himself had "fixed" several tags.

The director held petty politics responsible for the virtual collapse of auto parking laws, and ordered the suspension of any policeman who helped offenders escape the penalty.

"POLICE DON'T FIX"

Clark branded enforcement of parking regulations a "joke," and in the same class with the fireworks ordinance. Forty-six per cent of auto tags are fixed, he asserted, but not by police.

Other developments today in the campaign against auto law violators were:

1—Lewis W. McIntyre, city traffic engineer, in a report to Director Clark, declared a survey showed that 75 per cent of autoists ignored "thru-street" traffic rules.

2—A meeting of the Citizens Better Traffic Committee was called for 1:30 p. m. today in City Council chamber to plan warfare against politicians who make a practice of fixing initial $1 tags for parking violations.

3—Director Clark ordered police to take the license numbers

BOBBY JONES TIES SMITH FOR LEAD

BULLETIN.

INTERLACHEN COUNTRY CLUB, Minneapolis, July 10.—Sitting on top of the world with his customary insouciance, Bobby Jones shot a par-flouting 71 this morning to claim what seems to be his rightful heritage at the head of the pack in the first round of the national open golf championship. Smith took a 36 on the second nine for a 72, to tie with George Smith and Harry Cooper.

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
International News Service.

INTERLACHEN COUNTRY CLUB, Minneapolis, July 10.—Bobby Jones, the king, and Horton Smith, pretender to the throne of all golfdom, waved their magic wands over the scene of the opening round in the national open golf championship this morning, and stubborn, rugged Interlachen yielded to their touch. Each shot the first nine holes in 34 strokes, two under par, and were away winging on their journey to the ultimate goal, 72 holes distant.

Their performance merely equaled that of Jack Burke, Texas, who was 34 to the turn. However, they still had the world before them, whereas Burke, three-putting three greens on the last nine, came home in 40 to score a 74, tying Johnny Golden for the temporary leadership. Golden was out in 36 and back in 38.

BOBBY PLAYS EASILY

There was no difference in the scores of Jones and Smith, but the manner in which they were achieved uncovered marked dissimilarity. Jones was playing steadily and very easily, apparently determined to go for his pars, and, at the same time, conserve his energy for the final rush down the stretch.

His woods were only twice off the fairways and his irons were deadliness itself. As a matter of fact, a little of his usual wizardry on the greens would have brought him to the ninth with a score that would have ruined the course record. He was putting soundly, but not brilliantly.

Smith, on the other hand, had to resort to his stroke-saving mashie niblick to hit two great approaches for his birdies at the fourth and sixth, while at the

TO PRE-EMPT COMPLETE TICKET

Will Offer Places Upon It to All Republican Victors in Primaries, He Announces

MILFORD, Pa., July 10.—(AP.)—Gifford Pinchot announced today that he is preparing to run for governor as an independent, because of the uncertainty regarding the Republican nomination which he won on the face of the returns in the May primary.

The former governor declared that the situation makes it necessary for his friends and himself to pre-empt a ticket, state-wide and in every congressional, senatorial and legislative district, at the proper moment, on which all Republicans nominated at the primary will be offered places.

Pinchot won the Republican nomination, on the face of the official returns, by about 20,000 over Francis Shunk Brown, of Philadelphia. Brown's supporters challenged the legality of the vote cast in Luzerne County, where Pinchot had received a plurality of 26,000.

BALLOTS PERFORATED

In Luzerne, by a majority vote of the court, the ballots were perforated with a group of figures, to detect counterfeits that might be cast.

Brown followers contended this perforation amounted to mutilation. Legality of these perforated ballots is up to the State Supreme Court and a hearing has been set for September 29.

Pinchot's announcement follows:

LEADERS DODGE HUSTON ISSUE

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(INS.)—A Two-hour session today of the Republican National Committee big-wigs failed to produce any definite decision on the retirement of Claudius H. Huston as chairman.

Another meeting, however, was to be held later today and then it is expected the party leaders will get down to brass tacks on Huston's status. The concensus is that he will retire—sooner or later.

The question of his retirement was not brought up at this morning's session, according to Huston.

When the meeting ended, James Francis Burke, of Pittsburgh, cousel for the committee, and J. R. Nutt, of Cleveland, the party treasurer, hastened to the White House and were closeted with President Hoover.

NO BAN BY PARK ON DOG RACES

District Attorney Andrew T. Park has no intention of interfering with dog races at Bridgeville and Aspinwall, or the Tom Thumb golf courses and driving ranges operating in various parts of the county.

Asked today if he would seek to put the dog tracks out of business because of the betting, Park said:

"I am not planning to police Allegheny County to the extent of suppressing dog races. That is the duty of the local authorities. If informations are made against the dog track operators, of course I will try the cases."

It had been suggested that the District Attorney should prosecute the Tom Thumb and golf driving range operators for doing business on Sunday in violation of the Blue Law of 1794.

Park answered that he saw no more harm in these things than in the ordinary form of golf, which is played on Sunday without restriction.

Doyle's Last Words About Spiritualism

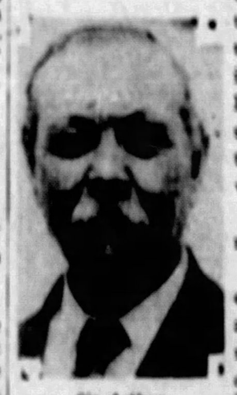
(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Following is second of two articles presenting a dialogue between Sir A. Conan Doyle and George Sylvester Viereck. SCENE—The library of Conan Doyle, one of the world's most eminent proponents of spiritualism, in England. This probably is the author's last pronouncement on this subject.

VIERECK: Why don't you ask the spirits for knowledge that would help to make man's progress less troubled?

DOYLE: If we ask the spirits for some technical point such as a problem in wireless, they reply, "You must work out your own salvation. Do not come to us with such things. Our help takes the form of inspirations. We slip ideas into your mind, but you must toil and labor to work them out." Henry Ford speaks of his helpers. I am convinced that the voices he hears are spirit voices.



Sir Arthur

VIERECK: Modern science denies your doctrine.

DOYLE: No, science moves in our direction. The atom, the ion, radiation, relativity, etc., have conspired to make scientists less cocksure than of old. In many great universities in Europe spiritualism is studied. In the beginning, when I knew less about spiritualism, I was inclined to say to myself, "if the dead have nothing better to do than rap on tables, death must be a vulgar experience." During the war, when we lost eight members of our family, including my son, I realized that this rapping is like the knock of a friend at the door. If you hear him rap, you must ask him in. Many soldiers who have been through the fiery oven of war have reached the same conclusion. Our

FUNERAL FRIDAY FOR HERSHMAN

Pittsburghers, including leading figures in the newspaper life of the '80s and '90s, paid tribute today to the memory of Col. Oliver S. Hershman, 71, former newspaper executive, who died yesterday in his home, 200 Beilefield avenue. Funeral services will be held at the home at 4 p. m. tomorrow.

COUNTIES GET RUM CASES

Petty liquor cases hereafter will be tried in the courts of the counties in which the offenses occur instead of clogging the machinery of the Federal court, Harold D. Wilson, deputy prohibition administrator announced today. Indictments must be made in such cases under the state enforcement laws.

These include prosecutions for sale and possession of intoxicants. Padlock injunctions suits and conspiracy cases involving more than one county will continue to be brought into Federal court, Wilson said.

The announcement followed a conference of Federal Judges, United States Attorney Louis E. Graham, and Wilson, who succeeded John D. Pennington as dry law enforcer here.

Divorced 6 Months, Again Husband of Same Wife

Harry Schreiber, of 5521 Stanton avenue, who was divorced in January from Rose Schreiber, today discovered that he was again her husband.

But it wasn't a second marriage.

The courts did it. The State Superior Court reversed the decree which had been granted by Judge Ambrose B. Reid.

Judge Reid had granted the divorce on a charge of indignities to the person, at the same time denying a charge of cruelty made by the husband.

In appealing Attorney Warren H. Van Kirk, counsel for Mrs. Schreiber, contended the husband's charges were distorted.

The reverse shocked Schreiber. To a reporter, who gave him the news in his garage in Mellon street, he said:

"Do you really mean that?"

Schreiber testified that his wife served him steak when his diet was canned goods, that she came home in the early hours intoxicated, that she once threw a plate so accurately that his glasses were knocked off his nose.

In August, 1928, Mrs. Schreiber sued Mr. and Mrs. Morris Schreiber, parents-in-law, for $25,000, charging alienation of affections.

On another occasion, Mrs. Schreiber and brothers, William and Samuel Bohn, were held for court on charges of aggravated assault and battery on Schreiber.

Carroll Takes Martyr Role As Cuties Scorn Court

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

New York, July 10.—Eight little pretties of showland shepherded by their producer, Earl Carroll, and their comedian, Jimmy Savo, went slumming today against their desires in Jefferson Market Court, the most sordid of New York's police courts.

They are all charged with taking part in a naked and naughty performance of the "Vanities." The case was put over until tomorrow.

Said the beautiful ones:

"What an atmosphere."

Carroll, who made a similar charge several years ago when he was sent to Atlanta penitentiary for perjury in connection with his Joyce Hawley bathtub party, declared:

"I am being persecuted."

Savo, the comedian, said there was nothing funny about the proceedings.

It is charged that Faith Bacon did a fan dance in the nude, and that "A Show Window Scene" in which the showgirls are dressed and undressed by Savo is "immoral." But Carroll asserted:

"Nobody dances in the nude in my show. A good detective should be able to detect that much.

"There must be some ulterior motive. Think of 25 policemen descending on eight young ladies to drag them off to a police station.

"These showgirls are all sweet, nice and ladylike. Look at them."

It was a pleasure. All of them had won at least one beauty contest.

$800,000 BETHLEHEM LOAN TO AID MERGER REVEALED

MONEY USED IN BUYING PROXIES

Cleveland Banker Admits Big Sum in Steel Combine; No Security Required

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 10.—(AP.) — Testimony that Bethlehem tSeel Corporation loaned money to replace that spent for stock by another company that participated in the proxy war preceding approval of the sale of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company to Bethlehem was brought out in County Court today by the forces seeking to enjoin the deal.

Henry G Dalton, of Cleveland, a hostile witness for the plaintiffs, admitted on cross examination that Bethlehem loaned $800 000 to Pickands, Mather and Company after the latter concern had purchased that much stock in Youngstown Sheet and Tube. He said the money was repaid in a few days, because there was no note or security and there was a fear the loan would be misunderstood.

Dalton is a partner in Pickands, Mather and Company, which holds valuable ore contracts with both Youngstown and Bethlehem. He also is a directors in the two steel firms. The anti-merger forces, backed by Cyrus Eaton, Cleveland capitalist, contend he engineered the sale of Youngstown because of his interests in Bethlehem and the ore firm.

TELLS OF AGREEMENT

Dalton said an agreement for the merger was drawn up on March 1, this year, following a meeting on February 26 in the New York apartment of Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem. Present at the meeting, he said, were himself, Grace, James A. Campbell, chairman of the Youngstown company and Frank Purnell, president of Youngstown.

Luther Day, of Cleveland, chief anti-merger attorney, asked if when Campbell and Dalton approved the agreement they definitely committed the Youngstown company to the terms of one and one-third shares of Bethlehem in exchange for one share of Sheet and Tube.

Dalton answered:

"I think you are right."

MET WITH EATON

The witness described subsequent meetings with Cyrus Eaton and said the latter had requested postponement of the directors' meeting at which the merger was approved.

Eaton expressed himself at one of these meetings as believing it unfortunate for Ohio to have an Eastern concern take over the Youngstown company, Dalton testified. He further quoted Eaton as saying he had other plans to make Ohio and the Mahoning Valley district industrially supreme and that mergers of midwestern plants would be better toward that end.

Dalton said he held the opposite view. Day asked:

"You and Campbell and Purnell had been considering the Bethlehem proposal for some time, had you not?"

Dalton replied:

"Since February."

MERGER LOAN ADMITTED

"Then, how did you expect Cyrus Eaton to make up his mind on such a proposal overnight? The directors meeting was to be held the next day—did you expect him to decide in that short time?"

Dalton replied:

"Categorically speaking, I suppose not, but Mr. Eaton knew what was coming. There was no attempt made to be unfair at the meeting."

Day asked Dalton three times if the Bethlehem money was used through Pickands, Mather & Co. for the purchase of stock. After the court instructed him to give a definite answer, Dalton said:

"Yes."

Day asked why President Eugene Grace, of Bethlehem, and Dalton thought the loan would be misunderstood.

Dalton said:

"We thought that under the circumstances in this controversy the loan should not have been made. The loan was a friendly gesture on the part of Grace. He offered it in friendliness."

Day asked:

"So they offered you the money?"

The witness quickly explained the word "offer" was used in a commercial sense. Then in defense of the purchase of stock by Pickands, Mather & Co. said it was a counter act to the policy of the opposition.

under the leadership of Atterbury, to steal the governship is too raw to be tolerated. It is a scandalous effort to disfranchise not only the voters of Luzerne County but the 630,000 Republicans who voted for the winning candidates in the primary.

"Atterbury and his followers, defeated in the primary, now propose to do away with nominations by the people through the ballot. They propose to substitute for it nominations through alleged legal technicalities.

HAVE RIGHT TO CHOOSE

"Such an assault on popular government cannot and must not win. The people of Pennsylvania have the right to the opportunity to vote this fall for the candidates they nominated this spring. Election thieves to the contray notwithstanding, nothing should be left undone to see that the honest will of the Republican voters is carried out.

"To that end, the actual situation makes it necessary for my friends and me to pre-empt a ticket, state-wide and in every congressional, senatorial and legislative district. At the proper moment we will do so, and we will offer a place on that ticket to every candidate nominated by the Republican party in the primary.

"No matter whether the public utility conspiracy succeeds or fails, the voters of the state will thus be able to finish what they began last May."

TOWN AWAITS OCEAN FLIERS

DAKAR, Senegal, July 10.—(INS.)—The entire town of Dakar was ready today to offer enthusiastic welcome to Jean Mermoz, famous French flier, and his two companions who attempted to make the first South America to Africa airmail flight.

They will be brought here by the aero-postal boat which picked them up 650 miles out at sea after their plane, loaded with 600 pounds of mail, was forced down by faulty oil pipe lines.

Mermoz and his companions, Leopold Gimme and Jules d'Abry, hopped off from Natal at 3:32 p. m. (Pittsburgh time) yesterday, hoping to retrace Mermoz's successful East-to-West flight from St. Louis, Senegal, to Natal. Sixteen hours out, however, landing on the water became necessary through loss of lubricating oil.

SHIPPERS HOLD RATES HERE UNFAIR

Short Haul Charge Treble That in Chicago; Four Plants Already Dismantled

Pittsburgh shippers are compelled to pay three times as much for short haul movements of freight as Chicago shippers, George Lowe, assistant traffic manager of the Illinois Steel Company, testified before the Public Service Commission today.

His testimony was given before the Commission in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium at the resumption of hearings on Pittsburgh's fight against the present short haul rail rates.

Lowe stated that Pittsburgh mills pay from 8 to 9½ cents per 100 pounds for hauls of from 20 to 40 miles.

In the Chicago district, he declared, shippers pay only 2½ to 3 cents for hauls 29 to 60 miles.

The longest haul in the Chicago district, according to Lowe, is 60 miles, and the rate is 2½ cents.

William H. Abel, assistant traffic manager for the Universal Atlas Cement Company, gave similar testimony in regard to the St. Louis district.

FOUR PLANTS CLOSED

The American Steel and Wire Company has scrapped four plants in the Pittsburgh district and sold one other plant as the result of unfavorable freight rate conditions in recent years John A. Coakney, vice-president and general traffic manager of the company, testified.

Coakney stated that the capacity reduced here, amounting to 1,500,000 tons of steel annually, had been replaced in other districts instead of in Pittsburgh.

He asserted that the company had located its $50,000,000 plant at Donora because it had been assured of a special manufacturers rate by the Pennsylvania Railroad. The increased rates placed in effect on May 30 have broken this agreement. There is serious doubt, he said, whether his company will continue to spend money to expand this plant or any other plant in the Pittsburgh district.

OLD RATES NEEDED

Coakney expressed the opinion that the railroads were not compelled to increase the short haul rates. He stated that the restoration of the old short haul rates is the only solution for the problem of maintaining Pittsburgh's supremacy in the steel business. He estimated that the Donora plant is now at a disadvantage of nearly $1 a ton in competing with other producers of wire products.

Creative Spirit Assures Progress, Says Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 10.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Following the abrupt decline at the end of the War of 1812 came a secondary decline of prices and wages that lasted until about 1834. It was complicated by a bad banking and currency system. A similar secondary reaction began in the early seventies and lasted into the late nineties. But after these two declines a period of rising prices and wages began which lasted for many years. We are now in another secondary decline of prices, but not of wages.

CALVIN COOLIDGE

However uncomfortable commercial life may have been in those periods of decline, the important fact is that the country went on developing. Population and wealth increased greatly. Canals, shipping, steam and power and railroads were enormously extended. Mechanical invention flourished and Edison and Westinghouse multiplied the power of the hand of man many degrees. With our present supply of scientific knowledge, plentiful capital, able leadership, skilled workmen, and creative spirit, whatever may happen to some individuals and industries, it is impossible to conclude that an end has come to the progress of the United States.

COAL MEN JOIN RATE FIGHT

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP.)—The Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau has joined with the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers' Association in a general attack on the eastbound freight rates on soft coal destined to Northeastern and Middle Atlantic states. The Central operators have a complaint on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission alleging that the rates from points within the Central territory are excessive, unjust and unreasonably high, and should be equalized.

The Coal Traffic Bureau's interest in the eastbound rate case is principally on coal shipped from the Westmoreland district. Both the Western and Central Pennsylvania operators contend that southern shippers have preferential rates to Virginia seaports.

FEAR 161 DEAD IN MINE BLAST

NEURODE, Silesia, July 10.—(INS.)—An appalling death toll of 161 miners was feared today in the coal gas explosion in a shaft of the Wenceslaus mine, near here.

Rescue squads, who labored all night, extracted 81 bodies and reported that 80 apparently doomed men are still at the bottom of the shaft. Forty-eight injured have been rushed to the hospital.

The explosion occurred at 4 o'clock yesterday in the second and third levels of the mine, where approximately 200 men were at work. The blast sealed the shaft.

River Victim's Body Still Unidentified

Morgue attaches today were without a clue to the identity of the body of a man found floating in the Allegheny River, at the foot of Thirty-third street, last night. The body, attired in dark clothing, had been in the water for months. The victim was about five feet six inches tall, weighed about 140 pounds and had several gold teeth. The upper front teeth are missing.

Ruth Elder's Former Husband to Wed

1 DEAD, 3 HURT IN TRAFFIC

E. P. Steltz, 73, of 35 Sycamore street, Overbrook, was dead today as a result of beng struck by an automobile in Sawmill Run boulevard at Edgebrook avenue, last night. He died in South Side Hospital from a fractured skull several hours after he had been struck by a machine driven, police said, by C. C. Sharpnack, 43, of Bentleyville. Sharpnack was ordered to post bond at the coroner's office.

Injured when their automobile upset after one of its tires blew out, Joseph L. Rudman, 35, of Brinton road, Braddock Township, and his 3-year-old daughter, Helen Marie, were in Braddock General Hospital. Rudman was driving the car on the Monroeville road, near Turtle Creek hill last night, when a tire blew out causing the automobile to upset, hospital authorities said.

Ralph Hamilton, 38, of 3263 Parona street, was in Mercy Hospital with injuries suffered when struck by an automobile driven, according to police, by T. Nevin Booth, of 321 Grant street, Sewickley, in West Carson street near the Point Bridge last night.

Hamilton and his sister, Miss Emma Hamilton, were crossing the street, when Booth's machine hit Hamilton. The automobile, after hitting the man, was struck by a Sheraden street car operated by Albert Wilson, police said. Miss Hamilton escaped injuries.

Fight to End Cholera Spread in Philippines

MANILA, P. I., July 10.—(INS.)—Alarmed by the spread of the cholera epidemic, which already has claimed 500 lives on the islands of Cebu and Bantayan, Dr. Jacobo Jajardo, health director, today was en route to the Visayan group of the Philippines. He will supervise the campaign there against the disease.

Dr. R. W. Hart, United States quarantine officer, expressed the opinion that the epidemic would not sweep the islands. Famine is adding to the hardships of the cholera area, according to word here.

ALLDERDICE ADMITS TAG 'FIXING'

and prosecute all autoists violating the state law compelling drivers to slow down at intersections on through highways.

4—Better Traffic Committee passes resolution demanding action by Mayor and City Council for passage and enactment into law of bill codifying all traffic regulations under one ordinance and providing triple-check system to guard against tag-fixing. This ordinance was submitted January 14, but has not been acted upon.

"CRUSADE TOO DRASTIC"

Councilman Allderdice announced his opposition to the Better Traffic Committee's crusade against violations. He said:

"It is too drastic and unnecessary. I myself have fixed tags for minor violations."

Councilman John Herron added:

"I believe the present ordinance against parking is drastic enough. I believe the traffic situation is being handled better every day."

Councilman Robert Garland:

"My opinion is that no councilman or ward chairman or any politician tries to use his influence except for a first parking offense."

Councilman W. Y. English:

"I have plenty of my own business to attend to without entering a discussion as to how tags are fixed."

DEFENDS POLICE

Director Clark vigorously defended the police, in explaining why the public treats lightly the traffic rules. He said:

"Ward chairmen and City Councilmen are responsible, chiefly, for the fact that 46 per cent of auto tags are fixed. When people get tags they go to these chairmen or Councilmen and they have them fixed up.

"Friends have come to me several times and asked me to fix tags, but I refused to do so. These tags are not fixed by police. Police are tagging machines at the rate of 20,000 a month, and I have issued orders that any officer who fixes a tag is to be suspended.

'ORDINANCE A JOKE'

"The parking ordinance is a good deal like the firecracker ordinance—a joke. People pay no attention to it. The fine for first offense for parking violations is too low—only $1. It should be from $3 to $5. Some business men, knowing the fine is so low, will take a chance when they have important business to transact. If tagged it costs them only a dollar, and if not they have beaten the police."

The drive against fixers was prompted by the Pittsburgh Motor Club and other organizations to curb reckless drivers and "fixers."

Rackets practiced are these, a survey disclosed:

(1) Those who park cars in prominent places downtown "hire" a traffic patrolman to "tag" them daily. The stubs are torn up and the matter is forgotten. No report is ever made to traffic court.

(2) Influence of persons having political affiliations is used in Traffic Court. Tags are torn up before they are entered on dockets.

3. Motorists using favored parking locations seek tags once and put the same tag on their car each day. Influence is used weekly to have the matter fixed. No checkup is made by officers on tag dates.

DEATH TOLL GROWING

A long season of lax enforcement has resulted in a harvest of death in downtown streets, automobile association officials declare.

"Fixing" of tags is rotting the foundation of law here, a statement issued by A. W. Smith, chairman, enforcement section, Better Traffic Committee, today showed:

Smith said:

"The 'fixing' of tags is rotting traffic law enforcement machinery in our city government. The machine, started originally for 'fixing' tags on parking violations, has now grown to the point where almost any type of offense can be taken care of. We must remove the 'fixer" and do so at once."

Magistrate Soost has signed informations for the arrest of 75 motorists, charged with ignoring automobile tags.

Checks totaling $1,800 were sent to the state at Harrisburg yesterday by Soost. These represented Pennsylvania's share of fines imposed on motorists in the city during June.

THIRTEEN FINED

Thirteen defendants in Traffic Court were fined, 15 were discharged, 16 held over, and three failed to appear before Magistrate Soost today.

City Traffic Engineer McIntyre, speaking before the Kiwanis Club at a luncheon in the Fort Pitt Hotel, declared tag fixing could be stopped if Council would pass a blanket ordinance submitted to that body.

McIntyre said:

"The politician would be glad to rid himself of tag fixing. It never originates with them. The politician fixes tags only because his success depends on the votes and good will he can get from the voters."

Gardner Gives Suit's Costs As Wedding Present

Making a wedding present of the costs of the suit brought against a North Side man by a woman, provided he married her, is the latest in Pittsburgh justice as dispensed by Judge Samuel H. Gardner.

Joseph Kerns, 23, of 1201 James street, was brought into Criminal Court today to answer charges made by Naomi McCullough, 21, also of the North Side. Judge Gardner agreed to void the charges provided the couple would marry at once. So in the custody of a deputy sheriff they obtained a license.

Justice of the Peace Morloff then married them.

Mr. and Mrs. Kerns, when they reappeared before Gardner, declared they were unable to pay the costs of the case. Gardner said:

"The county will make the Kerns family a gift of the costs of the suit. May you live happily ever after."

Magda, Her Red Hair Dyed Black, Rejoins Carol

SNAGOV, Rumania, July 10.—Mme. Magda Lupescu, the Titian-haired divorcee for whom Carol of Rumania forsook his throne, only to return by his recent coup, is back in Rumania—with her hair dyed black.

This was absolutely established today, all governmental and kingly denials notwithstanding.

Mme. Lupescu is now in this little town, 45 kilometers from Bucharest, on an estate owned by Prince Nicolas, brother of the King. On the first evening of Mme. Lupescu's stay here, she and the King enjoyed their first reunion since Carol's leave-taking in Paris weeks ago.

Mme. Lupescu, it is incontrovertibly disclosed, went from Paris to Vienna, accompanied by Mme. Dumitrescu, wife of Carol's private secretary. In Vienna, she was delayed several days by Mme. Dumitrescu's illness.

Mme. Lupescu then entered Rumania and spent several days in Bucharest, where, it is learned, she changed the color of her flaming hair and for a time went about unrecognized.

The path of Queen Helen, who refuses to be addressed by the royal title, crossed that of Mme. Lupescu on the latter's next move.

Mme. Lupescu's black hair brought about such a change when she went to Sinaia, the royal family's favorite summer resort on the Black Sea, that even former acquaintances there failed to recognize her.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGED IN BOY'S KILLING WITH BAT

PARK OFFICIAL HELD AFTER INQUEST

Fatal Blow Hard-Swung, Witnesses Say; Bereaved Mother Cries Out Grief

After deliberating for an hour a coroner's jury today recommended that William Hartlepp, supervisor of West Park, be held for manslaughter in the death of 16-year-old Joseph Neiberding, of 616 Sherman avenue.

Hartlepp testified that with a baseball bat he accidentally struck the boy, but Neiberding's three companions contradicted this statement.

They said Hartlepp, trying to break up baseball games in the park, took a full swing with the bat.

Hartlepp is at liberty on $5,000 bail.

Edward Orr, 18, of 503 Arch street, a witness, described the blow that resulted in Neiberding's death.

He said:

"It looked to me that Hartlepp wanted to take advantage of this boy when he was down. He rushed toward him. He reached him just as he regained his feet. He struck him over the head with a bat, and the boy fell like a log."

CORROBORATION

Three other boys, companions of the dead youth, corroborated the testimony that Hartlepp had struck Neiberding with a full swing of the bat.

A dramatic moment at the inquest came when Hartlepp was called to the stand.

Mrs. Joseph Neiberding, mother of the dead boy, rushed from the hallway into the coroner's courtroom, crying and screaming, and glared at the man accused in the death of her son.

MOTHER TAKEN AWAY

Fearing an outbreak, Coroner McGregor gently advised the woman to leave the room, and she went away in the custody of the coroner's office matron.

Hartlepp told of the incidents leading up to Neiberding's death. After breaking up a ball game in which Neiberding and other boys were engaged in West Park, he said, he started to walk away with the boys' bats under his arm.

He declared he heard some of the smaller boys advising "this man Joe to get me."

Other youths who declared Hartlepp had struck the boy with a full blow were Paul Gallagher, 16, of 210 West Park way; Stanley Black, 15, of 600 Ridge avenue, and George Davis, 15, of 618 Sherman avenue.

BLOW DEMONSTRATED

The three boys illustrated to the coroner's jury how Hartlepp, according to their testimony, had gripped the bat with both hands and, with a full body swing from the shoulder, brought it down upon Neiberding's head as he was crouched on a knee.

Two of the boys, Gallagher and Davis, declared that Neiberding was struck as he stooped to pick up two other bats, which Hartlepp had dropped.

Young Black testified that Neiberding had tripped and fallen over the bats, and was rising when he was struck.

Neiberding died in Presbyterian Hospital, June 28, from the blow on the head, inflicted the previous evening.

Hartlepp declared Neiberding was behind him and that he caught a view of him with a bat raised ready to strike him.

CALLS BLOW ACCIDENT

The park supervisor testified he swung around in self-defense and as he turned, the bat he was carrying on his shoulder struck Neiberding. He said he meant no harm to the boy.

J. T. Jennings, called to the stand, described the blow that killed Neiberding. He said:

"I'll have to tell the truth. Hartlepp struck with utmost force."

Coroner McGregor interrupted:

"With what?"

Jennings answered:

"With hard force."

SENATE FIRM FOR TREATY SECRETS

Set to Vote Overwhelmingly For Demand Upon Hoover Before Considering Pact

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON, International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—After injecting a grave constitutional issue into consideration of the London naval treaty, the Senate today was prepared to request President Hoover for all secret correspondence relating to negotiation of the pact.

Adoption of the McKellar resolution, calling for the papers, was foreshadowed by an overwhelming vote. The only question pending was whether the Senate would pledge itself in advance to hold the documents in confidence, if delivered by the President.

The battle over the secret documents diverted debate from the treaty itself, although Senator Hale (Rep.), of Maine, chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, was waiting to launch a formal attack on the pact.

FEAR EFFECT ON DAWES

The urgent desire of the administration for secret consideration of the treaty papers was understood to be provoked by fear that publication would force the immediate recall of Ambassador Dawes from London. Some of the secret correspondence, it was said, included confidential reports from Dawes to President Hoover on the ability of various conference delegates from other nations.

Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, one of the American delegates who has copies of all the secret correspondence, hinted at this situation. Reed said the ambassadors to the United States from Great Britain, Japan, Italy and France had undoubtedly sent confidential reports to their governments "communicating their estimates of the individuals named" to represent this country at the conference.

HOOVER MAY REFUSE

Adoption of the resolution will not automatically produce the correspondence, since the President may ignore the request on the ground that publication of the documents would not be "compatible with the public interest." The Senate would have no appeal from that decision, but could only refuse to ratify the treaty. Administration leaders insist they have enough votes pledged for ratification.

SEE TARIFF JOB FOR GILBERT

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(INS.)—Keen interest was aroused in Congressional and political quarters here today by reports that President Hoover is considering appointment of S. Parker Gilbert to head the reorganized Tariff Commission.

Gilbert recently returned from a long sojourn in Europe where he supervised Germany's reparations payments under the Dawes plan and acted as a sort of international overlord on German fiscal affairs.

The make-up of the new commission is one of the knottiest problems confronting the President. Because of the world-wide furor over the recent tariff law, as exemplified in the protests of 51 nations against the higher rates, President Hoover is anxious to put at the head of the commission a man of outstanding ability and acquaintance with foreign affairs. Gilbert seems to fill the bill in that particular.

PAY TALK NEAR AT COAL MEET

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP.)—With most of the important questions up for settlement already discussed, the sub-committee of anthracite operators and miners was believed nearly ready to begin the all-important work of drawing up a wage and working agreement.

John L. Lewis, president of the International Miners' Union and head of the miners' committee of six, received word that he had been held in contempt of court in Illinois for alleged violation of an injunction restraining the international body from interfering with the Illinois mine workers.

It was though at first the decision might necessitate Mr. Lewis' return to Illinois, but inasmuch as no penalty was proposed by the special master who investigated it was thought unlikely that he would return. Mr. Lewis declined to comment on the Illinois court ruling.

CLOCK REPAIRED ON ST. PETER'S

VATICAN CITY, July 10.—(AP.)—The clock of the bell tower of St. Peter's has been restored, together with its massive surroundings of Travertine stone. Two years ago a block of Travertine which formed part of two angels alongside the clock fell and other blocks seemed in danger of falling. The work of restoration was ordered at once, since the Swiss guards had been given a shelter post under the arch of the belltower.

The work was difficult because of the size of the ornamental figures. The wing of one of the angels measured 12 feet.

Another giant clock, in the courtyard of San Damaso, has been restored. The face of the clock fell into the courtyard recently a few minutes before the Pope was due to enter there for a public audience.

SLAIN WOMAN'S MATE MAY LIVE

If no complications develop, Jim McNab, 54, of 159 Wabash avenue, alleged slayer of his common-law wife, Mary Sweeney, 55, has a chance for recovery, physicians at the South Side Hospital believed today.

The woman's body, partially buried, was found beneath the house shortly before McNab, his throat and abdomen slashed as a result of an alleged suicide attempt, was discovered in his bed.

To detectives McNab was said to have admitted the killing. He told that on the night of June 30, during an argument, he struck the woman and she fell down the steps, the detectives said. Remorseful upon learning she was dead, he carried the body to the bedroom, where he watched over it for two days. Five days longer he continued the vigil after removing the body to a shallow hole under the house. There he covered it with a mattress.

July 7 he slashed his throat and abdomen in an attempt to end his life, police reported.

Officials Deny Slighting Negro War Mothers

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP.)—Sixty Negro Gold Star Mothers will sail on the liner American Merchant Saturday to visit the graves of their sons in France, but a spokesman said today:

"Many of them will sail unhappily because of inferior boat and hotel accommodations and discrimination made in segregating them."

Walter White, acting secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, voicing the dissatisfaction of the Negro mothers, said 55 who expected to sail had canceled their reservations and sent a protest to President Hoover against their segregation from other groups.

Col. Alexander E. Williams, of the War Department, declared that the American Merchant, although a small liner, has first-class accommodations.

Efforts to quarter Negro mothers in midtown New York hotels failed, he said, as the managements refused to accept them. Harlem hotels then were chosen, on the recommendation of Fred R. Moore, New York Negro editor.

Officials of the White Star Line, which operates the American Merchant, said the boat offers the same cabin accommodations as liners carrying other war mothers on pilgrimages to France.

Never Lived With His Wife, Yet Divorce Plea Fails

Although he never has lived with his wife, who deserted him on the courthouse steps immediately after the marriage ceremony, saying she was "sorry it happened, and wished she had picked a man with money," Andrew M. Love, of 7550 Dixon street, Swissvale, lost his fight for a divorce before Judge James R. Macfarlane yesterday.

The manner in which the wife, Helen B. Love, of Rosslyn street, Swissvale, left her husband did not constitute wilful and malicious desertion, but rather a tacit separation, the court ruled.

Testimony showed Love met the girl, then 17, at a dance Saturday night, January 17, 1926. Detectives visited him at his place of business, Monday morning, and escorted him to the home of the girl's parents, where he was identified as the man with whom she had been Saturday night. Love said the parents and the detectives then accompanied them to the courthouse, where a license was obtained. The couple was married by an alderman there.

Love said he made no offer to live with his wife, or to support her. Some time after the marriage, however, she obtained an order for support in Desertion and Non-Support Court.

Dunbar's legs were injured in an accident in a coal mine two years ago. Recently he was told amputation of one was necessary.

nitely constructive principles—charitable, and ready to give rather than receive. I would like to live over with him our years of business and friendship.

"I feel his loss more than I can express. I know that every person who came in contact with Col. Hershman held him in the highest regard.

"The community, and all his friends and fellow workers, will miss him greatly."

H. M. Bitner, publisher of the Sun-Telegraph, spoke as follows:

"Col. Hershman was like a father to me. He was owner of The Press when I started working for him as a reporter. Our business association ended in 1922, but our friendship continued. He was one of the finest gentlemen I ever knew."

Attorney James G. Marks said:

"I'm sorry to hear of Col. Hershman's death. I thought a great deal of him as an able, industrious, fair, careful and tactful newspaperman. I had much regard for his ability and respected him for his deeds of kindness."

Arthur E. Braun, president of Farmers Deposit National Bank, declared:

"I knew Col. Hershman since boyhood days. I frequently was in contact with him and found him to be a man of outstanding qualities. He was a man who was liked by all who knew him. I held him in the highest regard."

MAGEE PAYS TRIBUTE

Ex-Mayor W. A. Magee praised Col. Hershman as a leader, saying:

"Col. Hershman was one of the leading forces in the development of the Pittsburgh community for more than a generation. Through his vocation as editor and publisher he exercised great power but did it so unobtrusively that often the public was unaware it was indebted to him.

"In my official career I was often compelled to turn to him for aid in making clear to the people problems that were essentially very complex.

"I always esteemed him as a good citizen, ready at all times to serve the city."

Capt. Tom Rees, riverman, builder and part owner of newspapers of the past here, expressed his sorrow of the death of Col. Hershman, and eulogized him for his unflinching battle for progress, both for himself and his associates and city.

PRAISED BY DUNN

Thomas M. Dunn, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, likewise expressed his regrets. He said:

"We were office boys together. His fine sense of honor and ability to do things made him a big figure in the life of Western Pennsylvania."

Charles M. Houston, veteran newspaperman and one of the founders of The Press, said:

"We were associates for many years in newspaper work, he as business manager of one paper and I of another. When he gave his word, everyone was certain of its sanctity."

COMBINED PAPERS

Col. Hershman, publisher of the old Evening Telegraph, merged it with the Chronicle to form the Chronicle-Telegraph, selling it in 1900, when he bought the Pittsburgh Press. For 23 years he directed this paper until, in 1923, he sold it to its present owners.

For several terms he was president of the Pittsburgh Publishers' Association.

Born in Pittsburgh in 1859, a son of Henry Logan and Lucy Buhoup Hershman, he found himself fatherless at the age of 4. His father was killed in the Civil War. He attended public schools and a commercial college, and at the age of 14 went to work for the Evening Telegraph. He served in various capacities from office boy to advertising manager, finally becoming a publisher.

REPUBLICAN DELEGATE

Always a Republican, he was a delegate in 1904 to the Republican national convention. He served on the military staffs of both Govs. Edwin S. Stuart and John K. Tener.

He was a member of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, Western Pennsylvania Exposition Society, Western Pennsylvania Historical Society, the Duquesne Club, Union Club, Pittsburgh Press Club, Pittsburgh Athletic Association, University Club, Pittsburgh and Oakmont Country Clubs, the Fellowship Masonic Lodge and Masonic Veterans. He also was a member of the Pittsburgh and California Automobile Clubs, the Del Mar Club, Santa Monica, Cal., and the Allenhurst Country Club and Deal Golf Club, Allenhurst, N. J.

Col. Hershman was married in New York in 1904 to Miss Belle C. Boyd, of Akron, O. He leaves his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Madison J. Keeney, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Elda Belle Hershman, of Pittsburgh; a son, Harold B. Hershman, and three grandchildren.

The lad was visiting relatives in Sharpsburg yesterday and it was in the home of the relative that the accident occurred. The boy is said to have found the gun in a dresser drawer.

FEAR RIVERMAN DROWNED

Five deck hands went to sleep last night on the upper deck of the steamboat Senator Cordill, in the Monongahela River at the Water street wharf. Today, when the mate awoke them to begin a trip downriver, only four responded.

One of the sleepers said he heard a splash during the night, and believed the missing man may have fallen into the river and drowned. River Patrolman Charles Snyder began dragging the stream. Boat officials were unable to provide the man's name or address. He was employed only yesterday, they said.

OFFICIALS DENY STORY OF VICE IN CITY

Magazine's 'Expose' Rated Lie When Authorities Here Are Quizzed About Article

From city and county officials today came sweeping denials of charges made by Walter W. Liggett, in an article entitled "Pittsburgh — Metropolis of Corruption," in the August number of the magazine Plain Talk.

Roy Walters, secretary of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, denied his chief was present, as charged by Liggett, at an immoral entertainment given by the combied bowling leagues of the City and County Departments of Public Works at the Fort Pitt Hotel on the evening of May 7 last. Said Walters:

"It's a lie. Mr. Armstrong attended the banquet and made a speech, but immediately left."

'PARTY VERY WET'

Liggett says in his article that the party was very wet, and that before the evening ended five girls of the street were brought in and regaled the banqueters—between 700 and 800 city and county employes—"with some highly edifying muscle dances—done in the altogether."

In his introductory paragraphs Liggett says:

"Pittsburgh's civic decency was on a low plane even before prohibition, that in all fairness must be conceded, but 10 years of the 'noble experiment' have opened new avenues of graft and forced a hothouse growth of crime and corruption, so that today the city can best be described as politically putrid.

"It is very doubtful whether anywhere else in America there exist such debauched, dishonest or utterly incompetent public officials as those composing the political machine which mismanages the affairs and systematically loots the treasuries of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County.

"The perfectly brazen political alliance between big business on the one hand, and blind-piggers, gamblers, brothel proprietors and grafters on the other, has no parallel in the United States today, with the possible exception of Philadelphia."

GIVES NAMES, DATES

Liggett then proceeds to offer his evidence, giving names, dates and particulars.

Concerning Liggett's charge that a number of newspaper men are carried on the city payroll under fictitious names, City Controller James P. Kerr said:

"I have no knowledge of any newspaper man being on the city payroll under an assumed name. I can say that the newspaper men who visit the City Hall and the City Controller's office are of the highest type and would not engage in any disreputable or dishonest procedure. There may be some former newspaper men employed by the city."

Liggett's assertion that there are 13 men charged with first-degree murder out on bail at the present time was challenged by District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

District Attorney Park said:

"I challenge the statement that there are 4,000 slot machines. I don't know of a place where slot machines are operated. We raid on every complaint."

ASSAILS TAXES

In support of his charge that citizens of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County are outrageously taxed, Liggett says:

"Office buildings in Pittsburgh are paying from 50 to 60 cents a square foot in taxes alone, which means that real estate is taxed about 3½ per cent of its full valuation."

J. W. Bamford, a director and former chairman of the taxation committee of the Building Owners and Managers' Association, said Liggett's figures were correct, but that he had drawn some erroneous conclusions.

Commander John D. Pennington added his denial to those of the others, insofar as he was mentioned in the book.

The article mentioned that Pennington's men set out to raid two beer picnics, and that W. L. Mellon was credited with calling the raiding federals away from the Hipper Dipper club in McKees Rocks, where one was alleged to have been held. Pennington declared:

"I never talked to W. L. Mellon about the Hipper Dipper Club. I never talked to any officials or anyon in McKees Rocks about it, or about anything else."

Preliminary plans for the proposed eight-room addition to the Grant grade school, Bellevue, were presented at a meeting last night by Edward Stotz, architect. Decision regarding a new Junior High School is being withheld pending disposition of the grade school problem.

DENVER, July 10.—(AP.)—The silence of Gov. W. H. Adams, in the face of appeals to commute the death sentence of Ralph Fleagle, Lamar bank bandit, has been accepted here as meaning he will not interfere with the execution.

Fleagle's execution is expected shortly after midnight tomorrow.

mind must be attuned to receive a message. We must have a medium—a telephone connecting us with the other world. The conditions must be perfect. There must be someone willing to talk to you on the other side and you must be willing to listen. (With deep earnestness.) SPIRITUALISM IS EITHER ROT OR MADNESS OR THE MOST IMPORTANT THING IN THE WORLD. FOR ME IT HAS BLOTTED OUT EVERYTHING ELSE. I HAVE LECTURED ON SPIRITUALISM IN AFRICA, AUSTRALIA, AMERICA AND AT HOME. FAITH IN SPIRITUALISM IS STRONG EVERYWHERE. A RECENT INQUIRY OF THE LONDON DAILY NEWS ELICITED 10,000 REPLIES. TWO THOUSAND AND FIVE HUNDRED STATED THAT THE CASE WAS "NOT PROVED," SEVEN THOUSAND AND FIVE HUNDRED EXPRESSED A BELIEF IN SPIRITUALISM. (There is a gentle rapping at the door. It is not, however, a spirit, but Lady Doyle inviting us to a cup of tea. Seated at the table in the large dining room, we continue our conversation.)

VIERECK: Has Lady Doyle ever seen the fairies? Do they help in the management of the house like the Kobeld in fairy tales?

LADY DOYLE: (Shaking her head smilingly.) The fairies have never bothered or helped me.

VIERECK: Are you a convert to spiritualism?

LADY DOYLE: I was not fully converted until the war. I was not converted by my husband but by my personal experience and by the experience of a friend who lost three brothers.

VIERECK: Materialists would say that the human mind invents the hereafter because it cannot face the thoughts of its own annihilation and the total loss of its loved ones.

LADY DOYLE: Spiritualism takes away the fear of the great abyss. It fills the heart with anticipation of happiness.

VIERECK: What happiness do you anticipate?

DOYLE: Not singing hymns, or strumming a harp. Life goes on after death. From all reports which I have received, we have a definite home on the other side. We do not drift about like gaseous shadows. Our fate in the other world is linked with the souls of those we love.

LADY DOYLE: Heaven is harmony.

VIERECK: Do we meet our relatives on the other side?

DOYLE: Not necessarily.

VIERECK: Are husbands and wives always reunited?

DOYLE: Not unless they harmonize.

LADY DOYLE: One message said: "Over here the heart is never hurt."

DOYLE: Our dear ones hover near us while love is there. Later on they move to a second heaven. Then to a third and on and on and on.

VIERECK: Does this mean then that the soul like the body passes through various stages of evolution?

(Doyle nods.)

VIERECK: Does spiritualism recognize Hell?

DOYLE: Evil, selfish, back-biting people, people who do not play the game are excluded from heaven. They live among themselves. This is the only Hell of spiritualism.

LADY DOYLE: But they may advance if their conduct warrants. Some may be left behind a year or two, like children in school.

DOYLE: A year or two or an eon or two. Before God, a thousand years are as one day.

VIERECK: Where is Heaven?

DOYLE: The Kingdom of the Spirit may be in this very room. The spirits may live in the same world as we, governed by another rate of vibration. The Land of the Spirit may be simply a fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh dimension.

VIERECK: Einstein told me modern mathematicians include in their calculations an infinite number of dimensions.

DOYLE: Einstein merely expressed what every spiritualist knows. Some time ago I read an article in an American magazine called SEVEN MINUTES IN ETERNITY. This article, written by an American journalist, upon his own experience in a trance, corroborates our gospel. After death the new etheric body lies resting for a time. There is something like a bath in the waters of the spirit and a new birth. Then we realize there is no death. After that we are overcome by unspeakable happiness. I have preached all this for years and this account was only what I have proclaimed from American platforms time and again.

VIERECK: Are you a psychic yourself?

DOYLE: No. My guide comes through my wife.

VIERECK: Are spiritual messages always clear?

DOYLE: It depends on the conditions. At one session three distinct voices were speaking at one time while the medium lay in a trance. The spirit of Stead addressed itself to a journalist present. At the same time a lady spoke, conveying a personal reminiscence to my wife. Finally there was a mother sending a message to her son, an important message, a message that I would like to impress upon you.

VIERECK: What was that message?

DOYLE: "We are never too old to learn a great new truth."

VIERECK: Is spiritualism inimical to other religions?

DOYLE: By no means. The spirit of the universe manifested itself on the earth in Buddha, Moses, Christ and Mohammed. It manifests itself today in the new movement. There is nothing in spiritualism that is irreconcilable with the Sermon on the Mount. The new knowledge fills the old forms and gives a new reality to religion. Religion is half dead today. It can be resuscitated only by spiritualism. The Jew, the Catholic, the Protestant, the Mussulman, the Hindu all believe that life is continuous. But they do not all realize that communication with those who have passed on is possible. Spiritualism is the most important contribution to religious thought. No other religion tells us definitely what happens after death. The Pagans did not know. They went to the Oracles as we go to fortune tellers but they lacked spiritual insight.

VIERECK: May I write freely what you have told me?

DOYLE: Yes. You may say anything you please about me, about my house, you may call me a fool or a scoundrel, but do not ridicule my faith.

(Doyle accompanies the interviewer to his car and waves a friendly goodby. The car is about to start.)

DOYLE: (Asking the chauffeur, with a motion of his hand, to wait.) General Booth at the end of one of his meetings saw a young man leaving the hall. The general stopped the youth and said sternly: "Are you saved?" The young man looked at him in surprise and said: "No, sir, I am a journalist." I hope that your attitude toward spiritualism will be somewhat more enlightened. (He smiles and waves his hand goodby.)

VIERECK: (To the chauffeur.) Do you ever take part in Sir Arthur's seances?

CHAUFFEUR: Yes sir. Sir Arthur is very kind. He treats me like an equal.

VIERECK: Are you a believer?

CHAUFFEUR: It is a little too deep for me.

VIERECK: Has Sir Arthur converted many of the villagers?

CHAUFFEUR: He has many converts elsewhere, but few at home.

CURTAIN.

"The United States and Great Britain will fuse in a new fraternity of nations," said Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in an interview with George Sylvester Viereck which will appear in the March of Events section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

SANDER SELECTED STEAKS AND ROASTS

Ivory Soap is Ivory Soap the world over. Del Monte quality is the same in Caledonia as it is in California.

But meat---well that's another story. Especially beef---the year round meat.

Sander's meats are not bought by phone---the way many butchers shop. Men---with years of experience; men---who know meats as you know your alphabet---they are the ones who buy the meats that are sold over Sander counters.

And that is the reason why in no other shop in Pittsburgh can you buy such wonderful steaks and roasts and chops at such low prices as you can at Sanders.

This week, at Sanders, Beef is being featured.

An amphibian plane went to Smith's rescue. Arthur Reed and Frank Basita dove five feet under water to unstrap the flier from his cockpit.

Smith had 198 hours in the air. His widow and two children, who live in Alameda, Cal., survive.

Man at 48 Wins High School Diploma

RIPLEY, W. Va., July 10.—E. D. Thomas, of Belgrove, Jackson County, at 48 has just completed a full high school course.

In 1925 Thomas matriculated at Ripley High School and the year following at the Sutton High School, but again had to give up his studies by approaching blindness.

He had lessons read to him and each week rode 21 miles to Ripley so that he might attend recitations regularly.

He is planning to enter West Virginia University.

PEACE IN FILM DISPUTE NEAR

PARIS, July 10.—(AP.)—The conference on rights to patents connected with the moving picture industry which was arranged between American film magnates, headed by Will Hays, and representatives of the German film industry, has held its first evening session since its commencement, three weeks ago.

Discussions until now, it was stated, have covered minute technicalities concerned with the distribution of American and German equipment and have sought to unravel the patents tangle.

The departure of Harry Warner, of Warner Brothers, the only large American firm not represented in Will Hays' delegation, has given rise to the thought that the conference is nearing a successful conclusion. Warner has been in Paris for several weeks.

It's Cool and Slenderizing
Pattern 1973
Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

As pretty and chic as can be is this cool summer frock. The diagonal bodice line is always a flattering one with small women, especially when trimmed with ruffled organdie which may be purchased by the yard all ready to use. The front panel neatly pulled seams the figure considerably. Ruffled organdie also finishes the sleeves, long or short whichever you prefer.

Pattern 1973 makes up beautifully in georgette, voile, dimity, wash silk, silk poplin or crepe de chine. Colored dots on white or pastel grounds are so cool and smart. Red on white, brown on yellow, green or blue on beige, white on pink or green. White only trims the bodice.

May be ordered only in sizes 16 18 20 34 36 38 40 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size and simple, exact instructions are given.

Minister Reaches Persia, Bandits Get Baggage

WASHINGTON, July 10 (AP)—Equipped with a razor, toothbrush and the few personal belongings that can be crammed into an overnight bag, Charles C. Hart, the newly appointed minister to Persia, has arrived at Teheran to assume his post.

Meanwhile somewhere in the Persian desert, perhaps in the lair of a bandit chieftain, are the goods he dropped abroad while he made a tour of Eastern Europe. They failed to survive the caravan trek to the Persian capital.

While State Department officials were not averse to discuss the minister's arrival and his loss, they declined to comment upon a report Hart made of his trip through Russia to his new post. His journey through that country was arranged by Boris E. Skvirsky, chief of the Soviet Information Bureau here.

IS THIS YOUR FUTURE SHADOW?

"Reach for a Lucky instead"

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Lucky Strike has an extra, secret heating process. Everyone knows that heat purifies and so 20,679 physicians say that Luckies are less irritating to your throat.

"It's toasted"

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*In his famous book entitled "Foods For the Fat," Dr. Yorke-Davies gives this advice: "Any system for reducing fat will be of no avail if the patient persists in eating between meals." We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky instead," you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

REAL ESTATORS START TAX CUT FIGHT

Property Owners Carry Burdens, Delegates Hear; Pittsburghers Honored

By M. V. BURGESS,
Sun-Telegraph Real Estate Editor.

TORONTO, Ont., July 10.—A vigorous campaign to lighten taxation on real estate throughout the United States and Canada is being planned by the property owners' division of the National Association of Real Estate Boards meeting here in convention.

Leonard P. Reaume, of Detroit, president of the National Association, told the convention that tax systems must be modernized to protect the great body of real estate owners. He declared that 65 per cent of the nation's tax paying resources are untouched while real estate bears the burden.

The report of the nominating committee, which is usually approved by the convention, lists Harry S. Kissell, of Springfield, O., as president for the coming year. It is understood that the support of the Pittsburgh delegation has been pledged to Mr. Kissell.

Earl S. Kester, of Allentown, Pa., has been nominated as a director for one year. Robert W. Semenow, of Pittsburgh, director of the Pennsylvania real estate license law, has been named one of the founders of an organization of license law officials from all parts of the United States and Canada.

L. T. Stevenson, of Pittsburgh, addressed the subdividers on modern methods in the design and sale of allotments. General opinion on the real estate market expressed by speakers indicates that present conditions are dull, but there is considerable optimism regarding fall and winter prospects.

GRAPE GROWERS FACE CRISIS

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—(AP)—California's $400,000,000 grape industry faced a crisis today as the campaign to sign up 85 per cent of the growers in a farm board relief program tottered on the verge of failure and night riders moved through one vineyard area terrifying non-signers.

The Fresno County sheriff's office responded to two calls early today from grape growers asking protection from mobs attempting to force their signatures to federal grape control board contracts. As far as could be learned, there were no physical encounters. The drive for signers was 80,000 acres short of its goal last night.

Prankster Beats Will Rogers to Unveiling Job

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 1.—(AP)—Oklahoma's hard riding cowboy statue has lost another veil. The bronze figure which has been awaiting an official unveiling at the hands of Will Rogers as soon as the Oklahoma range can work the event into his program lost its first veil three weeks ago on Friday the thirteenth. The prankster who removed it was not apprehended.

Last Saturday a large canvas covering fastened by chains under the horse's body was dragged over the figure. Two padlocks held the chains fast. A sign hung on the canvas said:

"A $500 reward will be paid for arrest of anyone unveiling this statue except Will Rogers."

The veil has gone. And Will Rogers was not in town.

His father and his brother said Howard left them at the 12,000-foot level, determined to climb the eastern cliffs, which have been scaled only once.

For 30 years more people have used Colgate's than any other dentifrice ever made

FOR 30 years—toothpastes have come and gone. Now one springs up and bids for leadership . . . now another.

BUT today . . . as 30 years ago . . . and all the years between . . . Colgate's is the biggest seller.

THAT'S a fact worth pondering—and here are some facts—equally worth considering.

COLGATE'S has healthfully and completely cleansed more people's teeth than any other toothpaste the world has ever known.

COLGATE'S has done this for more years and more people than any other toothpaste ever made.

COLGATE'S has been more universally recommended by dentists than any other dentifrice ever made.

COLGATE'S is advised by leading authorities who have been retained to make analytical tests and render expert opinion. Such eminent authorities as Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Commissioner of Health of New York City, Dr. Hardee Chambliss, Dean of School of Sciences, Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C., and others agree Colgate's has cleansing properties found in no other dentifrice.

COLGATE'S toothpaste costs as much to make as any toothpaste on the market. The large demand created over all these years has enabled the company to manufacture this superlatively fine product and to sell it for 25 cents.

THE price is important—but the quality, not the price, has held Colgate leadership for 30 years.

For 30 years—toothpastes have come and gone. Today—as 30 years ago—and all the years between—Colgate's is still the biggest seller.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Understanding Is Secret Of Happy Marriage

Life was a flop and lost a share [illegible] the newspapers are crowded.

And that wasn't the only example of [illegible] Suppose here would be nothing [illegible] tied up doing nothing but waiting for a word of admiration. And instead [illegible] and ask her what she's done all day?

Naturally she would break right down and cry. Did the big brute think there was an effort to understand [illegible] her? Not for He obliged husband on his last word out.

So of course Jessie invented herself to be the most abused bride on earth. And wrote us a frantic letter begging that we'd appreciate her and make all awful fuss over her.

We did. But it wasn't the kind of fuss she wanted. We told her to snap out of it and "act her age." Also how to make Elizabeth with a few sage remarks on "How to Hold Husbands." Which we wish we could put on a National broadcast!

"Dear Sally Martin:

"If you will act for I would like to say a few words to Jessie whose letter I've just been reading. I am 26 and have been married twice so I THINK I am able to tell a few things.

"My first husband was a mechanic and loved to puttee around, making things and fixing things up around the house. I never understood or felt much interest in the things he did, but I never let him know that. And I didn't make a grievance out of it. I asked questions and appeared interested. And when he seemed to want to be let alone—I let him alone. I was only Jessie's age but I realized even then that you can not take up all of another's time or thoughts. And Bill and I got along fine until he died just a few days before our fifth anniversary. We were very happy.

"Two years ago I married again, and we have been very happy. It's all in being understanding and forebearing and you can't expect all the understanding and forebearing from your husband. You've got to hand out a little yourself, Jessie. My husband, like yours, is quiet. He reads while he eats, too, and sometimes gives me short answers. Well, when he does that I just don't bother him. He has a right to interests of his own, and I'm a lot happier for realizing that. If he reads, I usually read, too, only I read books.

"When he's feeling cross, I just don't get cross too. Sometimes I kid him out of it and other times I just let him alone. Then he gets over it, and everything is all right again.

"Just try to remember, Jessie, that your man formed habits before he met you, and let him do what he likes without nagging. Nagging doesn't get you anything. And don't feel hurt or neglected about it. He probably loves you just as he did at first, but he certainly won't keep on loving you if you try to interfere with his habits and [illegible] chilled by nagging and quibbling. It is tears which [illegible] faith and make him think you are a shrew.

"It is understanding him, forgiveness also, Jessie's [illegible] and not be happy and good-natured and [illegible] Of course [illegible] But haven't we all? I'm sure I've got [illegible] of run myself and so have you. Some of you will just look [illegible] over.

"Overlook his faults. You expect him to overlook yours. It is [illegible] good policy which are no doubt much more numerous than his [illegible] Let him [illegible] if he chooses it. He's got as good a right to happiness in marriage as you have. And when he does [illegible] you do the same. And you will have a lot more to talk about.

"Keep your mother and yourself [illegible] and don't expect too much. Mother [illegible] of love much of Bob and you and he will be happy. I'm sure.

ELIZABETH."

That's a great letter, Elizabeth.

You've not only discovered the secret of success in marriage but of success in every form of human partnership.

When two people go in for marriage [illegible] of a business partnership [illegible] or even a picnic [illegible] there must be harmony, tolerance [illegible] understanding [illegible] forebearance if there's going to be any sort of success.

"I didn't make a grievance out of it" says Elizabeth thinking of her husband's interests, which she did not share. That sounds simple, but it is about the rarest thing on earth.

Nine-tenths of our marital grievances are not based on abuse or neglect—they're simply based on the fact that the other fellow is different from ourselves.

If he's interested in something we're not interested in we consider ourselves neglected. If he refuses to be interested in something which interests us, we feel actually abused. How dare he be different? How dare he forget us in his newspaper? How dare he be silent when we want to talk?

Didn't he promise to love and cherish us and make us happy? Didn't he get us to leave our lovely home and our nice job and marry him? And now he goes off and putters with his automobile, the brute, and forgets we're on earth!

So we work ourselves into a fine state of indignation—and try to force the attention and consideration we desire. Of course we fail.

And it's a cinch that no human being ever made another fonder of him or her by nagging and whining and being disagreeable. Love isn't kept that way. Love isn't won by a selfish insistance on your own "rights." It's won, if at all, by sweetness and generosity and understanding. It's won by letting the other fellow be himself or herself. It's won by giving . . . not by grabbing.

Beautiful Women, Like Pictures, Are Work of Artists, States Fay King

By FAY KING

When I see a pretty magazine cover, a fine painting, or an interesting illustration in a book, my first impulse is to look at the signature and see what gifted artist's work it is.

When I see a woman beautifully gowned, her hair becomingly waved, and her gown and accessories a poem of perfection, I am almost tempted to approach her and ask whose work she is.

For in back of every attractive, beautifully groomed woman, who is so pleasant to behold, are the artists in beauty shops and gown shops.

Few women can rely upon their own ideas and tastes in dressing.

The more exquisite she looks the more expert are those who have had her in hand.

Revolver Threatens to Start Anew Old Quarrel

Dicky's frown and the chilly offended tone with which he invested his reply to my request that he unload his revolver before putting it away, sent my memory flashing back to a memorable and unpleasant controversy, we had had upon the subject when we first came to the farm-house. I had contended that with Junior toddling around and meddling with everything he found it was dangerous to have a loaded gun in the house. Dicky had laughed at my fears, and when I persisted, had become highly offended at my lack of belief in his caution in keeping the weapon so well concealed that Junior never could find it.

"Do I look like the half wits who leave loaded revolvers around in bureau drawers and writing desks?" he had demanded hotly at one stage of the argument. "Please give me credit for having an ounce or two of brains."

It had been an angry controversy, one which left bitterness behind it because of the rancor we both had displayed, and the unpleasant things prompted by temper which we had uttered. The outcome of it all had been the building of the wall safe, a suggestion of my father's who had arrived on an unexpected visit while the discussion was in progress—it had been a long drawn out affair of several days—and to my surprised chagrin had sided with Dicky.

"Ours is not an ordinary household, my darling," he had said to me privately. "Because of my work, and that of Mrs. Underwood when she is here, we are never free from a possibility of something arising which may necessitate one of us using a weapon. But I am sure Richard will take all possible precautions against Junior's ever seeing it. And with this wall safe plan, he will never know where it is kept, even if he should happen to see it in his father's hands in some emergency."

The wall safe had been built, and the subject dropped. And now years later, it had come up again with more quarrelsome possibilities than ever.

I was resentfully annoyed at Dicky's tone and black look, but those were not the cause of the sudden stiffening of my body, and the angry throwing back of my head in preparation for conflict. It was the premonitory fear of something terrible hovering over me, a fear that I fancy comes often to mothers when the safety of their children is involved, which made me forget all the promises of "keeping the peace" which I had made to myself at the beginning of my second honeymoon.

"You mean you deferred to Father's," Dicky said. "Anything I said never had any weight with you."

There was something in his tone, a spirit of grieved boyish sullenness underneath his rancor which sud

"Yes, I am going to begin all that again," I told him and my tone was as chilly as his own had been when he had put the query to me. "I deferred to your judgment and Father's years ago when this question first came up—" A query caught at my heart and robbed me of further strength to combat him. What was I doing? I asked myself, suddenly, as I realized that we were on the brink of one of our old seafaring quarrels, and over something which had been settled years ago. Against the common sense which told me that Dicky was right, I had only an emotional and baseless premonition.

With sudden determination I crossed the room and put my hand on his arm.

"That's the most foolish thing you ever said," I told him, trying to make my tone gay. "And to prove it, I'll tell you right now that I'm letting your present dictum weigh several pounds with me. Do as you please about the revolver. I won't say anything more about it."

His face cleared and he kissed me fondly.

"If I didn't believe," he began uncertainly, then put a crisp question:

"What was the reason for the sudden demand? The advent of the Harrison boys?"

"I suppose that really lay behind it," I said. "But, it really was one of my premonitions." I brought the word out hesitantly, for Dicky many times has jeered good-naturedly at my fancies.

But this time he checked his amused smile at his eyes. It never reached his lips. Instead he bent and kissed me.

"Poor little girl!" he said tenderly. "Honestly, Madge, if I didn't know I was right about this, I'd throw the damned thing into the rubbish heap. For I'd just as soon have no gun as an unloaded one. But, I've just got to be firm about this and keep it the way I always have done. But you may be sure, I'll be extra careful to keep it locked away while our visitors are here. What's the matter?"

For I had stiffened in his arms with abrupt fright. Dicky's back was to the door while I, looking across his shoulder, saw suddenly what in our absorption we had not noticed that we had not latched the door securely when we had come in. It was partly ajar, and just outside the doorway stood the small figures of Junior and Roderick.

Household Hints

Add a little strong tea to the last rinse water of black silk.

Dampen the ashes lightly before attempting to remove them from the fireplace and no dust will arise.

Always keep emergency aids in the same place and teach the child the use of these things in case he should need them at a time when you are not there. Many serious complications can be avoided if the hurt is taken care of immediately, and any child can be taught how to paint a cut or scratch with iodine, whether mother is on hand or not.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Eyes are self-sufficient. They look after themselves pretty well. Whenever the lid passes over the eyeball, it distributes oil over the corneal surface, keeping it from drying out, oiling the eyelids. When danger threatens, the lids close quickly. If a foreign particle lodges in the eye, along comes a stream of salty water from the tear duct to wash it away. The mechanism with which the eye attends to its needs is delicate and marvelous.

Here is consolation for the woman who balks against having candles set upon her birthday cake, the mirror magnifies! Facial maps look their worst as we see them reflected in the looking glass. Wrinkles that are scarcely noticeable to the optic lamp appear like irrigation ditches. Pores of the skin remind one of the pin marks in the pin cushion. Beauty blemishes are seldom as terrible as they seem. Many of them in fact are in a woman's eye—don't exist at all.

How to Keep Well

By DR ROYAL S. COPELAND

Avoid the Vast Army of 'Foot Cripples'

Next time you walk down the street make note of the persons who appear to have sore feet. You will marvel at the numbers of limping, hobbling, mincing foot cripples.

DR. COPELAND

There are many causes: Corns, bunions, in-growing toe-nails, callouses, scraped heels. One or more of these ailments will make the feet sore and incapable of normal use.

There are two reasons for all such disturbances. Neglect of the feet and the wrong sort of shoes—in one of these lies the trouble.

When you go to bed at night or get up in the morning, you do not fail to wash the face and hands. Why should not the feet have an equal share of attention? They travel in dust and dirt, in wind and water. Their use is such that a single day will soil them far more than the hands. On this account they should be bathed in water with soap. Each day should see the feet thoroughly cleansed. To soak them in salt and water will relive many an ache and pain.

There should be regular trimming of the nails. If done carefully, shaving of the corns and removal of the callouses will do much to promote happiness. If you do not feel competent to treat your own feet you may consult a "podiatrist" or trained chiropodist. A dollar or two paid him will prove to be a profitable investment.

But even though you wash, dry and powder your feet regularly, they will continue to bother you if they are not well shod. It pays to purchase good shoes. Don't be coaxed into taking any others.

The writings and preachings of health experts have taught the public to read the labels on food packages. It has come to be known that what you eat is vitally important. It is time now to teach the public that there is much to learn about shoes.

It is a good thing to talk to your dealer and find out what is a good shoe and what isn't. He will gladly point out the many valuable points about the fitting of your foot covering.

Read the newspapers and magazines. Study the advertisments. You can learn much in this way about everything you intend to purchase.

When you are attracted by the statements made about this shoe or that go to the store where it is sold. See how the article looks. Try on the shoes, both shoes, and see how they feel and look. Make sure of fit and quality.

It pays to care for the feet. You have but two and will never have more. You may be uncomfortable whenever you walk. If this is the case it is probable your shoes are wrong. Take the best of care of your feet and they will serve you well all your life.

Answers to Health Queries

M. S. D. Q.—What do you advise for asthma?

A.—I would suggest that you have your teeth, tonsils, nasal sinuses and urine examined. Constipation should be corrected. Avoid dust and violent exertion. Take lots of fresh air day and night. In all probability you suffer from some form of food poisoning. Strange as this may seem, asthma is frequently due to one of the common foods acting as an irritant to the system.

Mrs. A. B. Q.—I cannot walk any distance without losing my breath. I am 39 years of age and have been doctoring for a heart condition for two years. What would you advise?

A.—The symptom in question is due to a heart condition. Avoid undue exertion and fatigue and be careful not to overeat. Your doctor will advise any further treatment you may need.

Real Estate

Pittsburgh realtors attending the convention of National Real Estate Boards at Toronto, Canada, today heard the statement by Victor Goggin, of New York, that control of capital is the most vital necessity for the future success of realty enterprises, according to a dispatch from the convention hall. Mr. Goggin defined capital cost as the production cost of construction projects.

The address before the convention was pertinent to many questions which have been discussed during the past year by Pittsburgh real estate operators.

In dealing with the way in which architects and designers of buildings can help to reduce capital costs, Mr. Goggin urged that the architect design more from line and proportion than from material and that above the 60-foot line he consider carefully his design in relation to cost.

Mr. Goggin further reminded his audience that good building plans never become obsolete, and he decried what he termed "the sports model building" which, from its freakish and faddish type of architecture, does not long stay in popularity.

Gribbin Company through John J. McKenna, sold for John Brady to Matthew Crivella a lot 20 by 70 feet improved with a frame dwelling at 3823 Liberty avenue, for $5,252.

The Brentwood Land Company has bought a frontage of 427 feet in Kestner avenue, Brentwood borough, from Nelson F. Wilburn. The street is being paved and the property will be subdivided and sold in building lots.

A frame dwelling of six rooms on a lot 130 by 142 feet in Sedgwick street, Millvale, has been sold by John Bender to Charles Roth at private terms.

A property in Marlboro avenue, Wilkinsburg, embracing a lot 40 by 100 feet, has been transferred by Robert F. Hunt to Charles Thomas. The consideration is not disclosed.

E. Crump, Jr., has made application for a permit to erect a brick dwelling at 5480 Fairoaks street, Fourteenth Ward, at an estimated cost of $12,000.

Application has been filed by Herd Homes, Inc., for a permit to erect two brick dwellings at 172 7-29 Stratmore avenue, Twenty-eighth Ward. The estimated cost is $10,000.

"KONJOLA DID ME MORE GOOD THAN I HOPED FOR"

Man Tells How Rheumatism, Neuritis and Stomach Ailments Were Banished Through Power of New Medicine.

Though it may often appear strange, it is still true that Konjola, the most highly praised American medicine, has won many of its outstanding triumphs over the ailments of the aged. Ailments that had hung on year after year, defying and resisting all measures taken for relief. Yet this does not appear so remarkable after all, when one considers that Konjola is a scientifically blended compound of 32 ingredients, 22 of which are the juices of roots and herbs long known for their medicinal value.

A real test of Konjola in stubborn cases should consist of a treatment over a period of from six to eight weeks. The first bottle should begin the work of cleansing the system. As the treatment is continued, the poisons responsible for rheumatism and neuritis are eliminated and Nature is free to begin her work of restoring abundant health. The case of Mr. Firmon J. Jones, Scenery Hill, Washington, near Pittsburgh, clearly illustrates this point. The Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, knows of many such cases. See him today and get the whole story. Here is the experience of Mr. Jones:

"I am 71 years of age, married, and have lived at Scenery Hill for the past seven years. I read the statements in the newspapers of the good results people were getting from Konjola. I suffered from stomach trouble, rheumatism, and neuritis, on and off, for twenty years. Konjola did me more good than anything that I have ever taken. My stomach bloated and filled with gas after each meal, and I had smothering spells at times. The rheumatism was mostly in my arms and shoulders, although it seemed to be all over my body at times. A ten day treatment of Konjola last fall gave me wonderful results. It removed the gas and bloating and drove the pains of rheumatism from my system. I have told many people about Konjola and I cannot say enough good about it."

And so it goes—Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals—it is all pure medicine and every drop works.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is also sold by all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

Heat Drives Bear To Kill His Mate

SPOKANE, Wash., July 10.—(AP)—For six years a male and female polar bear shared a cage here but showed little affection for each other. The female often ruffled the male soundly when he came too near.

Yesterday when the thermometer registered 96, the male pounced upon his mate and killed her. Attendants said the heat caused the male to attack. Others recalled the six years of strained relations and shook their heads.

11,005,069 Live Within 40 Miles Of N. Y. City

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP)—The Metropolitan District of New York—territory within 40 miles of the City Hall—has a population of 11,005,069, according to the final census figures.

The figures showed an increase of 2,339,361 over 1920, and officials said the population of that area exceeded the combined population of the seven next largest cities in the United States.

Despite this concentration, Health Commissioner Wynne said that on the basis of the 1930 census New York had for the last three years the lowest death rate of any large city in the world.

PHILA. POLICE IN SHAKEUP

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—(AP)—Sweeping changes in the Philadelphia police bureau, one of the several shakeups of the force in recent years, was announced.

One inspector, 10 captains and six sergeants were demoted, and four new appointments were made.

The announcement was made by Lemuel B. Schofield, director of public safety, who said that the demotions were made because the officers did not measure up to what was expected of them as commanders. The highest ranking officer demoted was Inspector Arnold G. Metzger, who was made a captain. The demoted captains were made street sergeants.

In promoting patrolmen and sergeants to more responsible positions, Director Schofield said he wants to make the police bureau the best in the country.

CITIES SERVICE OILS — ONCE - ALWAYS

Cities Service Company is one of the country's ten largest industrial organizations, serving millions of people in 33 states with electricity, transportation, ice, water, natural and manufactured gas, and petroleum products.

Cities Service is no newcomer in the petroleum business. One of its properties is one of the oldest—if not the oldest—in the oil industry. In 1862, shortly after the first oil well was drilled—the famous Drake Well in Titusville—this Cities Service subsidiary began refining and perfecting petroleum products.

Cities Service has a complete check on the quality of its products because it operates its own wells, pipelines, refineries and marketing systems.

The giant fleet of more than 4000 Cities Service motor vehicles serves as a practical proving ground in testing the quality of Cities Service petroleum products in actual service.

Guard Slain When Warden Refuses to Open Gate

CHAPTER XXI.

There was a momentary letup in the fight. Morgan could hear Butch cursing.

"We've been hi-jacked—it's that Morgan—the—!"

Morgan was about to shout out when there was a deafening roar as the machine guns tore loose again. Morgan realized that this was no time to argue and that his life was in danger from outside as well as inside.

"Get Durkin and Petersen and Ripper out o' Death Row!" shouted Butch above the roar. "They'll make great battlers—they have to cash in anyway."

Morgan threw himself flat on the tier floor. He was directly above Butch. The latter's next words made his blood curdle.

"Ripper was to take the juice tomorrow in the chair—I've got a thought—we'll cook Wallace!"

The death-chamber was just off the cell-house. Morgan knew. Two men already had started to carry on as Butch had ordered. They returned triumphantly with the three condemned men, who were pale, trembling and gibbering.

"Here's your chance, boys!" Butch shouted. They were issued guns. Meantime, others ran to the cells and dragged out mattresses to pile against the windows. Now and then could be heard the dull smack of the bullets as they struck the wadded bedding.

"Bring MacGregor in!" yelled Butch. "They're makin' it hot for us—but I'll give 'em some backfire."

The shooting outside ceased almost as suddenly as it had begun. A convict went to the dungeon door and spoke to Olsen, who was standing guard there.

"MacGregor!" he shouted. The guard walked out. The two men marched him to where Butch stood.

The little guard, a nondescript washy-washy who was not disliked by the men, stood trembling before Butch.

Sends Message

"Mac," began the convict generalissimo, "you are going to get a break—y'hear? When we open that door you go duck out an' deliver this message to the Warden. Tell him we got plenty of ammunition to last us for a long time yet. That we'll die fightin', anyway. But that we want three cars outside the prison gate, with engines runnin' an' doors open. Then we want the gates opened and the way clear—clear, get me? An' if he don't we are goin' to murder every guard we got in here. First we are goin' to start with Wallace and he's goin' to sit in the hot square. We're goin' to coog him and then pitch his carcass out—hear! Now get the hell out o' here an' tell them straight—we mean business . . . Butch speaking!"

"Yes, sir!" stormed Butch.

"Yes, sir!"

MacGregor was taken to the door, but before it was opened a white shirt was waved out the window. The little guard was shoved out into the deserted prison yard and the door closed with a wallop at his back.

"Watch him, Hawk," ordered Butch. The Hawk crawled to a window and peered out.

"He's under the Warden's window," he said. "He's looking up and telling them something . . . they've opened the door for him.

A few seconds later the "typewriter" fire started again and the Hawk fell from his observation post.

"I'm not hurt!" he cried. Then: "That's their comeback!"

"Oke!" bellowed Butch. "Drag Wallace out."

Wallace Courageous

The Hawk and Dopey went for the captain of the yard.

"We'll sizzle that screw's hide," said Butch. "Here, Joe—you know somethin' about that Heil-plant in there. Get it ready. Mike, here's an electrician. We can work this kitchen as good as Wallace ever did."

Wallace was brought out.

"Well, well," greeted Butch, with profound irony. "Here's the Old Kid himself."

"What're you crazy hopheads going to do?" asked Wallace in a voice which still retained some of the hard tone of command.

"Do?" cried Butch. "Why, we're goin' to give you the steel throne an' fling you to them buzzards out there!"

"You'll cook yourself, Butch," muttered and stuttered Wallace, his voice trembling.

"What the hell if I do? You never worried about me before."

He stuck his muzzle against Wallace's belly:

"Say your prayers, Wallace—sorry, but there ain' no chaplain for you."

A score of men were at the barricaded windows seeking a chance to return the fire. The machine guns kept on peppering the cellhouse. There were several badly wounded on the floor, and although they raised their voices beseechingly, they were ignored. This was no time to tend wounded. Several others lay sprawled out, and no longer moved.

Morgan could see the face of Wallace. The muscles of his jaws were working spasmodically and his eyes were burning with fever. Butch was directly beneath the tier, and Morgan could hear him giving orders as the men came and went.

Joe and Mike, who had gone to prepare the electric chair, returned.

"No juice—the dynamo's dead," said Joe. "they've cut the cables."

"Hell!" stormed Butch. Then: "Said your prayers, Wallace?"

"I don't know any prayers," returned Wallace, summoning his last volt of bravado. "Go ahead and shoot—the juice will be on for you!"

Guard Murdered

Butch answered threefold. There were three deafening shots. A groan. Butch was reloading.

"Throw the skunk out in the yard," said the Killer.

While they were dragging Wallace's lifeless body across the floor, Morgan half arose and made his way cautiously along the tier until he came to the steps leading to the dungeon floor. Olsen had left his post and was helping to pile mattresses against the windows. Others were busy throwing bedding down from the upper tiers. Morgan darted through the dungeon door. The lights were all out here, and only a thin shaft from the open vent illumined the landing. Half way down the steps Morgan spied Kent, who began to creep further down when he saw his enemy. As Morgan advanced Kent retreated on his unsteady heels. The light above threw a fantastic shadow across the desanguinated, haggard face of Kent. Morgan was three steps above the younger man. At that instant there was a terrific blast and the prison rocked. Morgan braced himself on the other side to keep afoot. When he looked around again he saw Kent running up the steps and out the door.

Another cessation in the firing. Morgan could hear Butch. "Keep that white flag wavin'. Now, open that door—throw him out."

Overpowers Olsen

They were tossing the body of Wallace into the yard! As he heard the great doors shut the firing started with new vigor, and Morgan knew the answer of the Warden. He knew, too, that the ten other guards who were huddled at the bottom of the steps were sentenced to go one by one—go as Wallace had gone, shot down by Butch to whom murder was a thrill.

Morgan knew that he must act quickly. Olsen had returned to his post. He was standing with his back to the open door. He had no fear that the guards would attempt to get out, as it would mean only a speedier and surer death. Morgan crept softly up the steps. When he gained the top one, he caught Olsen beneath the arm-pits and swung him inside the door.

"You flinkin' double-crosser!" gasped Olsen, as he half turned his head and recognized Morgan. Morgan strong-armed Olsen with an elbow hook around his throat, and wrenched the gun loose with the other hand.

He cracked Olsen on the skull with the butt, and as he let him down gently, he extricated the bullets from his pocket. Then he peered out the door. He could see Butch some distance away through the smoke and haze. He stepped quickly out the door and closed it and turned the key in the lock. He pocketed the key and started to run up the steps to the second tier when he saw a figure crawling toward him.

It was Pop Riker, the old guard from the Warden's office, who had been felled by a blow from Butch when the mutineers had entered the cellhouse. Morgan bent over him.

"Hurt bad, Pop?" he asked.

"No, but I can't walk—I'm too weak," was the febrile reply.

Morgan knew that to leave him there would mean certain death when Butch found that the other guards were safely locked in the dungeon. So he caught him beneath the arms and dragged him up the stairs to the second tier. Then he lifted the old fellow in his arms and laid him on a bunk in the first cell.

As he turned to go out he saw through the smoke a figure crouched in the back of the cell. He looked more closely and saw that it was Kent.

THE OFFICE WIFE

CHAPTER XXX.

Anne went and put cold water on her wrists and forehead. She saw in the long mirror the blue eyes that had darkened to black and were blazing with excitement; she saw the red lips that shook and the cheeks that flushed and paled.

"Fool!" she told herself.

She had not seen him since the day she left his office. Not many weeks, yet an eternity, and still too soon; too soon for her peace of mind—and for Ted's peace of heart.

When she returned to her desk he had gone.

McPherson remarked in that careless, familiar, yet indifferent way he had with her: "Eaton looks badly, don't you think?"

She responded that she had not noticed, wondering that McPherson couldn't see that she lied. For was not every altered line, every haggard trace in Eaton's face known to her in the first moment she'd looked at him again?

"Funny thing," went on McPherson casually, "that wife of his divorcing him so suddenly and quietly. Good-looking woman. I met her several times before his uncle's death, at a time when he took her around a good deal to dinners and what not. She stopped that when he reached his present job. I hear he's been hitting it up since she left him. One wonders what's in back of it. Well, I suppose he'll marry again, some little snip, pretty as paint and shallow as a saucer."

"Why should you suppose that?" Anne wanted to know.

"Oh, because that's the sort of thing men nearing 40 usually do. It appears to be routine. They marry, quite young, a suitable wife. Then, for some reason, they dissolve the marriage. And they're lonely. So they look around. And there are plenty of girls waiting for just such a psychological moment."

"That is a generalization," said Anne shortly. "And generalizations are apt to be wrong."

"Well, you know him better than I do," McPherson admitted.

McPherson Anxious

Anne was astonished and angry at herself for her lack of discretion. But McPherson had stung her into admitting to herself something she had tried not to face. Of course, now that Lawrence Eaton was free, it was on the cards that he would marry again.

Anne had never been jealous of Linda in a bitter sense save during that timeat Hot Springs. And even then her jealousy had been more a wounding, self-tormenting agony, and had not affected her genuine liking for the woman who was then Eaton's wife. But for that hypothetical, shadowy, unknown woman who might enter Eaton's life intimately now that Linda had left it, she knew a devastating hatred.

And McPherson, who had been watching her face, repeated reflectively: "Well, you know him better than I do."

Anne said nothing further, and McPherson was left with a gnawing curiosity. Had there been anything of a personal nature between her and Eaton? he wondered.

She was, of course, an extravagantly pretty girl, a girl with whom any man might fall in love. Was there, he asked himself, any connection between Anne's resignation and Mrs. Eaton's divorce? But if so, where did Anne's young man come in? And why?

These speculations rather increased his interest in Anne, but the interest was neither personal nor emotional. If, as he conjectured, there had been some sort of mix-up in Anne's former job, then Anne had all the potentialities of a stick of dynamite. Not that he, of course, was in any danger.

Anne Resigns

She did not hold the position of trust with McPherson that she had held with Eaton. Now, coming to the conclusion that she had been in her former employer's confidence, McPherson decided that perhaps it would be profitable to pump her regarding the other agency.

Here he was consciously neither dishonest nor unethical. It was simply of a piece with his unbridled curiosity.

And Anne, who sensed something of this, was not concerned. When she could answer his careless questions without affecting her loyalty to Eaton's business—a loyalty which remained as strong as if it had been born in her—she replied. When she believed that McPherson overstepped the mark, she evaded or said that she was unable to answer the query.

Toward summer a newly organized company, having set aside a large appropriation for the launching of a new razor, teetered coyly between Eaton and Barrows when it came to selecting an advertising agency.

McPherson, with his uncanny scent, got wind of this, and warily began to question Anne as to certain policies of the agency whose employ she had quitted—policies which it would be well for Mr. McPherson to know.

Anne answered him with a blunt denial that she knew anything at all. And McPherson asked her if she was still employed by Mr. Eaton. The answer to that was her instant resignation.

She went home, worn out with wondering whether she had been right or wrong. Strictly speaking, she would have been betraying no trust had she replied—as she could have—fully and with absolute knowledge to McPherson.

But Anne, apparently, had not been able to free herself from her old associations. Her heart was not in her work for Mr. McPherson. Her heart was back where she had left it, in Lawrence Eaton's office. And nothing that she had learned in the Eaton Agency could ever be passed on to a competitor.

Ted Delighted

Ted was overwhelmed with delight when he learned that she had relinquished the position. She did not tell him the reason. She could not afford to give herself away. She merely stated that she did not like the job and was already tired of it. His natural reply was to urge marriage upon her.

"I'll get a vacation during July," he said. "What's the matter with making it a honeymoon?"

Anne put his eager hands from her and turned her cheek to his kiss. "No, I said in the fall. Give me this summer," she begged.

"But what will you do?" he wanted to know. "You might as well marry me. You wouldn't take a summer job. What's the matter, Anne? Can't you make up your mind?"

"I made it up for—next autumn," she answered. "Oh, please, dear, try to be patient! I want to go home and be with mother for a time. Kathleen's going on the road. I'll give up the flat. I'd like to rest," Anne said.

"You don't care for me at all," he told her, wounded.

"Yes, I do. Only—only——" To her surprise and horror, she began to cry.

Ted was seized with instant remorse. He took her in his arms and tried to comfort her and all but cried with her.

"It's all right," he said, over and over. "You're tired and nervous. I'm a brute to nag you so. Forget it and make your own plans. I won't say another word."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Important Letters of Appreciation

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Does the bride send the customary "thank you" letter for gifts to her close friends, or those she is in direct touch with daily?

2. Does she send this letter to friends or relatives of the groom whom she does not know, or just slightly?

3. Have you a form letter of this kind you could send me?

4. Are wedding announcements sent to close friends?

1. Yes.

2. Yes—these are most important letters.

3. No, for really your letter of thanks should be spontaneous, warm-hearted, fragrant of the spirit of you. Make a determination to make your letters more articulate, expressing your appreciation of the kind thought of your friend in planning to send the gift, and thanking then for the gift. Name the gift by name—don't vaguely say "your gift"—and chat about it with sweet informality. Speak of its beauty, enthusiastically, and how you plan to use it in your new home. Make the sender glad and happy that she or he has sent that particular gift, proud of the choice.

4. If you are sending wedding invitations, wedding announcements are sent to those whom you are not sending invitations. If you are not sending invitations, announcements are sent to your list of relatives and friends.

These Modern Wives

When a popular bachelor marries, it is not in order to escape loneliness, but in order to achieve it. He is looking not much for a soulmate as for an alibi.

The nicest thing you can say of a woman is that she is lovable; the nicest thing you can say of a man is that he is livable.

Long engagements and long marriages went out of fashion when the blacksmith shop gave way to the filling station and the muffin-ring resigned in favor of the electric toaster.

Sometimes you meet a woman who was born with a silver spoon in her mouth, and sometimes you meet one who seems to have been born with a passkey to the masculine heart, in her hand.

It may be just his gambling spirit—but one of man's favorite stunts is to marry a woman with a deep violet past, and then try to make her over into a baby-blue pattern.

A woman never knows just how long her parking-time in a man's heart will be; but, once she gets into his imagination, she sticks like chewing gum on the shoe. Nothing but time will remove her.

To keep the modern woman in the kitchen, you will either have to put the kitchen in the car or turn it into a beauty-parlor.

No man can understand why the sight of an innocent squirrel scampering up a tree in mid-July should remind a woman that he promised her a new fur coat for Christmas. But that's just the irrelevant way in which a woman's mind works.

If his wife were content to keep up with the Joneses, a man wouldn't mind. It's her determination to make the Joneses look like small potatoes that flattens him out against the grindstone.

W. VA. TO ISSUE BRIDGE BONDS

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 10.—(AP).—Plans for a $1,500,000 bond issue to provide funds to purchase one toll bridge and finance the construction of two others, were announced by the State Bridge Commission.

The commission plans to purchase the Cabin Creek toll bridge in Kanawha County and construct bridges at St. Albans, Kanawha County, and Point Pleasant, Mason County. All of the bridges will cross the Great Kanawha River and will be operated by the commission until sums derived from the tolls are sufficient to retire the bonds, at which time the bridges will be made toll free.

Bids of the bonds, the commission said, will be opened August 1, and bids for the construction of the St. Albans and Point Pleasant bridges will be called for shortly thereafter.

DUBLIN, July 10.—(AP.)—The Senate discussed a motion for free trade within the British Empire. Senator Johnson, a Laborite, opposed the motion, saying it was a sure way to create an atmosphere leading up to a naval war with the United States.

Minister of Commerce McMilligan said the Irish Free State would go to the Imperial conference with an open mind.

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP.)—"Bootleg liquor is playing havoc with the eyes of thousands of American people," said Dr. John J. Hogan, New York eye specialist, before sailing for a tour of Europe.

Dr. Hogan, who has been John D. Rockefeller's oculist for 38 years, said most of the cases are atrophy of the retina and of the optic nerve, which, he said, is caused by drinking bad liquor. Many of the patients are in a deplorable condition and total blindness frequently results, he declared.

Ann Harding

in "HOLIDAY"

Coming Next Week to the Stanley Theater

You all remember Ann Harding, the charming star of "Condemned" and "Paris Bound." You will all want to see her in her latest picture, "Holiday," which starts Thursday at the Stanley Theater.

One Hundred Readers of the Sun-Telegraph Classified Ads Will See Her as the Guest of the Sun-Telegraph.

You have been told many times of the wonderful opportunities to save time and money advertised in the Sun-Telegraph Classified Ads. The idea of this contest is to prove it to you. Here's how! Starting today and continuing for the next three days, the Sun-Telegraph will give Two Theater Tickets to each of the twelve persons who select the Four Best Bargains advertised in the Classified Section of the current issue of the Sun-Telegraph. In addition there will be a Cash Prize of $10, each day, to the person who submits the best of the twelve prize-winning answers.

The contest is really very simple. All you need to do is to go through the Classified Ads carefully. Select the ads which appeal to you as unusual bargains, whether they tell you about a house in Crafton that can be rented for $25 per month, where you can buy a $135 saxophone for $35, or a special price on a used car. When you have decided on the best offers, copy the ads or cut them out and paste them on a piece of paper. Then after each ad write a brief paragraph of not more than fifty words telling why you think it to be one of the Best Bargains offered for the day. Remember, thirteen prizes are offered for each day and it will be easy to win. Before you start, read the following rules carefully:

RULES OF THE CONTEST.

1. Select from today's Classified Section Four (4) Ads which you think are the Four Best Bargains offered today.

2. Copy the Ads as they appear or cut them out and paste them on a piece of paper.

3. Write a brief paragraph of not more than fifty words on each ad, telling why you think it is one of the best bargains offered today.

4. Neatness is important as it will be one of the important factors in determining the winners.

5. Date your presentation carefully and mail it not later than noon of the day following the day the ads appeared.

6. Address all replies to The Manager, Classified Department, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

7. Thirteen prizes will be given each day. There will be Twelve Prizes of Two Guest Tickets to the Stanley Theater and one cash Prize of $10 cash, to the reply judged to be the best of the twelve prize winning answers.

8. In the event of a tie duplicate awards will be given to each of the tying contestants.

9. Replies will be judged and the Winners Announced in the Classified Section just as soon as possible after the replies have had time to reach this office. Watch for the announcements.

PLANES AIDING BOULDER DAM SURVEYS

Aviators Aiding W. R. Young, U. S. Engineer, to Lay Out Highways and Town Site

Universal Service.

LAS VEGAS, Nev., July 10. — Walker R. Young, Bureau of Reclamation engineer in charge of construction of Boulder Dam, is busy with preliminaries that will soon lead into the big jobs of tunnel boring, cofferdam building and excavation for the foundations of the great dam.

Aerial surveys are being made under his direction, for the first time as an aid to the construction agencies in the building of a dam of major importance.

PLANE SAVES TIME

With an airplane under contract, manned by an expert crew, Mr. Young is directing the survey that will shorten the job of staking out the routes for the highway and railroad from here to the dam site, and the laying out of the town site for Boulder City, where the several thousand men on the big job will live.

"What we are beginning just now with this airplane," said Mr. Young, "and the crew of aerial surveyors, is really the first step in construction of Boulder Dam."

ROAD SURVEYS EASY

The highway and railroad surveys are quite simple. More complicated is the planning of the model town where about 5,000 persons will live when dam construction gets into full swing.

Streets, stone or concrete houses, a water system, sewage disposal system, lights and power must be provided.

JUDGE SILENT ON VOTE LIST

Judge James R. Macfarlane has indicated he is not ready to comment on the voters' list of the Sixth Ward that disappeared while the ballot box wherein it should have reposed was in the custody of the recount board appointed by the judge. He also deferred comment on a resolution passed by the county commissioners asking if the recount board could be discontinued in order to save the county a payroll expense of about $290 a day. Judge Macfarlane explained he had received no official notice of the resolution.

W. Heber Dithrich, county solicitor, said unofficially yesterday that the board would have to continue as long as a disputed ballot box remained to be checked.

The board yesterday filed with Prothonotary John Vogt, a report of its check of the ballot box of the Eighth District, Second Ward. Thirty-one of the 195 Republican ballots were segregated because of "phantom" crosses. Seven were segregated because of double markings, and three showed erasure marks. The list of voters in the box contained 202 names while the number of votes cast was 195.

STATE SPEAKERS AT P. C. W.

During the morning session the speaker was W. C. Batchelor, city recreation head, who spoke on "The Leisure Hour of the Child." Tomorrow morning Margaret Brooke, Children's Aid Society executive, will be the speaker. Dr. Howard W. Nudd, of New York, will continue his series of lectures on the school in society.

150,000 VACATIONISTS CAN'T BE WRONG

Again Wildwood and Wildwood Crest, the twin resorts on the New Jersey Coast (25 miles below Atlantic City) prove their claim as "New Jersey's most popular resorts." More than 150,000 happy pleasure seekers were over July Fourth Week-end . . . a visitation equal in size to Bridgeport, Conn., or Grand Rapids, Mich.

The railroads brought 17,000 visitors, buses 2,000; while 46,228 automobiles were here by actual count . . . one-third as many as crossed the famous Delaware River Bridge during the three peak days.

Rum Prosecutor Adds Raid Cost On Victims

AURORA, Ill., July 10.—(AP)—What officials believe is the very latest thing in prohibition enforcement was announced by State's Attorney George Carbary, Kane County's "raiding prosecutor."

Henceforth, Carbary said, proprietors of speakeasies raided by his squads must as a preliminary to entering a plea of guilty agree to pay the wages of the raiders and the cost of transporting them.

RITES SATURDAY FOR CARDINAL

VATICAN CITY, July 10.—(AP)—The body of Cardinal Vincenzo Vannutelli, dean of the Sacred College, lies in state in the throne-room of his apartment in D'Ataris Palace while preparations are made for his burial Saturday.

The prelate died late yesterday of uremic poisoning and heart disease.

The Cardinal, who ranked higher than any other in the Catholic Church excepting the Pope, will be buried, it is believed, with services in which all of the curia, cardinals resident in Rome, will participate.

His body will repose probably in the Church of St. Ignatius. Msgr. Respighi, secretary of the congregation of rites, in charge of the funeral, has been besieged by requests that Cardinal Vannutelli be buried in the Cathedral of Ostia, which he dedicated only a few months ago, with exercises that overtaxed his strength, brought on a cold and precipitated his end.

Havana Policeman Shot by Cracksmen

HAVANA, July 10.—(AP.)—A mounted policeman was critically wounded in a partly successful attempt to arrest three alleged members of an international safe-blowing syndicate.

The officer, Sabino Ramirez, saw four men in a car. His suspicions aroused, he started to search the machine. Its occupants started to shoot when Ramirez discovered a kit of cracksmen's tools.

CONGRESS SEAT LIKELY LOST

HARRISBURG, July 10.—(AP).—The loss of one of Pennsylvania's present delegation of 36 congressmen appeared probable today on the basis of preliminary 1930 census returns from three-quarters of the state. The reports of the district census supervisors, as compiled by the Associated Press, indicated that the current population would not exceed 9,900,000 and might be closer to 9,850,000.

In enacting its congressional re-apportionment bill, the House arbitrarily set 280,780 as the population for each congressional district. This automatically made the required population for 36 representatives in the neighborhood of 10,108,000 and that for 35 representatives about 9,927,300. That Pennsylvania's total would fall within the latter range was strongly indicated by the data available today.

4,000 Pigs Die In Fire; Many Rush Flames

SECAUCUS, N. J., July 10.—(AP.)—Four thousand pigs perished in a fire which burned four farms along Weigands lane. Rescuers were unable to keep the pigs away from the burning buildings and hundreds of sucklings, raised for the New York trade, ran back into the flames and died.

The fire caused damage estimated at $100,000.

17 MEN HELD IN TAR ATTACK

ORANGE CITY, Ia., July 10.—Seventeen men are under arrest on charges of unlawful assemblage in connection with the alleged tarring and feathering Tuesday night of John De Jong, 41, widower and father of five children. De Jong told Sioux county officers a band of men attacked him at the fair grounds where he was digging ditches, bound him and drove him into the country, where he was smeared with tar and feathered.

Deputy Sheriff Harry Dykstra said the reason ascribed for the attack was De Jong's relations with a married woman.

Peter De Cook said by the deputy to be the husband of the woman involved, was one of the 17 arrested.

World Famous
COMMANDER EIGHT
Now 101 horsepower
124 inch wheelbase
$1585 to $1785 at the factory

free wheeling is here!

STUDEBAKER, Builder of Champions, presents improved, enlarged, more powerful editions of seasoned Eights—the world champion President, the world famous Commander—plus free wheeling.

Free wheeling is a triumph of that same Studebaker progressiveness that pioneered the popular priced Eight—tested it, seasoned it and proved it to the satisfaction of over 100,000 owners. Today the whole industry is following the Eight trend that Studebaker inaugurated three years ago.

A New Experience

Prepare to drive the most unfettered, yet most obedient car in the world—a car that literally floats along, in gear and fully controlled, yet free and silent as though there were no gears!

You shift with silence and safety from high to second, back and forth, at any speed—forty, fifty miles an hour—and never touch the clutch!

The instant you lift your foot from the throttle, no matter how swiftly you may be traveling, your engine drops to idling speed—with no forcing of the engine by car momentum—with no sensation of "piling up".

You know, of course, that Studebaker Eights hold many world records for speed and endurance and more American stock car records than all other makes combined. But the increased power of the great Studebaker Eight engines which drive these new cars is a revelation. You marvel at the extra smoothness made possible by a nine-bearing crankshaft.

Save Money, Too

With free wheeling, you save 12% on gasoline, 20% on oil—and the heavier the traffic the greater the saving. Carbon is reduced. The terrific reversional strains thrown on rear axle, universal joints, clutch and transmission of an ordinary car are utterly unknown.

You are ready for any emergency of road or traffic on the instant. No sudden grabbing of new Duo Servo brakes—no swerving. Instead, a smooth and reassuring drop in speed—swift as your need dictates.

Your steering gear rights itself after a turn—automatically the car swings to "straight ahead". Your car, floating at each spring-end on oil-sealed ball bearings, rides friction-free.

Enviable in Appearance

All the new delights of free wheeling are yours as the crowning achievement of Studebaker's 78 years of manufacturing integrity. They are yours in new bodies designed to interpret the very spirit of free wheeling—with new Ovaloid headlamps—with new parking lights glimmering on broad, sweeping fenders—with closed cars wired for quick radio installation.

Visit the nearest Studebaker salesroom. Drive one of the New Series Studebaker President or Commander Eights. Get a first hand experience with free wheeling. We promise you the thrill of your life!

New beauties of coachcraft, within and without—new ultra-modern radiator treatment—new Ovaloid headlamps—new fender parking lamps—new harmonies of color—nine-bearing crankshaft—new anti-wheelfight spring suspension—Le Modern bumpers—new self-righting steering gear—duplex carburetion—full-power muffler—non-glare windshield with safety glass—closed bodies wired for radio installation—new Duo Servo brakes with molded lining—Lanchester vibration damper—ball bearing spring suspension—thermostatically controlled cooling with high turbulence radiator air deflectors—air, gasoline and oil filters—coincidental steering-ignition lock—rubber engine mountings—adjustable front seat—new carburetor silencer—one-piece steel core steering wheel.

Shift from high to second at Forty···Fifty miles per hour and never touch the clutch!

Saves 12% on gas, 20% on oil—even more in heavy traffic···· Reduces carbon, lessens strain on engine and transmission

You don't have to touch the clutch except to start or back up

Your car momentum never forces your engine — no sensation of "piling up" when you decelerate···You literally glide along

Your car is surprisingly quiet in every speed···· uncannily silent when you're free wheeling

You are safer because you have absolute control of your car··· You can shift at any speed···· There is less hazard of skidding!

GOSSIP FROM MOVIE CAPITAL ALONG WITH LOCAL AMUSEMENT NOTES

Sharp Satire on Movie Colony to Be Made Motion Picture

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 10.

Everything appears to be grist to the movie mills. Howard Hughes, young producer of "Hell's Angels," has just bought the motion picture rights to "Queer People," the cruelest satire yet written on Hollywood.

The two young authors of this book have dipped their pens in gall, and have turned out what, to my mind, is a very unfair picture of the film colony, and particularly of the newspaper folk who report the doings of the stars.

It is difficult to see how Mr. Hughes will get a satisfactory picture out of this book as sat[illegible] in any form, has persistently [illegible] all screen experimenters. Mr. Hughes however has a pet[illegible] for it. He already owns film rights to "The Front Page," and presumably will produce it, though the play has been in his possession now for a long time.

Do you remember Raymond McKee who used to be a well-known actor in the silent pictures? He's turned out to be an excellent writer of detective stories. First he sold a story to Chandler Sprague, which was followed by a short story in Hunt. Lately he's become a song writer. What is more important, he's written the words and music of a hit, "Caribbean Sea."

Raymond McKee

On Sunday last, Harold Lloyd entertained 50 guests at his estate in Beverly Hills. Few hosts are able to offer such a varied program of entertainment. There was tennis, golf on Harold's private nine-hole course, swimming in a huge pool and canoeing on the stream that meanders through the estate grounds.

As a novelty, Harold provided a diver's helmet and those who were curious about the sensation of walking under water donned the helmet and explored the bottom of the pool.

Sally Blane

Many of film-[illegible]'s prominent names were on the guest list. There were Colleen Moore and Willis Goldbeck, scenarist; Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, Sally Blane and Tom Waring, who are seen together these days; May Allison and James Quirk, Carey Wilson and Carmelita Geraghty, May McAvoy and her husband, Maurice Cleary. Billie [illegible] dropped off. Children like actors, Harold's Mary Sunday and many others.

But the way Harold is almost through with the shooting of Feet First. He starts on the last episode this week. It's a new thrill sequence that will attempt to top the dizzy adventures of Safety Last.

Sydney Rosenberg takes exception to remarks in this and other columns about picture celebrities that evaporate when the water hits them. He has been in the business for years, and will be given the opportunity to prove it to the next day's Look out for the fireworks.

Paramount has a shrewd policy of [illegible] trademarks for its stars. Charles Buddy Rogers is known everywhere as America's Boy Friend. Jack Oakie is the latest to take a cat name. He's to be exploited as America's Joy Friend.

Lubitsch has seen the last of Ronald Colman for some time. The Samuel Goldwyn star is back in Hollywood with the last half of the script that has been written for him by the British playwright, Frederick Lonsdale. Two other well-known members of the film colony were Ronald's fellow passengers on his return trip. They were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Torrence. Lex Ronald. They've been abroad for a leisurely tour. That reminds me. Clarence Brown, the director, will extend his stay in Europe for several weeks. He is touring Europe by plane, having shipped his favorite machine to the continent.

Ronald Colman

In a survey made by Paramount it was discovered that children have been driven away from the theaters by the talkies. According to the report, they now attend the westerns and very little else. This is the prime reason I'm told, for the forthcoming production of Tom Sawyer, Huckleberry Finn and Skippy.

After all, it is easy to understand why young audiences have dropped off. Children like action and the talkies have notoriously failed to provide it.

Universal's "All Quiet on the Western Front" has meant a great deal to the group of boys who contributed such fine performances as the doomed German soldiers.

William Bakewell is the latest to get a good part. He has been signed by United Artists to play the juvenile lead in "The Bat Whispers," Roland West's forthcoming mystery talkie.

Soviet Picture To Show in School

A Pravment of an Empire" claimed to be the outstanding cinema achievement produced in the Soviet Union, will be presented in the Schenley High School auditorium, Oakland avenue and Bigelow boulevard, Friday evening. It deals with a sergeant of the old regime who had lost his memory during the early part of the World War and regained it 15 years later in a Soviet environment.

Kalmar and Ruby, the writers of the RKO film-ema that will star Amos 'n Andy, offer the one about the dialectician who had been haggling over the tape in a store. Youth Accidentally Shot, Recovering

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., July 10.

Robert, 17, son of William H. Bontage, is recovering from a bullet wound in the leg sustained while shooting with a revolver at the Bontage summer home on the Ellwood City road.

"Oy!" he oy'd as he turned to the other customers, "this is somting tarrible. Look what's heppening! Millions, billions. Wiped out in just a few seconds. I wish I had ten per cent of what pipple lust today."

"Yes," said a listener, "and you'd take one per cent, too."

"Not me! I couldn't afford to take less than ten," was the retort. "I GOT PARTNERS!"

And They Cut Corners!

Some of those types that tell the other fellow where to get off out in Hollywood were gabbing about the arrival on the coast of a New York producer who had come on to "uplift" the chin-emas.

"He's going to be a terrific flop," said one.

"How do you know?" asked another.

"Because I just heard," replied the first with disdain, "that he actually traveled out here in an upper berth!"

Added to our Crisp Cracks from Caustic Critics is Frank Vreeland's:

". . . Mr. Carroll is very kind to his girls. This being a hot weather show, he lets them take off as much as possible. . . there is so much undraping that it might be said that all is 'Vanities' and not much else. However, Mr. Carroll has a display of silks and satins which would make even a bathing beauty want to get dressed."

Cycle of Love

the little brook loved the iris and ... like a slave at her feet but the iris loved a swallow whose wings were swift and the swallow loved a willow who gave him never a look for her eyes were red with weeping because she loved the brook

The Squelch Swelegant

Overheard in a Broadway hotel phone booth:

"That's the second time we've been cut-off. Tell your operator to please quit cutting-in on us and, if she does, that you'll tell her everything later."

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for Frank J. Wilstach's Simile Dictionary: Harvey Carson Grumbine's Life, like cheese, tastes best a trifle sour to those who style themselves sophisticate. . . . James M. Beck: Will have as little effect as putting a mustard plaster on a cancer. . . . Dick Williams: McGorgary's nose wandered about his face like a Kansas visitor in the Museum of Natural History. . . . Robert E. Rogers: Reading a book is like dropping chemicals into a test tube. It is dropping ideas into a brain. There should be a reaction, some kind of explosion. No explosion, no brain. . . . Weare Holbrook's: Blurred like a telephoto picture of a hurricane. . . . Eve World's: As bright as a Rockefeller dime. . . . J. From Gags to Richman

Of course it is all very trying the way the Park Rowgues and the other journalists bother celebrities, but Harry Richman can kid them out of interviews when he isn't in the mood for shop talk. The other week-end when Clara Oh! came to town, she and her fiance, Harry, were looking at pictures in the hotel when the crew of interviewers called.

Richman, who was feeling gay, put his giggle goo to one side and penciled this note to the newspapermen:

"My fiancee just got off a train after a long trip and is very weary. Won't you Gentlemen of the Press come around later?—Harry Richman."

Dream as Basis For Damages Rejected

FOND DU LAC, Wis., July 10 (AP).—The cause of dreams is a matter of conjecture, Judge C. F. Van Pelt ruled today in setting aside a judgment of $1,000 awarded Richard M. Wilson, a Brandenton, Ind., school teacher, who said he struck his hand through a window and injured it during a dream in which he envisioned an automobile accident he was in the night previous.

He stated the owners of the cars involved and got judgment but Judge Van Pelt held a nightmare was an intervening cause and not a proximate cause of injury.

TOLD TO GO BACK TO OLD COUNTRY

World's Tonic Given Credit For Restoring Him.

Three years ago I went back to the old country, which I left eighteen years ago. I had a fine time and came back to work, stated, but something went wrong, said T. Bronisk, a native of Poland, who lives at 268 Third Avenue, New Kensington, Pa. The heat of the mill where I worked affected me greatly. I used to come home too tired to do anything, and sometimes on the way home, when the weather was cold, on the air foggy, I got so chilled I did not get warm for some time. I was told that the climate was not agreeing with me and that I would have to go back to the old country if I wanted to get well.

I could not afford to do that, so I suffered on and grew worse. My stomach gave out. I could not eat, for it seemed that everything I put in disagreed with me. I grew thin and got so bilious I could see black spots dancing before my eyes. Stomach medicine did me no good, nor could I find anything to overcome the biliousness. No matter what I ate it hurt my stomach. Sometimes after eating I would belch up hot sour water. I was told I had catarrh of the head and stomach. I had to drink lots of water and get up several times during the night. My skin was yellow and I had no memory at all. I took different kinds of medicines to get my bowels to move. I was so discouraged I did not know what to do, and I did not care whether I got well or not when my wife heard about World's Tonic, which my neighbors said was a new medicine gathered from different parts of the world and how it had helped another man from my native town.

We got a bottle, and when I tasted it it reminded me of a famous medicine I used to get in the old country. Whatever is in it it certainly did wonders for me. In three weeks' time I began to feel well and in five weeks I felt as well as I ever did. Thanks to this wonderful medicine, I can go on with my work and make enough to visit the homeland instead of going there to find work.

World's Tonic is sold by Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, and all other first class drug stores. (A-34)

MELLON SPEAKS AT BRADDOCK FETE

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

We ha e no desire to stir up a bitter controversy on dirtless steel, but a paragraph we printed about the efforts of scientists to clean the dirt from steel has met with interest but not exactly approval from the Refined Steel Products Company.

Mr. George H. Dreher, assistant to President B. F. Hardesty, of that company, points out that their steel contains very little, if any, dirt. This success in di tless steel was made possible, it seems, by a refining process invented by Mr. Hardesty himself. For the time being, at least, this will be the last of our dirtless steel writings.

Secretary Mellon, back in town, should be interested in the grouse situation at the Rolling Rock Country Club.

It is none too promising. Recently the membership became grouse-conscious, and, grouse being scarce, decided to raise their own.

The plan was none too successful. Seven grouse were born into this world, but, after all, seven grouse are only seven grouse.

Then there was the problem of feeding the visitors. It seems that ant eggs are the best food for the best grouse, so a messenger was sent to the nearby hills to scour the nooks and valleys for ant eggs.

This scourer was allowed a full-time job (title: seeker of ant eggs), but he reported back that there were few, if any, ant eggs in yonder hills.

Undaunted, the Rolling Rock gentlemen sent to Egypt for their ant eggs, the eggs being as plentiful there as they are not here. The eggs arrived and things are now looking up.

We are privileged to announce the retirement of Milton D. Crandall from what his critics call goofy contests, but what Mr. Crandall describes as scientific experiments. Crandall has been promoted and transferred to Cleveland by his employer, Radio-Keith-Orpheum, and he is gradually becoming important in that organization.

We saw him solemnly raise his right hand to the heavens and take oath that he had deserted his activities of the past.

"No more dance marathons!" his voice boomed earnestly. "No more horses-against-men races! No more rocking-chair rockers! No more bicycle riders! No more flagpole sitters! I am going straight; I'm reformed. From now on I shall devote all my time to the movies. The talkies and Milton Crandall have come to stay."

Ray Sisley, the illustrator, who draws for the better magazines, was in Pittsburgh the other day and reached one expected conclusion and one unexpected conclusion. The expected: That the steel mills are substantial food for the artist. The unexpected: That he saw more girls in Pittsburgh who should be on the covers of magazines than he has seen in any other city.

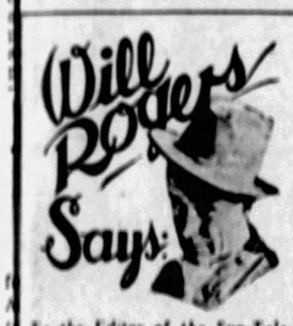
Will Rogers Says:



To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

BEVERLY HILLS, July 10.

My genial competitor for the nation's ear, Mr. Calvin Coolidge, in one of his sermonettes, advises people to spend more. Now, we know that Mr. Coolidge's success has been based on personally following that theory, but my advice is the exact opposite. If there ever was a time to save it's now.

When a dog gets a bone he don't go out and make the first payment on a bigger bone with it. He buries the one he's got. Don't make the first payment on anything. First payments is what made us think we were prosperous, and the other 19 is what showed us we were broke.

Yours,
WILL.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY SANDS
ROBIN DALE, THE REPORTER
CAPT. BLAKE
PRIVATE OFFICE OF DISTRICT ATTORNEY SANDS
RALPH BYRNES ROSE TO HIS FEET STARTLED AT THE UNEXPECTED TRICK
ETHELINE WYNN, THE ACTRESS

What Has Gone Before

Alvin Merle, famous Broadway stage star, is mysteriously murdered in his dressing room after an evening performance. Robin Dale, reporter, finds Capt. Blake and Sergt. Jardin, of the Homicide Squad, at work on the case. Michael, stage-door keeper, and Murray Clyde, the stage manager, are questioned. All the testimony shows that no one entered or left the dressing room during the period Merle was killed. A single window in the room is iron-barred. A mysterious face suddenly appears at the window. It is Parmela Gregory, Merle's leading lady, who was in love with him. In a theater across an alley from Merle's is the dressing room of Merle's wife, known professionally as Etheline Wynne. Visiting this room, Dale finds the torn card of Ralph Byrnes, well-known gambler.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER IV.

It was after three when Robin Dale arrived at his apartment at Seventy-second street, close to the Drive. It was really an unusually comfortable suit of five rooms furnished in extreme good taste. There were two extra bedrooms beside Dale's own room. The walls were lined with bookcases which were filled with the literature of every period, rare first editions, classics, complete sets of the masters, especially those of the middle and latter nineteenth century.

Robin Dale permitted himself one hobby—books. His one other great failing was the second bedroom. It was "a port in the storm" for any pal on the rag who found navigating uncertain (which was a way with pals on a rag). None of them understood how Dale got away with his swell place and he never explained. No use admitting that he sold stuffs to the mags on the average of twice a week; no use bragging about a trust fund income a far-seeing, wonderful Dad had arranged...

Dale loved his work, writing was a pleasure, the smell of ink was a rare perfume, getting to the bottom of crime cases was an obsession....

He stretched out full-length in his easy-chair after setting up a bottle of pre-war Scotch (Mike the Legger admitted he used it himself when Dale got it) and let it permeate his senses still focussed upon the startling events of the night. Alvin Merle . . . many things he had heard in the past ran through his thoughts . . . somewhere behind this tragedy was a woman. Was it Parmela Gregory or Etheline Wynn or was it another not yet known?

He had chided poor Jardin, but how easily the very commonplaces he had spoken might be true. Dale had seen enough of crime, premeditated crime, to know that behind every such act was a woman. In Alvin Merle's case there could be no question . . . Look for the woman! For half an hour Dale scarcely stirred except to refill his glass. Then he reached for the telephone and called police headquarters. He found Capt. Blake still at his desk as he expected.

"Hello, Captain . . . I've been thinking things over with the aid of some real Scotch . . . sure I wish you were here . . . there must be a clue somewhere in that theater. A crime like that couldn't have been done without some sign. When you call in the people for questioning tomorrow will you get Michael, the doorman, in? I'm sure if anyone has the information you need it's Michael . . . Thanks, Captain . . . sure I'll have one for you and a couple for myself . . . Goodnight . . ."

Dale rose and went to one of the book shelves which held a complete manual of the detective novels from Poe to Van Dine. He selected a volume of Sherlock Holmes and stretched out in the easy chair again . . .

The office of District Attorney Wilfred Sands was the scene of the interrogations the following morning. Robin Dale was invited to be present. It was not alone Sands' liking for the reporter which brought about this privilege; it was a sincere respect for ability and a conviction that Dale would, as he had so often done before, point the way to a solution.

Promptly at 11 Ralph Byrnes was ushered in. Only Wilfred Sands, Captain Blake and Robin Dale were present. After the usual perfunctory greetings, the district attorney came directly to the point.

"Where were you between 11 and 11:15 last night, Byrnes?"

"It's not very fair to spring that without giving me the chance to frame an alibi." Byrnes answered smilingly and then added significantly, "if I happened to need one."

"You know we'd get to the truth."

"I guess you would, so . . . maybe . . . there's no use my telling you." Byrnes wasn't very dumb.

"You left your home at 10 last night and didn't return until five this morning. That's a lot of time to account for."

"You know everything, chief . . . you ought to know where I was."

"How long have you known Etheline Wynn?" Captain Blake suddenly went off on another track.

"Etheline Wynn, the actress?" was the way Byrne answered.

There was silence for a while. None of them noted that Sands had touched a button under his desk. Suddenly the door opened and an attendant ushered a man into the room. It was Etheline Wynn! Byrnes rose to his feet startled at the unexpected trick.

"Won't you both sit down."

Etheline Wynn was a strikingly beautiful woman. Dale studied her carefully. There was a decided firmness to her lips; her eyes were deep-set, almost enigmatic; strength and character set outstandingly upon her features. There was not the slightest trace of the grief one would expect from a so-lately bereaved wife.

"Mrs. Merle, your husband was murdered in his dressing room between 11:00 and 11:15 last night. At that time you and Mr. Byrnes were within a few feet of the scene of the crime. There are certain circumstances, I believe would require explanation."

"Yes?" Her tone was haughty. There was a complacent smile on Byrnes' features.

"The first question I would like to ask," the district attorney spoke in a calm measured tone, "is this: Why, on the afternoon of the murder, did a lady and gentleman lease an apartment at the Seaton Arms . . . a lady and gentleman who answered to your descriptions in every detail . . . and introduced themselves as Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Byrnes?"

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

HOMESTEAD 12-1 FOR REPEAL

Council There Petitions Legislature; Same Ratio Given by McKees Rocks

Results of the poll in the three third-class cities of the county, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton, and the townships of Shaler, Snowden, West Deer and Reserve, will be published tomorrow. The results in Wilkinsburg will be published Saturday and the final results for the entire county on Sunday.

Homestead voters roll up a huge majority against the closed Sunday in the Blue Law poll of Allegheny County by the Sun-Telegraph, as the Homestead council officially records the demand of the borough for the repeal by the State Legislature of the ancient law.

The Homestead poll shows a 12-to-1 vote for repeal, vieing with McKees Rocks, whose voters express their sentiments by the same ratio. These two large boroughs, grouped with five townships in today's tabulations, Mifflin, Mt. Lebanon, Robinson, Stowe and Scott, collectively give a majority of 6 to 1 for repeal.

The Homestead Council, without discussion and by the unanimous vote of its 12 members, adopted a resolution presented by Martin Delaney at the meeting this week, asking the Legislature to repeal the Blue Law.

The group totals today are:

	Enforcement.	Modification.	Repeal.
Homestead	44	29	512
McKees Rocks	48	29	589
Mifflin	25	35	178
Mt. Lebanon	56	25	199
Robinson	58	5	81
Stowe	38	31	332
Scott	12	7	106

The total of 2,439 ballots is nearly 20 per cent of the number of votes cast in these subdivisions at the May primary election.

The latest totals in the county poll are:

Enforcement	9,709
Modification	4,863
Repeal	47,459

PROTEST BLUE LAW IN PHILA.

PHILADELPHIA, July 10.—(AP.) — A special committee of City Council appointed to determine public sentiment on the state's Sunday blue laws, has held its first hearing and heard mostly witnesses in favor of repeal.

Joseph K. Costello, general manager of the Delaware River Bridge, submitted figures showing an average of 22,000 cars crossed the bridge from Philadelphia to New Jersey on Sundays carrying an average of 87,000 out of the city.

The Pennsylvania Railroad furnished figures showing Sunday excursions to seashore points last year carried a total of 309,823 compared with 74,385 carried into the city from shore points.

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 10.—(AP.)—City Council today was on record against Sunday blue laws. Council unanimously adopted a resolution asking the Legislature to repeal the Sunday closing statute, which was termed "antiquated and wholly unenforceable in modern times."

DELAY MEETING ON PORTER JOB

Joseph G. Armstrong Republican county chairman, has not set a date for the meeting of the county committeemen and women of the Thirty-second Congressional District to name a successor to the late Congressman Stephen G. Porter as Republican nominee at the November election.

Porter, who died about 10 days ago, had been nominated at the May primary.

Armstrong returned Monday from a honeymoon and it is believed he intends to defer the meeting until he has talked with leaders of the congressional district, which includes the seven North Side wards of Pittsburgh and all boroughs and townships north of the Allegheny and Ohio rivers.

The candidate said to have general indorsement is Edmund F. Erk, secretary to Congressman Porter for 20 years.

M'Keesport DeMolay To Attend Picnic

McKeesport De Molay will attend the picnic to be held by Tancred chapter at Idlewild Park July 15. A special train will leave Wilmerding at 8:50 a. m. Ball game, dancing and races are among the entertainment features arranged for the affair.

Emsworth Firemen Giving Picnic—And It's Free

Gala times have come to Emsworth this week with the celebration—at which the town, not the firemen, are guests—of the Emsworth Volunteer Fire Department's silver anniversary.

The fire-fighters plan to cap an achievement regarded as unusual, in a news way as a "man biting the dog," with a picnic for the entire community in Rose Grove, North Park, Saturday.

Special free buses will leave Borough Hall at 1 p. m. At the park athletic and stunt events are on the program.

Besides the regular boy and girl races, the three-legged race, the horse race, the pipe, and needle and thread races, there will be horseshoe pitching and ball games. Free refreshments will round out the day's joy.

The sports and games committee is composed of Fred Teutenberg, Jr., James H. Hartley, O. L. Evans, William Montague, J. H. Hack, A. R. McCormick and Chairman Harry J. Schmidt.

BANKER PAYS TRIBUTE TO PIONEERS

Thousands at Historic Event See Vittor's Statue Of First President Unveiled

The dust of the Battle of Braddock cleared today, although it was fought again, 175 years later on two battle-fronts.

Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the Treasury, and an army of notables over the William Penn Hotel banquet table last night thundered a barrage of talks on Gen. Braddock, Gen. Washington and those other warriors of the past who first opened "The Gateway to the West." The dinner climaxed the two-day observance of the one hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary of the battle.

In Tassey's Hollow, in Braddock and Rankin last night, thousands of persons saw the other battle-front. Here, in the valley surrounded by the high hills, 1,500 or more took part in a pageant re-enacting the battle.

SECRETARY MELLON SPEAKS

Secretary Mellon spoke as well at the unveiling of a monument to George Washington yesterday afternoon after a boat ride past the mills of the Monongahela River. Frank Vittor sculptored the statue.

Secretary Mellon spoke on the "Significance of the Battle." He said it seemed tragic, even disastrous—this ambushing of Gen. Edward Braddock's British and Colonial troops by French and Indians. He said:

"It is only in the light of subsequent history that one is able to gauge the real significance of an event which at the time seemed fraught with nothing but disaster. This was the case with the battle fought at Braddock's Field.

"That struggle, in its final outcome, was not only to decide the fate of the Mississippi Valley, which was the immediate objective of both France and England, but was to determine that England, not France, was to impress its language and its institutions on the new nation that was to emerge from the long conflict.

PITTSBURGH'S IMPORTANCE

"One of those who played a most important part throughout this period was George Washington.

"In the Battle of the Monongahela, Washington held only a subordinate military command, and while he had no responsibility he acquitted himself with courage and distinction.

"But it was Washington, in his trip of exploration two years before the battle, and also in the military expedition of 1754, who realized the great importance of Pittsburgh as a gateway to the West, and it is interesting to know that neither then nor in the years afterwards did Washington ever waiver in his belief in the future greatness of the country which lay around and beyond Pittsburgh."

Following Secretary Mellon were Congressmen Henry W. Temple, of Washington, Pa.; R. Walton Moore, of Virginia; Harry A. Estep, of Pittsburgh, with Clyde Kelly, of Braddock, as toastmaster. George A. Todd, Braddock banker, was general chairman. Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, spoke briefly. Attending were representatives of the British and French nations.

Unanimous agreement that Braddock's defeat marked a significant turning point in colonial affairs was the keynote of addresses during the afternoon at the unveiling of Vittor's bronze statue of Washington.

Throngs estimated at almost 5,000 heard Mr. Mellon characterize it as the battle in which young Washington won his spurs. The Vittor sculpture, he said, marked this period. He said in part:

"Here we have a monument differing from other monuments

MORE TAXIS WOULD ADD TO CONGESTION, SAYS MARSHALL

QUESTIONED AT NEW COMPANY HEARING

Traffic Commissioner Tells Public Service Board View on Peoples Plan

Cruising taxicabs increase congestion in the downtown zone, which already has 30,000 automobiles an hour operating during the rush period, Benjamin Marshall, assistant police superintendent and formerly traffic inspector, testified before the Public Service Commission today at the hearing on application of two independent taxicab companies for right to serve the public.

Marshall was called by counsel for the Peoples Royal Blue and and Taxicab Companies, are seeking certificates of convenience over protest of the Yellow and Green Cab Companies.

TELLS OF TROUBLE

Pressed closely, Marshall testified he did not believe refusal to other companies of the right to operate here would mean marked benefit in the traffic jam.

Marshall revealed that before merger of the Yellow and Green cabs so many riotous scenes occurred downtown in quest for patronage that he contemplated asking the Public Service Commission to revoke their permits.

Some taxi stand permits in residential districts were canceled because residents complained of noise made by the drivers. Elimination of certain stands downtown has relieved congestion to some extent, he asserted.

"NICE PICTURES"

Plans of the Better Traffic Committee and the City Planning Commission Marshall described as "wonderful," but "mostly pictures."

George E. Wortman, general manager of the Peoples Royal Blue Company produced in evidence a letter of recommendation signed by P. L. Houston, president of the Green Cab Company, praising his efficiency.

Today was the third of the hearing.

BANDITS STEAL VICTIM'S CAR

County detectives and police today were searching for two men who held up and robbed Hyman Caplan, of 9 Marion street, in Center street, Emsworth, and drove away in his automobile late last night. Caplan told police two men in a car blocked his path and that while one covered him with a revolver, the other took his watch and $22 in cash.

The pair forced him out of his machine. Caplan reported, and one of them proceeded to drive it away, while the other escaped in the bandit machine.

Justice of the Peace Arthur A. Davis, of Emsworth, committed Thomas Daughterty, 25, of 333 Thirty-sixth street, and Edward J. Sullivan, 33, of 3520 Butler street, to the county jail pending a hearing tomorrow night in connection with the holdup of Ward's Barbecue, Camp Horne road, Emsworth, Tuesday night. Sullivan, a deputy constable, is a former city patrolman and detective, while Daughterty claimed to be an employe of the water division of the Department of Public Works. A third suspect escaped.

John McCall, 30, of 2303 Fifth avenue, who was wounded during the holdup was recovering today at the Suburban General Hospital.

FEDERAL COURT WORKERS HERE GO PAYLESS

Many June Checks Not Yet Received; Payroll Awaits 1930-31 Appropriations

Many of the attaches of the office of the United States district attorney and the office of the clerk of the Federal District Court are anxiously awaiting checks from Uncle Sam for their June salaries. The checks were due the last day of the month.

With vacation plans under way and other needs pressing the situation is far from pleasant for most of them.

All inquiries at the office of United States Marshal J. C. McGregor, dispersing officer for the two offices, brought the announcement that appropriations for salaries for the two departments is exhausted, and no further payments can be made until additional funds are forwarded from Washington. It is a situation that frequently occurs at the end of a government fiscal year.

Not all of the employes of the two offices were neglected, as some were paid before the fund was exhausted. According to reports, United States Attorney Louis E. Graham is one of those waiting for a check. Some who were paid have divided with those who were not, and thereby aided fellow-workers in carrying out vacation arrangements, and, in some instances, to satisfy the grocer and butcher.

20,000 SLOVAKS AT OUTING

More than 20,000 Slovaks yesterday attended the seventh annual Slovakian picnic at Kennywood Park. Members of 53 parishes in Western Pennsylvania participated.

Among some of the outstanding events were the entertainment by the orphans' band from the Slovak home at Middletown, Pa.; the native costume contest and floats from Braddock. The principal speakers were Very Rev. Gregor Baniscak from the diocese of Cleveland; Rev. J. Huhra and J. S. Herron, president of the Pittsburgh Council. Rev. Huhra came from Czechoslovakia especially for the event.

The entire affair was under the direction of a committee consisting of Rev. Martin B. Rubicky, president; John Lukac, vice president; Maria Dancak, vice president; Michal Wargovic, secretary, and Andrej Novak, treasurer. The athletic events were directed by Michal Sincak.

Asks Divorce for Act Committed 18 Years Ago

Charging that her husband threw scalding water and a rooster, which he was cleaning, on her, the fowl striking her head, is one of the allegations made by Mrs. Nellie Hopper, 4732 Mossfield street, in a bill of particulars filed in Common Pleas Court in connection with her suit for divorce from John Hopper, Fifth avenue, Moon Township.

The couple have been married 25 years, and the rooster episode occurred 18 years ago. These include the husband having been intoxicated and calling her vile names in a theater 13 years ago, when she alleges he was put out by the ushers.

OUTING HELD BY SOUTH SIDE

The fourth annual picnic and community outing sponsored by the South Side Businessmen's Association is being held today at West View Park. Special cars for the picnickers left South Eighteenth and Sarah streets at 10 o'clock this morning.

Free amusement tickets were given the children. A novelty amusement program, series of sports events, numerous contests, including a baby contest and a beauty competition are being held.

About 15,000 persons, present and former residents of the district, attended, according to W. C. Kessler, general chairman. W. H. Weber is secretary of the executive committee.

South Side stores closed at 1:30 p. m. Among others invited are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Armstrong, who have been asked to lead the grand march this evening.

The Camera Question Box

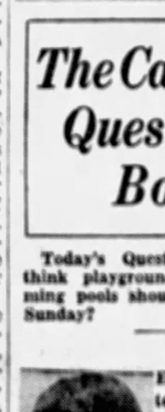
Today's Question: Do you think playgrounds and swimming pools should be open on Sunday?

W. C. Batchelor

W. C. BATCHELOR, superintendent, Bureau of Recreation: These amusements are all right on Sunday as long as they don't interfere with anyone else who is trying to observe the day in another way. If the swimming pools and playgrounds are far enough out from the city there should be no objection to them on Sunday.

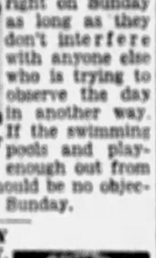
Mrs. Cowley

MRS. MARY J. COWLEY, head of North Side playgrounds, North Side: They should not be open on Sunday. That day has been set aside for worship and should be kept for that purpose. Having the pools and playgrounds closed on one day of the week won't hurt either the children who go there or the people who are in charge of them.



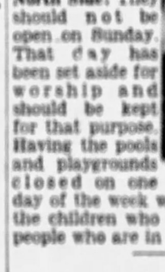
M. J. Conway

M. J. CONWAY, police officer, Lawrenceville: Yes, I think they should. It's the safest place for the children and will keep them off the streets. They have to have some place to play and the playgrounds are the most reasonable ones.



Miss Carson

MISS BERNICE CARSON, Lawrenceville, schoolgirl: Yes, I think they should. If the children aren't in the swimming pools or at the playgrounds they're on the streets and anyone knows how dangerous that is, especially after the accidents that have occurred.



Don Bestor

DON BESTOR, orchestra leader, Pittsburgh: Certainly they should be open. Children always enjoy them and there are many people who can't possibly take their children there on any other day. Supervised playgrounds are better places for children, too, than the streets.

Don't forget to read the Classified Ads. They have served millions well and they will serve you.

RAIL EXTENSION PLAN ARGUED

Commissioner Samuel Walker, of the Public Service Commission, heard plans for the extension of the Monessen and Southwestern Railroad in a hearing here yesterday. The railroad had made application for the extension to link the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad with the Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

The road is privately owned by the Pittsburgh Steel Company, and the extension would furnish direct connection between plants the steel company maintains at Allenport and Monessen. The extension would cost approximately $1,000,000, the road crossing the Monongahela River at Belle Vernon, occupying the lower deck of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad bridge.

CHIROPRACTORS TO MEET HERE

Among those who will speak are Dr. L. J. Steinbach, dean of the Universal Chiropractic College of Pittsburgh; Dr. H. E. Vetter, dean of Lincoln College, Indianapolis; Dr. Craig M. Knightlinger, president of the Eastern Institute of New York; Dr. C. S. Vrandom, secretary roentegenologist; Dr. R. C. Loomis, of the research group, and Dr. D. W. of George Washington, in that it portrays him as a young man on the threshold of that career which resulted in his becoming the man most praised in the annals of the American people.

"It was in the battle of Braddock's defeat," Mr. Mellon said, "that Washington confirmed his opinions of this district's future greatness. The young man's vision saw what would come of Pittsburgh, determined that the district was worth fighting for.

PORTER LAUDED

"It was on experience gained in the defeat of Gen. Braddock that Washington rose."

Preceding Secretary Mellon on the list of speakers at the unveiling, were Michael Robert Wright, attache at the British embassy in Washington; Maj. Georges Thenault, air attache of the French embassy; Mr. Kelly, Josiah Van Orsdel, president general of the Sons of the American Revolution; Mrs. Hobart and Chief Strong Wolf, of the Cayuga Indian tribe.

Wright said:

"Sir Ronald requested me that I tell you of the great esteem in which he held the late Congressman Stephen Porter. An able man and a good friend. Mr. Porter's death is sincerely mourned in our embassy."

PARADE IN BRADDOCK

Scores of persons attending the celebration traveled from Pittsburgh to Braddock aboard the steamer William Clyde, pushing a gaily decorated barge, following the line Gen. Braddock took 175 year ago, it is said. Many notables of the district were aboard.

The landing of the passengers to Braddock was followed by a parade in which many floats illustrating customs and occurrences of the period featured. Civic organizations, manufacturing companies, military and veteran clubs and patriotic organizations took part.

Delaware Indians Warned Braddock of Defeat

By PENELOPE REDD

To one family Braddock's defeat was no minor engagement in American Colonial history, but a family tradition so strong that Braddock's Trail for generations was the object of pilgrimage.

More than a score of years ago, John Harer of the Bank of Pittsburgh, transacted some business for a stranger who had a boy about 14 with him. Harper accepted him as the "Mr. Adams" of his credentials.

"Mr. Adams" expanded under Harper's cordial courtesy and finally revealed the purpose of his journey to Pittsburgh. He had brought his son to initiate him to Braddock's Trail, as his own father had done for him.

"Adams" was the hereditary chief of the Delaware Indians. Half King, his ancestor, had been the leader of Washington's Indian scouts.

Mr. Harper called his carriage and off he went on Braddock's Trail with Half King's descendants. "Adams" told Mr. Harper and the boy that Half King, in an effort to dissuade Braddock from persisting in his mode of fighting, painted red sticks and knocked them over to demonstrate the folly of British "Red Coats" in Indian warfare. Historic results verified his judgment.

"Adams" had a minute knowledge of the event. Not a detail had been lost in transmitting the saga from father to son through the migrating generations. "Adams" never lost the old-time forest trail in the industrial maze.

"Adams" became a leading citizen as Oklahoma developed, and corresponded for years with Mr. Harper.

Perhaps some member of "Adams'" family has come incognito to represent Half King at the victorious celebration of Braddock's defeat.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburghers Attendants At Scott Wedding in Washington Chapel

Very few weddings take place during the months of July and August among society folks as a general rule, but with July really a very good substitute for smiling, sunny June there is at least this one more that I can tell you about that is of great interest to Pittsburgh people. No matter how great the urge to travel, to go to the mountains, the seashore and every conceivable pleasure place, people always pause in their social activities to attend a wedding.

As I told you before Jean Brown Scott, daughter of the John R. K. Scotts of Glenhardie Farms, Stafford, Pa., and Philadelphia, is becoming the bride of Dr. Donald Weston Darby, son of Dr. and Mrs. George D. B. Darby of Linlithgown, Merion, Pa., this very afternoon at 4 o'clock in the famous old Washington Memorial Chapel in Valley Forge. Officiating is the Rev. W. Herbert Burk.

Many Ushers

Jean's cousin, Janet Hardie, daughter of the Walter Logan Hardies, of Bartlett street, as I mentioned some time ago, is the maid of honor, and Mrs. James A. Hardie, of Darlington road, is the matron of honor.

The bride is wearing an extremely distinctive gown, made simply of ivory satin with a high waistline and long tight sleeves. The square neckline is outlined with old lace and a court train falls from the waist. Her veil is of old rose point lace, a family heirloom, and her bouquet is of white orchids. Both Janet and Mrs. Hardie are wearing gowns of ivory chiffon with long sleeves and ruffles at the neckline. Their coiffeurs are of American beauty color, with matching slippers, and they are carrying arm bouquets of American beauty roses.

James Douglas is his brother's best man and serving as ushers are Edward Wilson, Arthur P. Baugh Jr., Fenimore Johnson, Rawson Lloyd Hardie, Scott Jean's brother, and Coleman Worthman Jr., of Richmond, Va.

And of course there is a reception after the ceremony. The rehearsal dinner was given last evening by the Scotts and only members of the bridal party and a few intimate friends were present.

The youthful Darbys are leaving on a European honeymoon and when they return plan to live at Glenhardie Farms.

Federation Starts New Contest

Another contest is being conducted by the division of community service of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women. Details of this latest contest have just been sent out by the division chairman, Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, under whose supervision essay contests on safety and the right use of leisure were so successfully carried through.

This latest contest is to be one of pictures showing community service projects, the awards to be based, not on the pictures as such, but on the quality of work which they portray. All federated club women are eligible. Community centers, recreation parks, swimming pools, playgrounds will all make suitable material for the photographs. Any size picture will be accepted, but each contestant will be asked to mount three on one card with an assumed name on the card and on an attached sealed envelope. In the envelope will be the contestant's real name and club affiliation.

The pictures, which will be used in an exhibit at the State Federation convention in Scranton, October 13 to 17, are to be sent to Mrs. Miller not later than October 1. There are to be two awards, one for which the city club women will contest and one for those in the rural districts, and these probably will be made by popular vote at the convention.

STYLISTS SEE BRIGHT FUTURE FOR DARK AFTERNOON FROCKS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, JULY 10.—There is a bright future in store for the little afternoon frock of dark material, judging by the representation and welcome accorded such frocks in the newest collections. Particularly liked are those simple little frocks that manage to embrace much detail within their apparently plain confines. Dressmaker models of this type are always purchased by the smartest women or by buyers representing establishments that cater to such women. You see these little frocks can be constantly worn to all but formal daytime occasions and always will look the part, as well as conferring an air of youthful distinction on the wearer. We would advise you to include one such dress in your early Autumn wardrobe.

AFTERNOON FROCKS seem to be important just now, and afternoon ensembles are liked by many women, particularly by youthful matrons. For they confer dignity without subtracting youth and charm, an important consideration always. And so we have selected for one of today's sketches a very pretty and timely afternoon ensemble from Premet. It is of gray, black and white printed chiffon in a rather modernistic pattern. The princess lines of the frock are softened by clever draping at the neck-line and upper part of the bodice and the skirt widens to fall in circular folds at each side. The sleeves are long and close fitting. The coatee of matching material is unlined and sleeveless. It has a draped shawl collar and piquot edge capelets.

AN IDEAL LITTLE afternoon frock is shown in the other sketch. Premet makes it of dark blue crepe de Chine in a dull powder shade that is most attractive, and accents it with set-in bow-knots of tomato red crepe at the neckline and on the lower sleeve. Softly draped folds edge the neck-line and a similarly draped sash, wide at the back and sides, is drawn up and tied in a soft bow in front. The set-in panel at the front of the bodice and skirt is cut in a piece with the circular flounce edging the skirt.

WEST SUFFERS IN HEAT WAVE

CHICAGO, July 10.—(AP.)—Middle America wilts under a merciless sun.

Twenty have died. The grain fields—save for corn—suffer. Farm work falters, the baking sun a check-rein to man and beast. Two heat deaths occurred in the fields. An Iowa farmer, prostrated by a temperature high in the 90s, fell dead at his plow. A Nebraska farmer died the same way.

There were temperatures of 100 degrees or hotter as far north as Montana and North Dakota.

The hottest spot officially was Miles City, Mont., with 108 degrees, while the mercury also went to three figures in Omaha, Kansas City, Sioux City, Ia.; St. Louis, Mo.; Evansville, Ind.; Nashville, Tenn.; Shreveport, La.; Emporia, Kan., and Birmingham, Ala.

Wheat, oats, rye, barley and flax have begun to show the effect of the hot weather.

MEN with tender skin discovered this luxury shave. They found that after it their faces felt cool and smooth, and that their razors never pulled. They passed the idea on to their friends, and now there's quite a group of "Vaseline" shavers. They are not all men with tender skins and tough beards, either. ANY man's face, normal or sensitive, shows its gratitude for this simple, soothing treatment.

Wouldn't you like to join this comfort club? Membership is open. All you have to do is spread a thin film of "Vaseline" Petroleum Jelly over the beard before you shave. Lather as usual. Your razor strokes quicker and closer and your face looks and feels better. The Jelly heals any little nicks or scratches, too, and softens dry or chapped skin.

Try it once and you'll never shave without "Vaseline" Jelly. You can buy it in jars or tubes at all good drug stores.

PIRATES HOME TOMORROW

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Disabled Bucs Return. • Vance Recovered Grip.
Pirates Nearing Normal. Senators Tie Records.
Steps to Force Draft. Jones at Third Hurdle.

FIRST START BY L. WANER TOMORROW

WHEN THEY GO into action against the Cardinals at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon, opening the final home series prior to their departure Saturday night on a 17 game Eastern cruise, the Pirates will present a normal starting lineup for the first time this season. At least it will be normal in so far as the appearance of Lloyd Waner at his old post in center field is concerned. Probably one reserve will continue to perform in the infield for the time being, with Charley Engle replacing Dick Bartell at shortstop, but otherwise the Bucs will finally have their regular array on the fighting front.

Lloyd Waner

That the younger Waner would start in tomorrow's game was announced today by President Barney Dreyfuss. Lloyd did not accompany the Pirates on their trip to St. Louis, but has been working out here daily in the meantime, and, according to the club president, is ready to get going. It is not assured that the little star will be able to play the full nine-inning distance right away, but at any rate from now on he is expected to start regularly.

THIS WILL BE the first time in the 1930 season that Lloyd has started a game. He has taken part in five other contests, one before he entered a Baltimore hospital for treatment and four since he rejoined the club, but on those occasions he was brought in only as a pinch-hitter or to play in the field for a short time during the closing innings.

The regular appearance of the brilliant center fielder in the lineup is likely to mean the beginning of better things for the Corsairs. The full extent of his value never was clearly shown until he was out, and the fact that at least eight games have been lost through erratic fielding in the middle garden demonstrates how sorely he has been missed. As soon as Lloyd hits his top stride the Pirates ought to look like a different ball club.

ANOTHER ENCOURAGING BIT of news from Rover headquarters is the announcement that Pitcher Steve Swetonic will be able to go on the slab again within three or four days. He is not yet ready for a starting assignment, but feels equal to the task of handling a relief job for a few innings.

Swetonic has not figured in a game since May 17, when he relieved Remy Kremer in the ninth innings against the Reds at Forbes Field and held safe a lead gained by the Bucs in the eighth round. A few days later he was operated on for appendicitis. The loss of his services for two months was a hard blow to the team, as he had proved himself just about the best relief pitcher in the National League.

Steve Swetonic

THE EARLY RETURN OF Swetonic to regular duty will be all the more welcome for the reason that new slab strength is needed to make up for the failure of Heinie Meine to deliver. Physical ills have kept Meine from measuring up to expectations this season, and his inability to hold yesterday's game after the Bucs had given him first a lead of three runs and later a margin of two tallies was another addition to a string of disappointing exhibitions. He has won only three games out of nine, has lost five of his last six engagements, and in 10 starts this year he has gone the distance only twice.

AFTER NINE YEARS of tiresome wrangling over the draft question, a period that was marked annually by proposals, counter proposals and countless arguments that never led to any real action, the major leagues have finally thrown down the gauntlet to the minors and taken a stand that can hardly fail to bring results.

Its squarely up to the smaller leagues now. The five that have refused to be subject to the "selection" system—the Pacific Coast, International, American Association, Three-I and Western—must accept the draft or after December 1 the majors will neither buy any players from them nor release to them any athletes whose services are not desired in the big show.

A SPLIT IS not anticipated. It is more probable that the minors, which cannot operate profitably without the selling of players, will eventually accept the new conditions of the leagues headed by John A. Heydler and E. S. Barnard and reach an amicable agreement with the "big fellows."

Each side has had ground for complaint, the majors contending that in the absence of a draft the minors could hold them up for exhorbitant player prices, and the minors claiming that the scale of draft prices would force them to give up players for less than their value. The majors offer to raise the draft prices ought to overcome the minors' objections.

John A. Heydler

THE CHIEF SUFFERERS have been the players. A non-draft minor league club having a player of big league ability could force him to remain in the sticks at a small salary unless the majors met its price, thus preventing him from advancing in his profession to a league in which he could command bigger pay. With the draft in force, such a player must be sold at a reasonable price or he may be lost in the draw. For that reason, the draft looks like the fairer system and the step taken by the majors will be approved by most fans.

A DOUBLE WIN by the Robins and an even break by the Senators while the Cubs and Athletics were losing yesterday, the Bruins' fourth straight reverse at the hands of the Reds, by the way, aided the cause of the pennant pace-setters to such an extent that Brooklyn is now leading by two full games and Washington has a margin of two and a half box scores.

The showing of Dazzy Vance in shutting out the Braves with only three hits and striking out nine men may mean more to the Robins than their double victory if it may be taken as an indication that Vance is back in his stride to stay. Without Vance, there would be no pennant hope for Brooklyn, but judging from his latest performance the Dazzler has pulled out of his slump. It remains to be seen, however, whether his brace is permanent. Yesterday's victory was only his third in his last eight games.

THE SENATORS equaled a couple of records for the present season before they were stopped by Milt Gaston and the Red Sox in ninth fortune fawned upon him in very marked manner. Here his approach hit the top of a trap bounded high in the air and fell dead on the green. Subsequently he almost rewarded fate by barely missing his long putt for a birdie.

BOBBY SCORES UNDER PAR TO TURN

COOPER EQUALS PAR

Harry Cooper, of Chicago, required 5 for the first, 1 over par, then followed with a birdie on the fourth, to even up his score with par on the seventh. Willie MacFarlane, Tuckahoe, N. Y., champion in 1925, went 1 over par on each of the first three holes and followed with par on the next three.

Irwin Ottman, Louisville, Ky., had a 38 for his out nine, while Tom Raklets, Cuyahoga Falls, O., turned in par 36. Bill Melhorn had one especially bad hole, taking a 7 on the sixth, 3 over par, and then requiring 6 on the ninth for 40 on the out nine, 4 over par.

Cooper finished his out nine in 36 par figures. George Von Elm, Los Angeles, who has been a threat in more than one open meet, went two over par for a 6 on the first hole, and after a 4 on the second cut off a stroke on the third with a birdie 2.

RAMSEY CARDS 43

Bob Randall, Elyria, O., turned in a 40 for the first nine, James Ramsey, West View, Pa., 43; Ray Feller, Rochester, N. Y., 41; George Christ, also from Rochester, 38.

Johnny Goodman, young Omaha amateur, who put Bobby Jones out in the amateur championship last year, started with a birdie on the second and par on the first and third. Vol Elm finished the first nine in 37.

Cyril Tolley took an 8, twice par, on the seventh, then shot birdies on the eighth and ninth, and finished the nine with 42.

JONES GETS "HOT" START

The clubhouse thermometer in the sun registered 100 as Bobby Jones went to the first tee with Jack Hutchison. A gallery of 2,500 rushed off in his wake, the getaway being delayed about 15 minutes in order to clear the fairway and allow photographers to take a few shots of the champion. After a 250-yard drive, Bobby played a No. 2 iron just short of the 478-yard first green. He chipped dead and sank his four-footer for a par 4. Hutchison had 5.

On the 370-yard second, Jones pitched 20 feet to the right of the pin, but was short on his approach putt, holing in 4. Hutchison, in a trap with his second, took another 5.

The champion laid his tee shot 12 feet from the pin on the 180-yard third, but missed the bid for a birdie, taking 3. On the 506-yard fourth, Bobby hooked his tee shot to the rough, came out well and fired a magnificent mashie iron 12 feet from the cup. He sank the putt for a birdie 4, and went under par for the first time.

MISSES BIRDIE

Jones' tee shot on the fifth was 10 feet from the pin, but his putt was six inches short as he missed a fine chance for another birdie.

Hutchison, playing erratic golf, was 4-5-4 on the third, fourth and fifth.

Bobby's tee shot bounded into the rough on the 343-yard sixth, but he came out brilliantly to the green. Perspiration poured down his face as he elbowed his way through the crowd that was cheering his recovery. Again he putted short, by two feet, but got his par 4. Hutchison just missed a birdie.

ROBINS BOOST LOOP LEAD

Associated Press.

The Cincinnati Reds are struggling deep in the second division of the National League, but when the Chicago Cubs, champions last season and contenders for this year's title, come along the Reds step out and play some first division baseball.

The Reds knocked the Cubs clear out of first place in the last few days by winning four games in a row and made it a record of seven victories over Chicago in 11 games played. There seemed to be every reason why Cincinnati should lose the final clash yesterday, but they had the champions coming from behind all the way and finally put over a run in the tenth inning to gain a 4 to 3 victory.

CUBS LOSE GROUND

The defeat dropped the Cubs two full games into second place as Brooklyn took both games of a double-header from the Boston Braves. With Dazzy Vance pitching superlative ball, striking out nine while he allowed only three hits, the Robins took the first game 8 to 0. The Braves put up a better battle in the second and it required a home run with the bases full by Del Bissonette to give Brooklyn a 6-4 decision.

The steadily advancing St. Louis Cardinals picked up another game on the New York Giants and now are only a half game back of third place as the result of their 7 to 6 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates, while New York dropped another to Philadelphia by a 5-4 count.

The American League celebrated the end of Washington's long winning streak, which came at the hands of the Boston Red Sox in the second game of a double header, but the Senators still gained a half game on Philadelphia and lead by that margin. Washington continued to use only

REDS RELEASE KELLY

CINCINNATI, July 10.—(AP.)—George Kelly, first baseman of the Cincinnati Reds for the last three years, was released unconditionally today by Manager Dan Howley.

"Long George," as he was known to the fans, will be supplanted at first by Joe Stripp, who has been playing third, and Tony Cuccinello, recruit third baseman obtained last winter from Columbus in the American Association, will hold down the hot corner, Howley said.

Kelly was born in San Francisco on September 10, 1895. He joined the New York Giants in 1915 and went to the Pittsburgh Nationals in 1917 on a waiver loan. He soon was sent to Rochester in the International League, but rejoined the Giants in 1919 and remained with John McGraw until 1927. He had a major league lifetime batting average of about .297.

Kelly probably will return to the Pacific coast where he indicated he may join a Coast League team.

MAJOR, MINOR BREAK LOOMS

CHICAGO, July 10.—(AP.)—American and National League club owners declared for an absolute break of player relations after December 1, 1930, with five "non-draft" minor leagues, unless the latter accept the universal draft.

The decision was made in a joint meeting of the majors and included a determination to purchase no players nor to release any to the Pacific Coast League, the American Association, the International League, class AA leagues and the Three-Eye and Western leagues, the latter of lower ranking.

ONE DISSENTER

The resolution not only demanded that the minor leagues involved, which have been subject since 1923 to a modified draft, agree to the universal selection system, but that a schedule of higher draft prices be inaugurated. There was only one dissenting vote on the resolution in spite of the fact that several major league clubs operate teams in the minor leagues involved, as "farms."

Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis National League club, which owns or controls the Rochester club of the International League and the Danville club of the Three-Eye League, favored the resolution, as did President William L. Veeck, of the Chicago Cubs, which has the same relationship with Los Angeles of the Coast League and Reading of the International League. The name of the only dissenter was not revealed, but it was said he favored further attempts to negotiate with the minor leagues.

SEALS TO FIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—(AP.)—Officials of the San Francisco Seals, the club which has sent more star players to the major leagues than any other team in the Pacific Coast League, are strongly against the "universal draft" and will oppose it at any directors' meeting.

George A. Putnam, secretary and spokesman for the Seals, said the move of major leagues to break relations with minors not accepting draft, was "an autocratic move that will not be foisted on us without a fight."

Harry Williams, president of the Pacific Coast League, said he would not be able to outline the attitude of the circuit members toward a universal draft until the November meeting at San Francisco.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

The main Pirate squad is in Coshocton, O., today, where it is engaged in an exhibition contest. All the regular pitchers and a few others arrived in Pittsburgh this morning after finishing up their gruelling five-game set with the Cardinals yesterday.

The sweltering series with the Redbirds brought a finish that was anything but a happy one. After taking a two-run lead into the eighth inning, Heinie Meine blew up like a rookie and the Cards romped to their club house with a 7 to 6 success.

Catcher Jimmy Wilson, one of the best receivers in the game and one who is generally overlooked while the Cochranes and Hartnetts are being discussed, won the contest with a three-run double with two out.

WILSON'S HIT WINS

Meine put on a faltering act just before he laid one in the groove for Wilson. He had runners on second and first with two out when he walked Ernie Orsatti. Wilson pickled the first pitch and the old ball game was on the ice for the Cards, as the ninth inning results proved.

Gus Suhr came through with a long homer into the right field stands in the fifth to put the Pirates out in front with a two-run lead. Pie Traynor also tallied on the drive. Chick Hafey gave the Cards the lead in the third with a four-sacker. Johnson, Lindsey and Haid worked for the Redbirds, the former New Castle boy receiving credit for the victory.

CARDS HERE TOMORROW

The Pirates and Cardinals will clash tomorrow and Saturday at Forbes Field. The Buccos will leave Saturday night for Brooklyn, where on Sunday they will begin their second Eastern invasion.

Comorosky's ferocious three-bagger to left center wall was the pivotal punch in the first inning rush of the Buccos. With one out, Brickell singled to right and Grantham singled to center. Brickell taking third. Commy then smeared one for three sacks and Adam scored a moment later on Traynor's single.

Nick Altrock Says:

BOSTON, July 10. — Our Washington club's success this season is due to its esprit de corps. That is French for hash browned potatoes. Another masterpiece was getting Shires. Arthur the Great got the rest of our players to thinking they were almost as good as he was. As a matter of fact, if we were only as good as Shires thinks he is, we would be leading the league by 50 games. Then we had the steadying influence of Sam Rice and Joe Judge, who have been playing for Washington since the Potomac River was a creek. And when you're taking the census of our success, don't leave out Uncle Nick.

New Field House For U. of Chicago

CHICAGO, July 10.—(AP.)—The University of Chicago at last is to have a field house for indoor athletic events.

For more than 10 years alumni and students have been after an indoor plant, and yesterday architects were commissioned to prepare plans for a $700,000 building. Actual work will start in November on a site near historic Stagg Field.

Trotter Sets Mark In Schenley Event

Trotting the mile in 2 14½ in the first heat of the second and feature event on the weekly program of the Schenley Matinee Club at the Oval yesterday, Della Axworth set a new record for the local track for trotters.

Della Axworth won the event in straight heats with Little George second in the first heat and Laura Watts runner-up in the second.

ST. JOHN'S ADMITTED TO CENTRAL LEAGUE

SAINTS TAKE ETNA'S PLACE IN LOOP

By TOM BIRKS

The St. Johns club, late of the City League, was admitted to the Central League last evening, taking the place of Etna. Manager Walsh posted a forfeit, so once again the famous Sullivan Field club will be doing its stuff on the local diamonds. Honus Wagner was tickled when the Lawrenceville club entered this particular loop. Etna, suffering financial troubles, decided to quit and the entry of the Saints assures eight good clubs in the battle for the second half title.

On Saturday in the Central circuit, Fintex and Allegheny Collegians will tangle at Sullivan Field. Should the Collegians win, they will be first half champions, but if Fintex stops the Carson outfit, then a triple tie involving Soho Traders, Allegheny and Fintex will have to be played off.

WEST PENN REDUCED

In the West Penn League this evening, Whitaker goes to Wilmerding and North Bessemer goes to Verona. Both games should be worth while. Since this loop was cut down to six clubs there appears to be much more interest in the doings of the clubs.

Only one game will be played in the C. & I. League. Druvo will make the trip to delightful Camp Horne. A. H. Burchfield, Jr., and the officials of the camp go out of their way to show the visiting clubs a good time.

W. O. W. MEETS CIVICS

In the City League, W. O. W., fresh from that sensational win over Homewood, clashes with the North Side Civics. Dormont goes down to the Rocks to meet Stowe Civics. It is reported that Stanley Berkman, the famous Thiel luminary, will be in the Dormont lineup at shortstop this evening. McGinley going over to third base.

Much comment is heard around the East End regarding the Troy Hill Millers failing to appear for a game with the East Liberty Crimsons on Saturday evening at Mellon Field.

Manager Johnny Dunsky of the Pleasant Valley Smilers has signed Lefty Kornick. The southpaw will be eligible for next Monday's game and should be a decided asset to the champions.

W. O. W. battered out an 11 to 5 victory over J. L. Thomas in a City League encounter last evening. In the Greater Pittsburgh League, Homestead Aces defeated Edgewood, 7 to 4, and Dan Heeps won over the Stephens Club, 10 to 5.

PRINTERS BLANKED

Mt. Lebanon blanked the Union Printers, 11-0, in a Major League fracas and St. Adelberts won over Iroquois, 7 to 3.

In the Steel City League, the DeMor nine won the first playoff game from the Observatory Civics, 4 to 3, in a well-played game.

Reliance Life pounded out an 8 to 3 triumph over Reick-McJunkin in the C. & I. circuit, and in leading independent tussels the Homestead Grays defeated Homewood, 12-1, Incomar walloped Gibsonia, 14-3, North Side Elks took over Etna Heights, 6-5, and Glassport crushed the North Side Civics, 20 to 6.

BABE HUNT WINS

KANSAS CITY, July 10.—Babe Hunt, Ponca City heavyweight, won the decision over Al Friedman, of Boston, in a 10-round bout here last night.

MIDGET MIKE O'DOWD

O'Dowd, veteran featherweight star, of Louisville, boxes Johnny Willis, of Erie, in the 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, Tonight.

ERIE MITTMEN ON CARDS TONIGHT

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

This is more or less Erie night along the fistic Potomac.

Johnny Willis, rangy Negro featherweight, of Erie, boxes Midget Mike O'Dowd, of Louisville, in the 10-round windup at Hickey Park, Millvale, while Mazie Strub and Ray Collins, both of Erie, will be principals in the two 10-round bouts making up a double windup offering at the Armory outdoor arena in Washington, Pa.

Johnny Willis

Strub's opponent will be Jimmy Reed, of Columbus, a substitute for Jimmy Neal, of Cincinnati, who has withdrawn from the match. Collins will oppose Dud Eades, of the North Side, and formerly of Indianapolis, who fought Young Gizzy at East Liverpool, O., last week.

O'Dowd, a favorite here, as a result of battles with Jackie Rodgers and Andy Martin, arrived in town yesterday and worked out at Tommy Phillips' place on the North Side during the afternoon. He is in fine shape and anxious to defeat the promising Willis and be in a position to start a clamor for a return bout with Rodgers and also a match with Johnny Dunn here.

Al Becker, of Sheraden, and Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, meet in the eight-rought semi-final at Hickey Park; Paul Balint, of the North Side, is paired with Frankie Buff, of New Kensington, in the second bout, and Billy Brent, of the Hill, meets Hans Roberts, of Brookline, in the first bout.

Nick Polis boxes Harry Spencer and Eddie Hetzner meets Nick Caruso in the Washington preliminaries.

Between Rounds

Harry Harris, of Bellaire, O., who recently registered a kill in defeating Harry Williams, of the North Side, in a bout at the Meyers Bowl, will be down around 135 pounds, his best fighting weight, when he appears in the semi-final to the White Haven-Black Bill bout at the Bowl next Monday night. Harris was a bit overweight for his bout with Williams, as a result of a long layoff, but was handily his opponent for Monday night has not yet been selected. Cowboy Dick Loria, nemesis of Leandore Peres, a Mexican now residing here, in the second bout, and Jackie Wilson mingles with Jackie Ward, of Cleveland, in the opener.

The Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. is arranging another of its amateur boxing cards for its open-air arena on the North Side next Tuesday night.

Joe Downey and Rush Hoke, Connellsville heavyweight rivals, have been signed for a 10-round bout for the city title there next Monday night. Bryan Downey is the promoter.

Ted Yarost and Roger Brooks will meet in the 10-round main bout at East Liverpool, O., next Tuesday night. Perce Johnson and Frankie Porto are in the six-round semi-final.

Mickey Salomon and Jackie Wilson, middleweight rivals, will box the main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, next Thursday night. It will be their third meeting. Salomon knocked out Wilson in their first clash at the Moose Temple and they boxed a draw recently at Hickey Park.

Fight Results

At Kansas City—Babe Hunt defeated Al Friedman, 10 rounds.

At Chicago—Willie Pellegrini defeated Pal Moore, 10 rounds.

Cubs Intimate Scandal Due On Rajah

CINCINNATI, July 10.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Enquirer says rumors current among members of the Chicago Cubs here yesterday were that Rogers Hornsby never would play another game for the team even if his injured leg yielded to treatment before the current season ends.

The paper says Manager Joe McCarthy refused to discuss the matter, but intimated there would be a sensational story about Hornsby before the season is over.

CHICAGO, July 10.—(INS)—Reports emanating from Cincinnati to the effect that Rogers Hornsby will never play another game with the Chicago Cubs were met with general denials here today.

"There's nothing to the rumor," said William Veeck, president of the Cubs.

Hornsby himself was surprised to hear the report that he was "out." Hornsby is recovering from a leg injury.

"It's all news to me," he said, when reached by telephone at his home in Anglum, Mo.

NEXT THING TO FLYING

Some of us—like Col. Lindbergh and Byrd and the Hunter boys—like flying. Some of us don't. But all of us like the sensation of speed, and the smooth lines of the air as the wind flows by. Perhaps square-smoothness gets at us and we think that maybe whipping isn't so safe after all. We search around for some alternative thrill. We buy Roadmasters. We are satisfied. For we get the thrill, the exhilaration, the smoothness and a great deal more safety and all the time in our Roadmasters—the tires that revolutionized the industry. See Charlie Causner and let him explain why it is cheaper and safer for you to trade your tires on Roadmasters.

They Gave a New Thrill

THAT'S WHY THEY GOT THERE . . SO QUICKLY

LITTLE STORIES OF FAST SUCCESSES

[NUMBER FIVE]

EARL SANDE

The first race horse he ever saw was hitched to the tailboard of a prairie schooner. Two years later, every track in America resounded to that famous cry, "C'm on Sande!"

He always gave the public the best run for its money.

That's the reason, too, for OLD GOLD rooters. That's why, in four short years, OLD GOLD has scrambled past the pack . . . caught the leaders . . . and is thundering down the stretch. OLD GOLD, too, always gives the public a run for its money.

Made of nature-blessed tobaccos, it offers you the taste-thrill you've always longed for . . . it eliminates the throat-hack you've always hated.

Explain Sande or OLD GOLD? Sandes and OLD GOLDS are born, not made.

IT WAS JUST TWO YEARS AFTER HE SAW HIS FIRST RACE HORSE THAT SANDE WAS CROWNED "EARL" OF AMERICAN JOCKEYS.

Circuit Winner Sets Three Marks

CLEVELAND, July 10.—(AP.)—The twentieth renewal of the $10,000 championship stallion stake was won here yesterday afternoon in straight heats by Hanover's Bertha from the Hanover Show Farms of Hanover, Pa. She was driven by Tommy Berry and this was her second victory in a week, she having won the $6,500 matron stake here last week.

In winning the stallion stake Hanover's Bertha set two world's records and a new stake record. She trotted the first heat in 2.02 flat, which is a new world's record for fillies and also equals the world's 3-year-old record in a race for either sex. She also broke the stake record of 2.02½, set by Col. Bosworth in the 1924 renewal of the event.

Long's Sport Comment

the second half of yesterday's double-header. For one thing they won 10 games in a row and for another thing they have gone through nine straight contests without changing pitchers in any contest. Thus they tied two marks set by the Athletics.

Washington's league leaders also hung up another record of their own for 1930. They beat the Red Sox 11 times in succession before losing the second number yesterday. The Red Sox have won only two games out of 13 against the Senators, the first of their two victories having been registered in the opening game of the year.

Bobby Jones

THOUGH IT IS one of the world's biggest and most important sport events, the United States open golf championship tournament, starting today at the Interlachen Country Club, near Minneapolis, occupies the unusual position of being second in public interest to one of the individual golfers playing in it. That may seem like trying to make the tail bigger than the kite, but it's a fact that instead of giving their attention to the tournament as a whole and figuring in the entire field of 142 in their speculation as to outcome, golf followers are giving over their discussions chiefly to Bobby Jones and his chances of negotiating the third hurdle in his drive for four major titles in one year.

WHETHER OR NOT Jones can succeed in winning the United States open again after capturing the British amateur and open would appear to depend upon his physical and mental state. He is beyond question the greatest golfer of any time and likely to dominate the tourney, if normal, but he is competing against a classy field, and if he happens to be physically or mentally stale after his strenuous campaign on the other side of the Atlantic, one of his strong rivals may come through and nose him out.

The outcome, therefore, seems to hinge on the question as to whether Jones and that question can be answered only by the tour[illegible]. The public [illegible] puts the other contenders in rather a [illegible] spot. If one of them manages to win out he may not get the full measure of credit that generally goes to a victor, as it probable will be considered that Jones was not up to his game.

Stars in State Amateur Play

MAX MARSTON

WATTS GUNN

Gunn, nationally known amateur star, who lost to Bobby Jones in the play-off for the National Open championship at Oakmont five years ago, tied for third place in the qualifying round for the state amateur crown at the Allegheny Country Club yesterday with 148. Max Marston, of Philadelphia, was tied with Denny St. Clair for fifth with 149.

DAVE HERRON

S. Davidson Herron, Oakmont veteran and former National amateur champion, began the defense of his state amateur by topping the field in the qualifying round yesterday when he turned in a 142. He set a new amateur record of 69 for the course on his second round.

JOHN GRAHAM

John Graham, South Hills Country Club, had 72-76-148 to tie with Watts Gunn for third place. Graham, a consistent linksman, who has figured in numerous district golf triumphs, is one of the favorites in the state tournament. He is the present Western Pennsylvania amateur champ.

YANKEE TRAILS ENTERPRISE

NEWPORT, R. I., July 10.—(AP.)—Enterprise led Yankee by 18 seconds at the first 10-mile mark of a triangular course of 30 miles off here today in the fourth of a series of daily races to determine the defender of the America's cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V. in September. Whirlwind led Weetamore by 43 seconds at the same turn. A northeasterly wind was freshening.

FRIDAY JINX FEARED

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 10.—(AP.)—There will be no sailing of Sir Thomas Lipton's fifth America's cup challenger, Shamrock V. tomorrow. If the yacht has not been made ready to sail for the United States next Thursday, she will sail on Saturday, it was made known today, when members of the crew voiced their prejudice against starting a voyage on Friday.

ROCHESTER QUITS LOOP

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., July 10.—The Rochester team yesterday resigned from the Beaver County League.

HOMER CLOUTS BRING WINS

Home run smashes at timely moments brought triumphs to two teams in the Mid-Atlantic League yesterday.

At Charlerol, Gallupe cracked out a four-ply wallop in the sixth inning with the bases loaded, the Guys winning 9 to 5 over Fairmont.

Doljack walloped a homer in the ninth inning for Wheeling against Cumberland with the score tied at 2-all, the Stogies eventually winning by a 4 to 2 count.

Johnstown was defeated for the second day in a row by a 6-4 score by Clarksburg. The Johnnies tallied all their runs in the fifth inning.

Scottdale remained in a tie for the league lead by defeating Jeannette, 7 to 6, staving off the Jays, who made an uphill fight.

JOCKEYS SUSPENDED

CHICAGO, July 10.—(AP.)—Jockeys V. Cheshire and P. Garrity will do no more riding at Arlington Park this summer. Both yesterday were suspended for the remainder of the meeting, Cheshire for an unsatisfactory ride on Joseph in the third race, and Garrity for an incompetent ride on Brown Widow in the fourth.

ROBINS BOOST LOOP LEAD

one pitcher to a game, but Lloyd Brown gave the Red Sox 17 hits in the second contest while Milt Gaston held the Senators to eight, and Boston won, 5 to 1. Washington took the first game, 5 to 2, behind Sam Jones' pitching to make it 10 straight.

YANKS BEAT A'S

The Athletics, in second place, had a very bad day against the New York Yankees and went down by a 12 to 6 score.

Once more Babe Ruth provided one of the day's biggest pieces of news by drawing down a three-day suspension because of the previous afternoon's dispute with Umpire Brick Owens.

The struggle among the five trailers in the American League remained unchanged. The fourth place Indians slammed out a 9 to 5 decision over the St. Louis Browns to win their first series in almost a month.

The Detroit Tigers strengthened their hold on the top of the second division with a 6 to 1 triumph over the Chicago White Sox behind the pitching of George Uhle.

154 NETTERS ENTER PARKS TOURNEY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN.

One hundred and fifty-four municipal courts racqueters will face off next Monday in inaugural round battles of the Sun-Telegraph revival of the Pittsburgh Public Parks Tennis championships on the city rectangles at Schenley, Highland, Olympia, Riverview, West, and Frick Parks. The total was the mark attained at midnight yesterday when men's and women's entry lists for the all-Pittsburgh competition were officially closed.

Of the group, 13 are masculine performers, while 23 are of the fair sex, both arrays proving unexpectedly large and attesting to the popularity of the move of the Sun-Telegraph, the Bureau of Parks and the Pittsburgh Tennis Association in combining to sponsor a really well-organized tournament for the purpose of determining parks champions to represent the Steel City as guests of the Sun-Telegraph in the National Public Parks championships at Washington, D. C., the week of August 18.

ENTRY GRATIFYING

Gratifying, indeed, has been the ready response of municipal net aspirants to the call to uphold Pittsburgh honors in nation-wide tilting. There are several more men's singles entrants in the parks affair than were enrolled in the highly successful Western Pennsylvania titular tussles at Stanton Heights a fortnight ago—and the West Penn tourney was the forty-second annual event of its kind, whereas the city parks jousting is still in the experimental stage.

Wednesday's last-minute rush boosted the accumulated blanks by no less than 33, the Schenley roster being raised 15 notches; Olympia advancing 12, Frick moving forward three, and Highland, Riverview and West easing ahead one apiece.

The quality of the newcomers likewise matches in every respect their quantity, too, for such noted and accomplished luminaries as Dick Creighton, St. Mary's-of-the-Mount High School ace; Joe O'Neill and Bob Philpott, Duke varsity satellites, and Ward Murphy, rangy Mount Washington slasher, and Mrs. Jean Artzberger, 1930 West Penn women's doubles premiere, are among the Olympia contenders, while Eleanor Lemon, another clever Western Pennsylvania crown-seeker, and Alan Hantman, veteran of the parks tourneys of several seasons ago, are amid the late Schenley contestants.

It had been hoped that it would prove feasible to make the draws and announce the pairings immediately upon wind-up of the lists, but due to the host of competitors and the consequent magnitude of the task of lining them up in proper order for battle, it has been decided to postpone publication of first round details until tomorrow, pending action of the Tournament Committee upon such delicate matters as seeding and scheduling of approximate hours of play.

NO DOUBLES PLAY

A point that has been brought up in several queries forwarded to the Tournament Editor is that of doubles. To clear the air of this cloud of doubt once and for all, there will be no doubles—men's, women's or mixed—in the parks conclave. The proposition of whether or not to include dual pastiming in the meet was thoroughly threshed out by the committee very early in the proceedings and the final verdict, in view of difficulties too numerous to be risked in the initial year of the tournament, was against the idea.

Let players be reminded again—and this cannot be too often or too powerfully stressed—of the necessity of presenting a Pittsburgh Parks tennis permit for inspection by the committeemen appointed to care for the contesting at the respective lots. The process of securing a permit is a simple one and it is absolutely requisite that it be gone through with before the netmen may compete.

Contestants are urged to read carefully all tournament dope between now and the start of hostilities, for unless schedules of play are lived up to religiously committeemen will be compelled to swing the default ax.

Last-minute entries follow:

Erwin Bork, Highland; Eugene Dice, Frick; Joseph Rosenbloom, Frick; H. Russell Lesterman, Frick; E. W. Eichorn, Olympia; Joseph R. Albrecht, Olympia; Richard Creighton, Olympia; R. Broad, Olympia; Leo F. O'Neill, Olympia; F. L. Cope, Olympia; Bob Philpott, Olympia; Leo F. O'Neill, Jr., Olympia; Ward Murphy, Olympia; Mrs. Jean Artzberger, Olympia; Joseph J. O'Neill, Olympia; Mary Follansbee, Schenley; Eleanor Lemon, Schenley; Leonard F. Jacobson, Schenley; Samuel Singer, Schenley; Louis Singer, Schenley; Alan Hantman, Schenley; F. Levin, Schenley; R. J. RODGERS LOSES IN W. VA. GOLF TOURNEY

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 10.—(AP.)—In a contest that carried out to 24 holes, C. C. Dutton, of Parkersburg, ranking player of the Parkersburg Country Club, edged out Ira E. Rodgers, defending state amateur champion, 1 up, in a hotly contested a match yesterday.

The Parkersburg star, with a coolness that was the envy of the gallery of 65 first-class golf players, carried through from the nineteenth hole to the twenty-fourth with carefully played shots that many times seemed to have Rodgers beaten. However, Rodgers recovered amazingly until at the twenty-fourth hole he lost when Dutton made a birdie and Rodgers finished with a 5.

In the other matches in the championship flight Jack Hobitzell, of Parkersburg, led L. M. La Follette, of Charleston, 4 and 2. Tomorrow Hobitzell will meet R. M. Rownd, of Wheeling, who defeated P. F. MacIntosh, of Spencer, 3 and 2.

Fritzi Stifel and her mother, Mrs. E. W. Stifel, both of Wheeling, advanced to the semi-finals in the women's competition.

Miss Stifel, who defeated her sister, Emily, 4 and 3, scored 77, breaking the women's record on course No. 3 and surpassing by one stroke the record made on course No. 1 by Glenna Collett recently.

Miss Stifel's mother, Mrs. E. W. Stifel, defeated Elizabeth Knight, Lewisburg, 1 up.

BUCCOS LOSE TO CARDS

the Buccos in the second. Rolly reached second on an error, but while Meine was making a mess of a bunt attempt Rolly allowed himself to be picked off by Wilson. No scoring came in the Pirate half.

Brickell's loose fielding loomed up in the home half as the home club tied up the game. Gelbert's triple to center started the inning and Orsatti came through with a single, scoring Gelbert. Comorosky fumbled the ball and the batter reached second. Brickell faltered in fielding, Wilson's hit he should have held the ball to a single, but it went for a triple. Orsatti scored.

BUCS MESS CHANCE

The Buccos were in a fine spot in the third. Grantham opened with a single off Frisch's glove. Comorosky drove a single off the right field stands, sending Grantham to third. Traynor's fly to Watkins was too short to permit George to score, but Commy dashed to second on the throw to the plate. Suhr was passed intentionally. A double play resulted when Gelbert nailed Engle's liner.

Noted Swim Star To Appear Here

Johnny Weissmuller, world's fastest swimmer, is coming to Pittsburgh for a two-day visit on Sunday, July 20, and will give several exhibitions of his aquatic prowess while here.

Plans are being completed for a demonstration in one of the larger pool on Sunday afternoon a week and a swim in the Allegheny River, between Ninth and Sixth streets, at noon the following day.

Weissmuller, who returned last week from Europe, is on a tour of the United States for the promotion of better swimming. Arrangements are being made to have him broadcast over Station WCAE and he will make two appearance at Gimbels.

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 10.—Wilbur (Fats) Henry, former star tackle at W. & J., has been signed to assist Bill Amos, varsity grid coach of the Presidents. Henry served as freshman grid coach and varsity basketball coach last year.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

LACK OF FAITH CREATES ODD SITUATIONS

One Investment Trust's Securities Offered at 75 Per Cent Market Value

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, July 10.—The curious lack of faith, which has been registered of late in the financial markets, has created illogical situations. For example, it is possible to buy the securities in the portfolio of one investment trust at 75 per cent of their present depressed market value, through acquiring stock of the investment trust itself.

One leading authority on investment trusts, in discussing this situation with me, remarked:

"It is, of course, true that the market value of many investment company securities is below liquidating value, and we find the anomalous position of many first class investment company securities for sale at from 80 to 90 cents per dollar of actual current liquidation value. This discount is merely a swing from one extreme to the other. It is fairly obvious that good management with a record of capacity is worth some kind of premium, and that this is particularly so where the capital structure permits the use of a reasonable proportion of comparatively low-cost, fixed-rate capital. It is also true that incompetent or dishonest management should result in a discount rather than a premium. There is, however, no good reason for such differentials as appear today. It is a purely passing phenomenon and will quickly yield to a better general market condition."

BALANCED STRUCTURES

During the late lamented bull markets, during which investment trusts sprang up in large numbers, most of them raised capital solely through the sale of common shares. On the other hand, the great English prototypes of American investment trusts have balanced financial structures, consisting of debentures, preferred and common stocks. The raising of capital through senior securities, or bonds paying a low coupon rate, enables the investment companies to make a profit through trading on the equity, that is, through realizing a larger return on securities in their portfolio than is paid to the public which has supplied the senior capital. Inquiry among investment trust executives discloses the fact that when and if the bond market shows the real activity which many economists have expected, they will build up their capital structure to a properly balanced position between senior and junior securities.

The completed consolidation report of the United Founders Corporation, with its vast array of affiliated investment trusts, will be published shortly, and insiders hint that stockholders will not be disappointed in the showing.

BUSINESS PARADOX

One of the paradoxes of modern industry was indicated by J. Chesler, technical expert of the Eagle Pencil Company, who pointed out that in order to make pencils cheaply enough the company must improve the quality to such a high state of accuracy of dimensions as to make possible the use of automatic machinery. If the pencils were made carelessly, they would not fit in the automatic machinery, and would be more costly, though less desirable to the consumer.

M. L. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, in discussing radio broadcasting with me, said that the increase in advertising by air had not been attained at the expense of the newspapers.

He said:

"None of our clients have cut down on their newspaper appropriations to get funds for radio advertising."

Business executives should not be unduly influenced by the wide and hysterical price swings on the stock exchange. The fluctuations in business in stable lines between good years and bad are relatively narrow. In the worst years, a tremendous amount of trade is under way, and while the languid are talking hard times the leaders are consolidating their position, enhancing their competitive place in an industry. One beneficent by-product of these trade recessions, from the standpoint of the leaders, is that they tend to remove inefficient competitors who, because of their very ignorance, are temporarily dangerous trade adversaries. Such shakeouts tend to make the competition between survivors more intelligent.

HELP COMPETITORS

Owen D. Young, chairman of the General Electric Company, was once asked why his great company, with its vast resources for getting information, joined the Chamber of Commerce. He replied that he wanted to support the trade movement in order to help educate his weaker competitors, indicating that his company felt able to compete with well informed agencies that understood costs, but was harassed by blind competitors who disturbed others temporarily as they rushed headlong toward their own economic ruin.

The recession further intensifies the process of selection of the fit, and will make competition more benevolent in character, and place it on a higher plane. Institutes have been formed in numerous trades to gather basic industrial data, and keep each factor informed concerning the progress of the industry as a whole. Modern leaders are less secretive; they gladly throw open their plants for inspection by competitors.

Illogical Situations

Big Concerns Pay Money to Men Dropped.

—By B. C. FORBES—

COULD WORKERS, including those unemployed, read all the letters received by this column from heads of large business enterprises, they could not possibly feel that unemployment is lightly regarded by America's largest employers.

Everyone confesses that not nearly enough progress has been made towards complete solution of the problem of providing steady work throughout the year and throughout all industries. Hardships are still lamentably numerous.

Happily, however, many of the best managerial brains in the country have been aroused to a new sense of responsibility. That valuable results will be achieved cannot be doubted—even though they must seem, especially to those now idle, painfully slow in coming.

JULIUS ROSENWALD, head of Sears, Roebuck & Co., states that he and his associates had unemployment prominently in mind when they established the employes' profit sharing and pension fund a number of years ago. Says Mr. Rosenwald:

"Under this plan the employe pays in 5 per cent of his wages, and the company a substantial amount of its profits before considering dividends or taxes. Persons who have been with the company for some time receive a substantial sum on leaving, even those who have been with us a comparatively short time getting sufficient to carry them along for a reasonable period.

"Those who have ten years' service are entitled to withdraw the full amount of the company's contribution plus their own savings. Not infrequently such employes have withdrawn a sufficient amount so that the income on the value of the securities and money received would approximate and sometimes exceed their salary.

"During the first twenty weeks of this year, 3,185 employes withdrew their full share of the fund in money and securities, out of which number 2,898 had a service record of less than ten years, and 287 had a service record of ten years and over.

"I think this will demonstrate that at least a portion of industry is not indifferent to, but is keenly conscious of the importance of the whole employment and unemployment problem."

MR. ROSENWALD presents a statement showing that payments to these employes amounted to $550,318 in cash and Sears, Roebuck stock having a market value of $3,651,401, a total of $4,201,719. The individual amounts received ranged from a few hundred dollars up to $67,252, and included such other individual payments as $61,146, $49,300 $15,378, $8,981 for a repairman, $6,187 for a watchman, and $5,064 for a chauffeur.

WALTER C. TEAGLE, president of Standard Oil of New Jersey, after referring to General Electric's new employment fund as an important contribution to the efforts that are being made to stabilize employment, mentions these encouraging facts:

"In addition to its pension for employes who retire at advanced age, the company has an informal plan of paying specified layoff allowances to men of 10 or more years' service or of advanced age who have to be laid off for lack of work, but who have not been with the company long enough to qualify for a company pension. These allowances, payable usually in cash, are based upon length of service and the age of the employe at the time he is laid off. Our company does not ask employes to contribute toward this emergency expense.

"The possibility of hardship resulting from lack of work is further reduced through our stock acquisition plans, originated about 10 years ago, under which a large proportion of our employes have made regular provision from their wages toward the building up of an income-producing reserve fund, which is invested in stock of the company. The company contributes 50 cents for each dollar paid into the fund by employes.

"Unemployment and irregular work are subjects to which the management of American industry is giving constant and serious attention, and I am hopeful that practices such as those announced by the General Electric Company and those which our company is following are making a real contribution toward sound solutions of the different problems involved."

Henry M. Robinson, internationally known Los Angeles banker, who was a member of the Dawes committee, writes:

"I agree with your statement that unless industry itself makes a demonstration that it is endeavoring in every way to cope with unemployment problems, it will result in a condition where the politicians and other disturbing elements can work with ease. When men are out of work in great numbers, is it possible for them to have any other impression than that the overlords have been stupid or worse?"

THAT'S THE RUB.

STOCKS RALLY AFTER EARLY DECLINE

Most Pivotal Shares Show Moderate Gains; Traders Fail to Enliven Trading

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP.)—Professional traders continued their struggles with a torpid stock market today and had little to show for their efforts. Bullish efforts in the early trading accomplished little and in the midday trading shifted [illegible] Most price changes were confined to moderate [illegible]

The United States Steel unfilled tonnage report showed a reduction during June of only 163 tons, which was about in keeping with expectations. New evidence that the drop in mail-sale commodity prices is beginning to influence retail prices and the cost of living appeared in announcements of sharp price reductions by Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward. The Labor Bureau has reported wage decreases in retail stores of [illegible] June, but reductions in [illegible] may be a comprehensive factor. On the whole the day's news was about a standoff with little market influence.

The bear activity in the [illegible] ing closely coincided with the announcement of the suspension by the exchange of Bulte & Co. because of the alleged connection of one of its customers with the notorious Manhattan Electrical Supply pool. This action of the exchange following the Throckmorton suspension is interpreted as indicating that the stock exchange proposes to hold heads of member firms more strictly than ever accountable for the acts of subordinates. It is felt in conservative quarters that a campaign against manipulation would do much to restore confidence in equity shares.

HIT LOWS, RALLY

Air Reduction, Johns Manville and National Cash Register dropped 3 to 5 points to new lows then rallied. In the rails Atchison, New York Central, New Haven and others gained 2 points or more. U. S. Steel firmed up on the tonnage report, gaining nearly 2 points.

In the oils Standard of New Jersey made a similar advance. Allied Chemical converted an early loss of 5 points into a gain of similar extent and Eastman Kodak sold up about as much.

Credit conditions were generally unchanged.

C. and O. 4 for 1 Split-Up Approved

WASHINGTON, July 10 (INS.)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today authorized the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad to issue 7,661,134 shares of common stock, valued at $191,528,367. It will be exchanged for an equal amount of common stock and 6½ per cent cumulative preferred stock at the rate of four shares of the former for one share of the latter.

Department Store Sales Drop in June

NEW YORK, July 10.—Preliminary reports to the federal reserve system by 490 stores in leading cities of all federal reserve districts show that department store sales in June were 9 per cent smaller than in the corresponding month a year ago. Sales for the first half of the year were 4 per cent below the level and the like period last year.

Auto Production Takes Sharp Drop

NEW YORK, July 10.—Automobile production in the United States and Canada for June totaled approximately 343,000 cars and trucks, compared with 441,826 in May and 567,424 in June last year. Production for the first half of this year was 2,322,211, compared with 3,413,804 for the like period last year.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, July 10.—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 3 to 9 points in response to the Liverpool cables and reports of continued high temperatures and dry weather over the greater part of the South.

There was some July liquidation which sent the price off from 13.15 to 13.06, but the new October contracts sold up 7 points and the new December 11 points.

Liverpool cables said there had been local and continental buying in that market.

I. C. C. FAVORS VANS' SYSTEM

WASHINGTON, July 10 (INS.) — Action of the Interstate Commerce Commission approving the Van Sweringen Missouri Pacific-Nickel Plate-Wabash-Western lines railroad unification steps in forming a great system patterned after the commission's original tentative plan, was regarded today as highly significant.

Failure of Congress to pass a resolution of Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, to postpone action by the commission because of the illness of Commissioner Eastman, has been further evidence, it was pointed out, that the commission made the decision because it believed the Missouri Pacific could not be reorganized after July 1 and because the deadline was reached on that date, it was announced, unless Congress had acted.

Observers see in the commission's action an opportunity for the Van Sweringen brothers of Cleveland to get control of the Wabash, which would cover a large part of the country and would facilitate the commission's original plan for the No. 18 system, which would be known as the Missouri Pacific System.

The Van Sweringers have no plans in contemplation, it is said, those connected with the Missouri Pacific and Nickel Plate that they have been given a free hand by the commission, it is expected they will bring these into the open when the pooling is good.

BETTER TIMES SEEN AHEAD

NEW YORK, July 10 (AP) The part which has witnessed the gain in home building since the beginning of the year, a American Bankers Association official for July and stated the way for a definite recovery next in the year. It is stated that a study of the history of previous comparable periods of depression indicates that a cycle of improvement is underway.

"There is no doubt the Journal continues, "but that the curtailment of production in the major industries has been much greater than the falling off in consumption on the part of the public and this has inevitably led to a marked reduction in the inventories of finished goods all along the line from manufacturer to retailer.

"That the present recession is about due to change into a cycle of improvement is indicated alike by the history of previous comparable phases in this country and by the more confident predictions of a growing list of authorities on business and forecasting. Dr. W. E. Burgess of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, points out that the continued heavy demands from 120,000,000 people give assurance that the maladjustments of this period will be ironed out before many months have elapsed."

DAILY TRUE STORY

Willie Wallace had a way with him—a nice way.

Willie was about 5 feet 5 inches, but we'll set up in a slender way. His hair was tawny, and wavy.

It was Willie's tawny, wavy hair that very nearly capitulated my sister Florence.

Only Florence was a year older, and so affected one more to match the Heights—six-footers will walk with elders.

But at that Willie's wavy hair, his expressive deep blue eyes and his ruddy sensitive mouth did have a grave influence for sister Florence. She'll say, she married Tom Baffin, who was in the freshman class, physically and in weight.

Florence moved away to the big city with Tom. I remained at home, had a good business in real estate and there was Alice. Alice drove me much as the Furies drove Orestes. Brute. But I understand a little time to have fun with one's much maligned sister.

With some Florence pride I was the envy of the home town's male contingent when I began to persuade Alice Ainslee to become Mrs. [illegible].

I did.

But this is supposed to be about Willie Wallace and a few others in our small city.

Like myself, Willie was alone. He had an aged aunt [illegible] as a housekeeper. His mother adopted my own. A personality [illegible] with trim lawn. Willie Wallace was the local photographer. He was quite artistic at it.

He seemed to have a soul for art which he expressed in painting his subjects to a degree of less successful degree and in getting landscapes to a very great degree.

Willie's landscapes had a "quality." He made more money with these things which he called studies than he did with his portrait work. He would hunt up a gnarled tree, a corner of a jagged boulder, beside a pool of muddy water and go there in the right light with his camera. The result seemed like a corner of Eden.

Adores Willie

There was little Elsie Watson. Like a number of other sentimental girls she in her adored Willie Wallace.

No one ever thought of calling him "Bill," much less "William." He was always "Willie."

At the church socials and such places Elsie would hang around Willie and Willie would look at her with his sentimental eyes as if he wished he had courage to snatch her up and away, like some modern Lochinvar.

But Willie wasn't quite sure of himself.

There was Emmy Alton and Peggy Unger. Both nice little pint-size girls, just the mates for a cute, sensitive little chap like Willie. Little wonder that Willie was never quite sure of himself.

Then Imogene Farrar moved over on our street from some other part of the city.

Imogene was one of those positive types of girls—and considerable girl—Imogene would tip the scales—if she had dared do so in public—at around a hundred and eighty.

Yet Imogene was attractive in her way. A lively complexion, large expressive, snappy black eyes and dark hair. I suspect that the curly part was finger-wave or water-wave stuff or whatever straight-haired girls do to become curly.

And Imogene wasn't fat mind you. She was large-framed, with a good figure sturdy but graceful legs, and she could smile most attractively.

There was a pretty little cleft in her chin. Alice—I hadn't married Alice then—scolded me. She said that Imogene called it a dimple.

Well, about then I married Alice, who had long known Imogene.

And Imogene's people lived just across the street from us.

She came over when I was chatting with Willie Wallace across the fence. I introduced them.

"Oh, you are the lovely photographer," Imogene gushed. "I am coming down right away and hope I don't break your camera."

"You'll take a lovely picture, Miss Farrar," Willie said, "you are the type, you won't take a flattering picture, but you don't need to, a perfect likeness will be plenty beautiful enough."

Imogene giggled.

Willie slipped me a wink. It was his customary line of talk to the ladies.

Helps Willie

Before Imogene left she had insisted that since we were neighbors it was silly to be formal and use last names. She was calling Willie "Willie" as if she had always known him.

"Some girl," said Willie when Imogene had gone, "she'll be a big help to her mother when she grows up."

It's a good old line—we use it now just as our forefathers did.

A few evenings later when Willie was building a trellis for his ramblers, Imogene came over across my lawn, hopped my low fence like a rabbit clearing a cabbage head and proceeded to help him.

Willie, as I say, was no giant. Imogene was probably three inches taller and to her hundred-eighty Willie could only weigh in at a hundred-fifteen.

Willie started to lift the heavy trellis. Imogene picked it up with one hand, squared it with both hands, held it aloft poised, and with an "Ugh" she slammed the pointed ends of that trellis right into the ground to stay.

"Atta girl," said Willie, admiringly.

After that Imogene was over there a lot.

[illegible] Willie [illegible] pictures of her.

Willie was photographing his snowball tree against a background of the shady Sunday front, light to get some effect of white and foliage. I noticed Alice and cried: Coach. Willie [illegible] I'll get into the picture to make it valid.

After that [illegible] of a few weeks passed [illegible] although because I followed.

Willie never did get that picture of the snowball tree [illegible] Imogene to sell [illegible] Imogene as only as a friend.

And when [illegible] we were about [illegible] myself, because [illegible] I'm convinced that [illegible] Willie was [illegible] gave a [illegible] Emmy Alton and Peggy Unger story never quite [illegible] If they hung around [illegible] Willie was safe to [illegible] ever and grab Willie's hand or arm.

Usually she would say with a half-giggle: "Oh, Willie—" [illegible] Willie [illegible] to Mrs. Wilcox and Willie would be led away.

Came the time when Willie's adored aunt housekeeper died suddenly.

We helped Willie as best we could.

Talks With Imogene

Imogene hovered about, wept copiously at the funeral and cooked enough dinner for five after the funeral. She remained and ate four-fifths of it.

Alice and I were out in the rear of the evening then and saw Imogene and Willie come out on the back steps.

They sat down. Imogene talked to him about meeting whatever the fates handed out, quite manfully.

"Oh, I sort of expected it," Willie said. "I can get along. I like to live by myself. Auntie was confined to her room for a year, it was just like living by myself and I intend to always."

"Why, Wil-lee, de-uh!" the very idea! As if a busy man of affairs like yourself could possibly live alone!"

"I—I don't know," Willie said, hesitatingly.

That "busy man of affairs" line sure got him.

"Of course," Imogene went on, "right after a bereavement a person can't marry, not for a week or so, but I'll run over and cook your dinners, and you leave the key and I'll red up the house and make your bed, and I'll see that you get plenty of food, and——"

"But I'll be all right, Imogene. I like to live alone, I really——"

"Now Wil-lee, de-uh, don't be like that. You know and I know that your work is appreciated in the community, it is a wonderful profession and you need all your wonderful brain for it and not be bothered with housework."

"Why—uh—I don't know, I thought——"

"That's a dear boy—don't worry a mite. I'll look out for you."—

And she did, for six weeks, over morning and evening.

One night as they sat on the back porch we could see that she had pulled his head on her buxom bosom. He said something and she replied: "The very idea! Let them talk! We know we are respectable, so what do we care—and we are good as married right this minute, aren't we, Wil-lee de-uh?"

"I er I—"

"Oh you bashful darling handsome mans, you—don't be afraid to say it!"

"Yes, I suppose so!"

Imogene kissed him, hopped up and came to the fence.

Married

"Come on, folks, congratulate us—we're engaged!" she shouted. It must have been heard at the end of the street.

"I—I just couldn't refuse Willem," she went on, "he pleaded so hard."

We congratulated them.

We attended the wedding a week later, and gave them a nice set of dishes for a wedding present.

They went—of all places—to Niagara Falls, on their honeymoon, but I'll be blessed if Willie didn't get two views of the falls at such a new angle and light that he really paid honeymoon expenses with them.

Then they came back and settled down.

One evening as I was puttering around out in the garage and Alice was entertaining some friends on the back lawn I confess that I listened. They were discussing men in general and husbands in particular. Naturally that included me. I wondered if I would learn how I stood. I didn't. Alice was non-committal. But Imogene spoke up.

"I never intended to marry," she said, plaintively. "Honestly, I didn't. But you girls know how it is. My Wil-lee was just irresistible, you know, the type we women love, at heart, the brute type!"

"Er, what, Imogene?" I heard my wife ask.

"The brute type, like my Willee. Honestly he pleaded so hard and he made love so—so impetuously, that in that brute way of his he just swept me off my feet."

Now, you take whatever comment you wish. I've finished the story so far as I am concerned.

FRISBY DEFENDS VOTE ON GRUNDY TARIFF

WASHINGTON.—"The wounded lion strikes back!" With these simple words, Congressman Frisby today answered critics who have kicked and abused him for voting for the Grundy tariff. Frisby dramatically took from his pockets seven articles at random, consisting of—

1. Handy Artist's Model Bottle Opener and Key Ring.
2. Imitation Slip-Cover Gold Tooth—Surprise Your Friends.
3. Lady's Leg Pocket Comb and Watch Charm.
4. Astonisher Pipe with Disappearing Party Symbol.
5. Vest Pocket Water or Ammonia Gun for Pocket or Purse.
6. "So's Your Old Man!" Slogan Signet Ring.
7. "Dandy" Transparent Genuine Dice Cuff Link.

"I find on investigation," declared Frisby, "that none of these articles is costing the working man a cent more than it did before the enactment of the Grundy tariff. Furthermore, the imitation gold tooth, which I sell for twenty-five cents, a quarter of a dollar, slips on or off in an instant, and cannot be told from wealthy fillings."

Q. AND A. DEPARTMENT

Say Kid—

While reading over your line of blather I frequently pause to wonder if you could be the Bella Smaltch to which I used to be married. It was twenty years ago and she ran away with my last five dollars. Do you remember?

So and So.

Ans.—No, Mr. So and So, I do not remember. Aunt Bella's memory, I might say in passing, is not very good in regard to events transpiring directly after her birth. But I will say this, Umpchay, if it hadda been Aunt Bella to which you was married she'd have waited till you had more than five bucks. Run along now, I gotta see a man about a sedan.

Aunt (Zip) Bella.

Death of Col. Hershman

He Was a Powerful Influence in Pittsburgh Journalism.

Col. Oliver S. Hershman is dead, and Pittsburgh, in his passing, has lost another of the citizens that contributed in no small part to the city's greatness.

Col. Hershman was a man of affairs. His interests were widespread. But it was as a newspaper publisher that he left the deepest impress.

He began his business career without any special advantages except those that were to be found in the qualities of his mind and character, and so he stands out as another example of what any American boy of the proper mental traits may hope to accomplish.

In newspaper work Col. Hershman came up from the bottom. While still comparatively young he acquired control of the Chronicle-Telegraph which he published until 1900, when he bought the Pittsburgh Press. For 23 years he was owner and publisher of the Press. Seven years ago he sold the Press to Scripps-Howard.

One of the reasons for his success was his independence. At a time when most of the papers were above all else partisan or factional organs, Col. Hershman kept himself free from entangling alliances, and so remained in position to serve the readers of his paper faithfully and impartially.

Under False Pretenses

Treaty Negotiators Distort Real Feeling in England and Japan

Of all the false pretenses under which the negotiators of the London naval treaty are pressing for its ratification, perhaps the most flagrant concerns the alleged similarity between opposition to the treaty in the United States and such criticism of it as has been heard in Great Britain and Japan.

The truth is that instead of being similar, the nature of this opposition is fundamentally different.

American opposition to the treaty, as the minority report from the Committee on Foreign Relations points out, "comes from those holding the responsible positions whose duty it is to advise on such matters."

The general board of our Navy is unanimously of opinion that the treaty is grossly unfair and dangerously disadvantageous to the United States. This is also the opinion of the chief of naval operations, the head of the American war plans division, the chief of the bureau of ordnance, of five former commanders in charge of the fleet and of the admiral who is about to take command of the fleet.

But in Great Britain the first lord of the admiralty, Mr. Alexander, a civilian, has recently asserted on the floor of the House of Commons that the British position at the London conference respecting cruisers was proposed by the British admiralty itself. It was the admiralty that recommended and the government which adopted the proposal respecting cruisers which is incorporated in the treaty.

And Mr. Alexander, speaking for the British admiralty, is now actively defending the treaty before the British parliament.

And the only criticism of the treaty in Great Britain is coming from those who are not now responsible for British naval policies.

Instead of being similar, this is the exact opposite of the situation in the United States. Here, those who are responsible for American naval policies are practically unanimous in objecting to the terms of the treaty because they are practically unanimous in their opinion that it is unjust and unfair and dangerously disadvantageous to the United States.

Equally false is the pretense that there is any true analogy between Japanese and American opposition to this treaty. As a matter of fact, the issue in Japan has turned upon a question of prerogatives—whether the general staff of the Navy or the Minister of Foreign Affairs shall finally decide upon questions of national defense.

It is an old quarrel, recently reopened, and does not concern the terms of the treaty itself. Even Admiral Kato, who is the leading champion of the general staff in this controversy, is not out to defeat the treaty on its merits.

On the contrary the Japanese general staff nearly a month ago announced its adherence to the treaty and throughout Japanese naval circles satisfaction with the terms of the treaty is practically unanimous.

If these facts are not well known to the administration at Washington, they ought to be. For the evidence that those who are responsible for British naval policy and those who are responsible for Japanese naval policy favor ratification of this treaty must be in the possession of the Department of State.

But these facts and this evidence have been repeatedly misrepresented and distorted by the American negotiators of this treaty who would have the American people believe that the British admiralty and the Japanese general staff are just as much opposed to the treaty as are the highest American naval authorities.

Against this attempt to deceive them, the American people and their senators in Congress ought to be on their guard.

The London naval treaty is supported today by the British admiralty, which is responsible for British naval policy.

It is supported by the general staff of the Japanese navy as well as by the Japanese government.

It is opposed, however, by practically all of the highest naval authorities of the United States.

And it is cowardly and contemptible for the American negotiators of this treaty to stoop to mendacity in an effort to deceive the American people regarding the true situation.

Mr. Fish of Chicago

He Makes a Discovery.

J. L. Fish, a Chicagoan, lost his sight from a blow and a nervous breakdown 30 years ago. The other day he regained it. He finds a few changes.

He had never seen an auto, a skyscraper or an airplane. He misses the old-fashioned Smith Brothers whiskers, once the mark of manhood, now fallen before the safety razor.

He almost had another nervous breakdown at his first glimpse of short skirts.

He recalls the tandem bicycle he and his wife rode. Now he sees young people driving cars at terrifying speed.

"They don't have any more fun than we did," he says.

Much to think about in that remark.

You may conclude that human happiness and misery are always about the same—not increased or diminished by "progress."

To dodge an awful bumping.

Submarine Arctic Exploration

By Archibald Henderson

It is difficult to surmise how the inventive ingenuity of man is going to conquer the unknown region of the sea bottom. The vital necessity is the discovery in some form of immensely strong and powerful undersea craft capable of withstanding the almost incalculable pressure of deep-sea submergence.

So far as present-day science is concerned, any submersible cruiser which can now be constructed will collapse at a comparatively small depth. Modern submarines, for all their phenomenal developments in very recent years, can submerge to a depth of little more than 300 feet.

A spectacular new scientific exploration, now rapidly preparing, bids fair to attract the rapt attention of the entire world. Sir Hubert Wilkins, famous aviator and explorer, is planning to make a submarine exploration of the Arctic Ocean. His great abilities have been demonstrated by his flight over the North Pole and his recent important explorations in the Antarctic.

The hazardous project of traveling through Arctic waters beneath the ice in a specially constructed submarine is in the hands of a bold, inventive, capable and adventurous explorer.

The United States government, according to recent advices, has placed one of its submarines at the disposal of Sir Hubert Wilkins. According to information made available to the public, this submarine will have many features of construction and equipment which will especially fit it for the difficult and dangerous task before it.

Above the submarine, which is to travel beneath the polar ice crust much of the time, there is a resilient bumper, similar to that on the front of an automobile. Moreover, the submarine will be equipped with a longer feeler arm, 30 to 40 feet in length, which will extend upward, like the contact pole on a trolley car. Thus the submarine will be protected from bumps against the ice crust by the spring-cushioned bumper, and in its slow sub-surface progress will retain contact with the under-surface of the ice crust by means of the long feeler arm or contact bar.

Progress beneath the ice will necessarily be slow, an economical speed being from four to five miles an hour. It will be necessary to come to the surface frequently, in order to recharge the batteries.

When traveling on the surface, the submarine will be driven by a Diesel engine. While submerged, it will be driven by electric motors and batteries. It is estimated that there will be some 60 storage batteries in the submarine now preparing. There should be many opportunities to come to the surface, for it has been estimated that the Arctic Ocean is dotted with open leads of newly-frozen water, at an average distance apart of about 25 miles.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

This is the restless age—particularly for women. Fidgety natures, fussing around, rebelling against discipline and routine, demanding their rights, remind one of Mexican jumping beans.

Ever see a jumping bean? Common little black seed—you'd never notice it, if it wasn't in a saucer in a store window, with a crowd staring. You wonder why it's attracting all that attention. Then you see it jump, as if it were filled with dynamite. But it isn't filled with dynamite. It's just filled with worm.

These restless, aimless modern females make me think of that. Females who go around yawping about the slavery of housework and child-bearing—saying what wonderful things they could accomplish if they had a chance—clamoring for careers—yearning for self expression. But what have most of them to express? Nothing but an inner itch.

Naturally, these ladies are as common as beans. But a bean, though common, is an extremely valuable vegetable—if it will stick to its beaning and develop worms. And the same goes for US GIRLS. Nature designed us for a dull but vitally important function. Then along came this yen for Self Expression and now we're filling the world with futile flutterings that get us exactly nowhere. Nevertheless, we get a big bang out of thinking how unusual we are—how superior to stupid, dull people who sit in one place and don't fidget.

But we're not unusual. There's nothing intelligent or dramatic or heroic about mere fidgeting. Fidgeting was about the first thing that happened in life. The marshes were one vast squirm. And presently the jungles were filled with jabbering jumpers, expressing themselves all over the place.

Remember that verse from Kipling's "Road-Song of the Bandar Log?" Scampering from limb to limb, the monkey folk cry—

"Here we go in a branchy row,
Thinking of beautiful things we know;
Dreaming of deeds that we mean to do,
All complete in a minute or two—
Something noble and grand and good,
Won by merely wishing we could.
Now we're going to—never mind.
Brother, thy tail hangs down behind!
This is the way of the monkey-kind!"

That was the voice of the jungle—the restless, disorderly aimless, undisciplined, self-expressing jungle. But when you've heard it all and seen it all, what does a jungle really amount to? Nothing. Just a lot of jabber and jump that doesn't create anything.

Civilization only started when creatures stopped jabbering and jumping and began to sit still and stick on a job—and all progress has come from sitting stiller and sticking longer. The stickers, not the jumpers, build the world. They are the boys who really express.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

Down in Arkansas there used to be lots of stories about lazy men. I reckon that was before they got good roads there to run around on. They move right fast in most parts of Arkansas now, but there was a time when nearly every other man you seen was just kinda loafing along.

A neighbor come to the Wilson house, smoking his pipe and kinda moseying along. Mrs. Wilson says, "Say, John Borrow, I'm sure glad you come. I was going to look for a man to beat this here carpet for me."

He says, "Oh, don't do that, Mrs. Wilson. Just tell me where he lives, and if it ain't too far away, I'll go and get him for you."

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

The World Is Yours

The world is yours, for you build it all,
Its hovels low and its castles tall;
Your thoughts have made
Its light and shade,
Its vistas wide or its high, grim wall.

The day is here for your hands to take
As a seamstress fashions a robe; you make
Of the stuff of time
A thing sublime
Or a menace that causes the heart to quake.

The world and the day, they are things you own.
Then be kind to the world ere the day has flown.
With the good you stress
You can build, you can bless.
It rests with you and with you alone.

Who wants to work anyway during July and August? When the dog days are here let's follow the hounds.

Ambition is about a nickel a bushel when the thermometer is buzzing like a hornet that's all stinger.

The thought of work is about as abhorrent as the idea of a community toothbrush.

We'd like to go to the mountains if they weren't so hilly and we'd like to go to the beach if it weren't so near sea level.

We have had to arrange with Cal Coolidge so that both of us newspapermen are not out of town at the same time.

We predict a nice vacation for Cal. Now that he is a newspaperman his summer home will be a telephone booth.

The finest kind of a rest is touring in a grumble seat and getting a beautiful view of the back of the chauffeur's neck.

You get a lot of enjoyable rest asking natives how to get some place. If they knew they would go themselves.

There is nothing like a reliable road map. That is, up to date, no photographer has made anything like it.

We think that road maps are made from what's left over of atlases, encyclopedias and furniture catalogues.

We like the ones that are scaled 100 miles to the inch. After a lot of measuring you see America with your thumb.

It's funny how a little speck on the map turns out to be a whole polka dot when you try to find it. You stop at five crossings and ask a farmer:

"How do you get to Turkey Point, if possible?"

You don't know that he has been marooned at five crossings for three days waiting for a searching expedition to show him the way back to the old mortgaged garage.

But no clover-kicker ever runs out of directions. He says:

"Straight ahead to Hairpin Turn—then left to the Haunted Barrel—then right to Jippson's cannery—two sharp lefts to the covered bridge and right again to the First National Poorhouse for the boys who bought City Service for a long pull—well, they got a long pull—but it was on the doctor's doorbell."

By this time you realize that you have met a kindred sufferer who bought on a rising market and landed in the sunken garden.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

Finally in that matter of the developing embryo. It is apparently true that the embryo begins to develop without the controlling guidance of its own chromosomes. But before it was fertilized it was made in the maternal ovary, and then the maternal chromosomes were fully active.

So it is perfectly possible that the properties of the egg-cytoplasm are controlled in the last analysis by the chromosomes of the mother, and it has been proved in a number of instances that they are so controlled.

H. G. Wells

We conclude then by setting aside non-Mendelian heredity, that is to say, heredity through any other agency than the genes, as a process trivial in extent and at present too obscure for practical consideration.

There are intimations as we shall see of other forces at work, but at present they are very elusive. They demand further study. In the following chapters we shall be guided in our interpretations constantly by Mendel's two laws.

Assuming that the genes are the normal means of heredity, we shall study their method of working.

Perhaps the most illuminating study we shall make will be that of the determination of sex; there we shall find the most interesting examples of the struggle between dominant and recessive gene-partners, and the way in which they are affected by other and less easily defined influences arising out of the activity of the rest of the genes.

Sec. 12. Some Common Superstitions About Heredity.

This is an appropriate place to speak of certain beliefs which are widespread enough among the general public. They may be truly called superstitions, since they are without any of the ample basis of facts which underlie breeders' beliefs on inbreeding and outcrossing.

Of these superstitions the most important is technically called telegony or "infection of the germ." Those who believe in telegony maintain that the first male to which a female is mated has an influence upon her subsequent offspring, even if these are sired by another male.

This belief is so firmly rooted, even among practical men, that some sheep-breeders' associations refuse to register any lamb whose mother was ever mated to a ram of another breed than her own; and it often occurs that fine pedigreed cows or ewes are slaughtered or sold for a song because they were accidentally covered by a male of another variety. Dog breeders share these beliefs.

On the other hand, curiously enough, the belief does not seem to be strongly or widely held about the matings of the human species. But then human beings, both male and female, with the very rarest exceptions, trouble hardly at all when they marry about the possible quality of their off-spring.

Today it is possible to assert without question that telegony is a mere fable which could only have gained ground in the days when men were ignorant of the true mechanism of fertilization and reproduction.

The supposed instances of telegony which are constantly being reported even today, invariably disappear when critical analysis is brought to bear upon them.

Perhaps the most famous example is that of Lord Morton's mare. The mare, a pure Arabian, was mated with a zebra stallion and produced a hybrid foal.

On two later occasions, she was bred to a black Arab stallion and gave birth to two further foals.

These had legs which were striped ever more definitely than those of the hybrid foal or the zebra sire himself, and one had some stripes on parts of the neck also. In addition, they had a stiff mane of very zebra-like appearance.

Darwin himself accepted the evidence as sufficient proof of telegony. But when definitely planned and long-continued experiments were made, the proof escaped. Cossar Ewart, for instance, made a number of horse and zebra crosses to test the validity of the belief.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

PARIS: Looking directly across the broad expanse of the avenue Georges Cinq from my hotel window is a five-storied stone apartment building. Each floor has a veranda with iron railings the length of the structure.

Each floor also has a row of 10 windows with white double shutters. Early this morning there appeared on the third floor verandah a fellow who wore the unmistakable bed-ticking vest of a houseman. He has utterly fascinated me for more than four hours.

When he made his first appearance he stood at the railing gazing down into the street. He remained in this attitude so long I looked down, too, to see what was going on. There was nothing unusual, but still he stood there for more than an hour. Finally he jiggled a shutter and stood off to appraise it.

From then on for two hours he would turn from his rail gazing at intervals to jiggle various shutters along the building front. I finally determined he was just a shutter jiggler and tried to continue at my work, but it was impossible. He charmed me like the snake charms the bird.

I called my wife's attention to him and later she came in excitedly to announce: "Heavens, he has a helper!" Surely enough, another houseman had joined him and at periods they would turn from the rail and jiggle various shutters. They finally got me to doing it.

I found myself going around the room replacing the telephone set, straightening pictures on the wall, smoothing out dressing table doilies and picking up match ends. At last I could stand it no longer and stood out on our balcony and tried to wave him away.

He evidently thought I had become flirtatious, for every time I would wave he would wave back, and soon his helper was assisting him in the waving. So that is why in my dire dilemma I have to write about a fool shutter jiggler instead of writing something interesting. I'll keep on until I get fired by cable.

Another distraction of the day was to be called to a side window by the French maid to view a funeral procession marching grimly in a steady downpour. Her knowledge of English is limited and at intervals she would exclaim fervidly: "Cute; Tres cute, n'est-ce pas?" That was something I never heard a funeral called before.

On the wall of our bedroom is a fishing picture in a scrofulously chipped gilt frame, called: "Le Choix de Poisson." In straightening the picture I noticed some faint handwriting in English. Snooping a little with a magnifying glass I deciphered this: "Two nights in Paris and O, the headache! Ned and Flo. August 11, 1927. On our honeymoon and what a honeymoon!" It must have been.

Among the various changes is noted the increasing number of monocles. Many Americans, too self conscious to wear them at home, sport them over here and with astounding finesse, too. These, of course, are augmented by the British and home grown monocleists, along with the occasional Japanese and Chinese. Incidentally one sees the highest caste Chinese here in contrast to the laundryman types at home. They ride about in Daimlers, wear morning silk hats and otherwise spread an aristocratic aura.

On a taxi ride today to the Halle aux Vins—the wine halls which appropriately enough have their own private zoo—my cry of "Arret" brought the taxi to a quick stop to greet a friend. Similiarly my order of "Ducement" later slowed up the reckless driver who seemed to have wild hairs some place besides his head. When I finally get the swing of this language, I'll make it hum.

I went berserk today and bawled out every attache in the hotel I could find from the chasseur to the very British over-lord with a thin imperial and a frock coat. This is part of the fun here. A half hour later the housekeeper brought a vase of flowers, but I will not smell them. Poison ivy puffs me so.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You have steered a comparatively easy course through life so far.

You work every day, excepting vacation periods, but you don't exert yourself any more than is necessary.

You have adapted your living expenses to about the size of your income and that means you have the pleasures and conveniences you want.

You have schooled yourself not to want much or more than your earnings will allow.

You have enough to bring present contentment because you are not thinking of the future and you are not making any preparation for it.

You don't want to think of unpleasant things or provide for future contingencies because you would have to curtail your present scale of living.

And so you go on letting your money slip away to buy articles and good times that are not necessities.

Your idea of enjoyment is to let the future take care of itself.

If you are willing to take such big chances you are going the way to meet unfavorable conditions without the protection you will need.

There are times when you give some little thought to this matter, but you will not seriously consider it.
